They laughed when I said, "I will compile a Jones family genealogy."

But it wasn't so simple as that. Actually there was considerable delving and groping into the dark recesses of the past before those words were spoken.

There was somewhat of a challenge in the original situation. It seemed to be quite generally conceded that no one with ancestors named Jones could possibly trace their family back more than three or four generations because of the fact that of all the surnames in use in the English speaking countries the name Jones was one of the most common. And, then, of course, there were those who mentioned, without meaning any offense, and with the utmost kindness, that there had been those who traced back their family trees only to find that some had been horse thieves or other dissolute characters, which, of course, would have been a rather unpleasant reward for days of research and effort.

I do not remember accepting the challenge and buckling on the sword and armor all on any definite occasion. Perhaps I merely followed a family trait for my Uncle Frank had a habit of asking other people somewhat embarrassing questions such as how old they were and what their first wife's maiden name was.

My grandfather, George W. Jones, was one of twelve children in one of the first pioneer families to come to Cass County, Michigan, in 1830, and after over one hundred years my Jones cousins seemed quite multitudinous, and quite naturally I wanted to know who they were. I made a family tree on the back of a large calendar and whenever a cousin would come in on business or for a social call I would put them through a genealogical inquisition. This, without doubt, was the genesis of this compilation.

At the time I was a candidate for the State Senate in 1936, a friend knowing of my many cousins resident in the district, said with no small twinkle in his eye, "Well, if your relatives will vote for you, you will be elected."

All the early Cass County histories had Jones family biographies and histories but when William Wade Hinshaw published his first volume of "Encyclopedia of Quaker Genealogy" which included the old Quaker records of North Carolina and Georgia things genealogical received a decided impetus for there was the record of Henry and Kezia (Hickson) Jones representing one generation further back than our Cass County histories had been able to record.

Trip to Ohio

From the county histories I knew that my great grandfather, Henry Jones, husband of Hannah (Green) Jones, was one of ten children and that when the family came to Michigan from Ohio in 1829 and 1830, Henry and five other brothers and sisters came to Michigan with their parents but his brother, William Jones, and three unnamed sisters remained in Ohio. I knew my grandfather had been born in Preble County, Ohio, and in 1941 an urge came upon me to go to the county where he was born. I wondered if any of the Jones family, descendants of those who remained in Ohio 114 years before, still lived there.

So in April 1941, in company with my two nephews, Charles A. Schurtz and James A. Schurtz, I drove to Ohio, a distance of about 250 miles. En route we stopped at the museum in Richmond, Indiana, and saw many mementos of the early Quaker pioneers.

We went about 16 miles east from Richmond across the state line to Eaton, Ohio, the county seat of Preble County. We made two or three inquiries of different persons as to whether there was some particular place in that county where there had been a Quaker settlement in the early days. At last we found a man who believed there had been some such settlement at Gratis, some miles south of Eaton. So we drove to Gratis and were informed that the principal Quaker settlement in Preble County was at West Elkton almost in the southeast corner of the county.

When we arrived at West Elkton we were promptly directed to the old Quaker Church and cemetery. It was toward the end of the day. The old brick church was well kept but the old burying ground behind it, no longer used for that purpose, was covered with a heavy growth of weeds, myrtle, vines, and rose bushes. But a glance at the names on the markers gave us a somewhat indescribable sensation of joy and sadness. The names told us. Here, indeed, was the country where my grandfather was born, and here were the graves of his relatives and ancestors.

The next day we returned and copied as many inscriptions as we believed might be relatives, and it is fortunate we did for upon returning in 1946 it appeared that many markers had been removed, said to be "loose ones" cleared out by an overzealous and unthinking sexton who was said to have been discharged for his unfortunate industry.

Probably the first Jones descendant we visited there was a fine old gentleman named Gifford who lived a couple of miles or so southeast of West Elkton. He brought out a Preble County history describing the early history of the Jones family in Ohio and of their journey from North Carolina to Ohio in 1805.

He told us of Mrs. Harriet Inman Wilson whose mother's maiden name was Rebecca Jones. She lived south of West Elkton on the spacious estate of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young. They extended to us every hospitality and took us to Seven Mile, Ohio, where Mrs. William Snively kindly permitted us to copy the entries in the William Jones family Bible, and there we met Earl Wilson, brother of Mrs. Young.

Before returning to Michigan the next day we stopped at the Probate Court in Eaton and there among the oldest records we found that will number 23 was the will of Henry Jones, our ancestor, who died in 1819. This, indeed, was another almost breath-taking discovery, as it gave the names of his children.

Roger A. Stubbs

By reason of this trip to Ohio, in the course of some months I heard from a relative who eventually put me in touch with Roger A. Stubbs of Long Lake, Minnesota, a cousin, who had made extensive research of his own concerning our family genealogy.

He encouraged me intelligently and continuously and modestly refused to be a co-editor of this volume, although he compiled the entire Stubbs branch and most of the Johnson and Gifford branches himself. It was due to his keen observations and ability as a genealogist that he sensed an error in the Hinshaw publication, had it checked with the original records at Guilford College in North Carolina, and sent our searches back another generation by determining that George and Elizabeth Jones were the parents of our Henry Jones who lived in North Carolina and Georgia and died in Ohio in 1819.

Our Earliest Known Ancestors

It can definitely be said that Henry Jones, who became a member of the Cane Creek, North Carolina, Monthly Meeting of Friends in 1768, was our ancestor and his parents were George and Elizabeth Jones. Beyond that we are left somewhat to supposition, but for reasons which you will agree seem convincing, it is reasonable to believe that this George Jones is the same George Jones whose marriage to a lady named Elizabeth is recorded in the minutes of the Deer Creek, Maryland, Monthly Meeting in 1742, whose father was Henry Jones, husband of Loveday Archer Jones, who lived in Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and whose father was Francis Jones, Sr., who came to Pennsylvania from Jamestown, South Wales, in 1711 whence he had come from Ireland in 1708.

Trip to the East and South

In June of 1948, when it seemed apparent that publication was not far off, in the company of my wife and son Daniel, a trip was made to many of the various places that our early ancestors were supposed to have lived. In the city of Philadelphia is the Yearly Meeting of Friends and the Pennsylvania Historical Society where many of the original records kept by the Friends are to be found. There we saw the actual original entries showing the arrival of Francis Sr. in that city in 1711, and many subsequent items concerning the later movements of the family.

We visited the Friends Meeting houses in Camden, Delaware, and at Little Creek in Delaware. It was at the latter that Francis Jones, Sr., attended Monthly Meetings as representative of the Duck Creek, Delaware, Meeting. As the Duck Creek meeting was changed to Odessa in 1783 we assumed that nothing remained of the old meeting house erected in 1705 at Duck Creek, where Francis was a member. The old burial ground is said to be about one mile south of Smyrna, Delaware, but we did not see it.

From Duck Creek the family evidently moved near the meeting at Haddonfield, New Jersey, just across the river from Philadelphia, about 1726, but we failed to visit this place as we were not fully informed of that fact at that time. It is one block north of Haddon Avenue and one from Main Street on King's Highway, in Haddonfield, site of the original location.

Henry, son of Francis, Sr., next lived in Leacock in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in 1730, so we went there visiting the Londongrove and New Garden Friends meeting houses en route. Lancaster County was a garden spot indeed. It is said to be the most fertile agricultural region of the state. In 1947 it led all the counties of the U. S. in production of tobacco and was second in the country in value of farm products produced. Much of this country is now inhabited by the Amish whose plain dress probably resembles somewhat the garb that the Friends used at one time.

Near there, a short distance from Elam, we found the old Green homestead now owned by the Misses Anna Woods Bird and Mary S. Malone. They have maintained the old home in a lovely manner and it is far more beautiful than the picture indicates. Across the road from the house is a large barn made of frame material and stone, probably constructed about the same time as the house.

We visited the East Nottingham Monthly Meeting at Calvert, Maryland, and not many miles south on U. S. Highway one (1) we crossed the Conowingo Dam over the Susquehanna River and soon turned east a mile or two to Darlington where we found a beautiful, native, stone Friends meeting house founded in 1737 and restored in 1888. It was similar to most of those we had seen in Pennsylvania, rather low, with French or colonial windows and a long porch or veranda along the entrance side. The adjacent, ancient burying ground was covered with a thick growth of vines, weeds and flowers. It was evident that only a few of the grave markers remained, and that originally many more were buried there than were now marked.

It was here at Darlington that George Jones was married out of unity to Elizabeth, and later asked forgiveness from the Friends meeting, in 1742. In 1743 he was under dealing from the Friends Church for not returning the certificate permitting him to go to Great Britain.

As our record next shows his son Henry joining the Friends in 1768 at the Cane Creek Meeting in North Carolina we went to the Cane Creek Meeting house south of Graham 15 miles. Their frame meeting house burned in 1942 and a beautiful new and larger brick church was erected. Continuing on south ten or fifteen miles we came to the Rocky River Friends meeting house, about three miles east from Staley. There were Hobson markers in the old burying grounds. The present meeting house was frame, painted white, and was not the old, original building. But it was here rather than at Cane Creek (where the Monthly Meeting minutes were kept) that the Joneses attended services, for about a mile further down the road toward Staley we found the plantation owned by Henry Jones in 1785 when he returned from Georgia.

A large, beautiful farm residence on the premises is now owned by J. Pearlman Hobson and wife, who now attend the Rocky River Friends meeting, and are distant cousins by reason of the fact that Henry's son George married Lydia Hobson. He had the original old deeds signed by Henry in 1796.

Going on to Thomson, Georgia, about 300 miles from the old Jones home on Rocky River near Staley, North Carolina, we travelled north-westerly from Thomson about nine miles to the former site of Wrightborough. Along this main dirt road were two rather large frame, unpainted houses, that were evidently part of the original town. Both were occupied, one by Mr. Hawes, the county tax collector. Almost across from his home was a large, frame church about 30 feet by 50 feet, painted white and standing among rather large trees, originally occupied by Friends. Services were being held there by the Methodist Church. The windows were colonial or French, large with small panes of glass. This was the second church on this location. The original Friends Church was said to have been about one mile north, and was the church of which Henry Jones was one of the original trustees, and where the Joneses worshiped until they returned to North Carolina in 1784.

Although there was an old cemetery just west of the church, Mr. Dawes said that the Friends burying ground was about three miles east, so we proceeded east until we came to an old school that looked very much like the old church, with the same general style of architecture. Near it was an old cemetery. There were some recent burials there and a few old stones. Possibly it was not the one we were looking for. The hour was late so we started our return journey.

As the family moved from North Carolina to Ohio in 1805 and 1806 and our previous journey to Ohio has already been mentioned, the homes of our early ancestors in this country had been visited with an exception or two.

Wherever they lived the land seemed good to excellent. In every location the land was only slightly rolling. In Georgia the soil was red or orange in color, also in North Carolina, but it did not seem as red in the latter state where they lived as in other portions of the state.

The Numbering System and Abbreviations

Every descendant of Francis Jones has a number in the following compilation. These numbers appear on the inside column to the right of the column of numbers on the extreme left. The numbers in the column farthest to the left are descendants who themselves had children. Thus those who did not have children appear only once, in the right hand column. Those who had children will find their number repeated again in the farthest column to the left in the next generation.

After the name of each descendant who had children, appears in parenthesis the first names of their ancestors, with the number of the generation just above and after each given name.

The abbreviations are quite easy to recognize: b. means born, d. means died, m. means married, res: means residence or address, etc. The same abbreviations are used in reporting extracts from the early Quaker records as were used by Hinshaw in his Encyclopedia of Quaker

Genealogy, such as: M.M. meaning monthly meeting, mou meaning married out of unity, rocf meaning received on certificate from, etc.

The Society of Friends

Inasmuch as our family was so long connected with the Society of Friends, and the records of that Society have aided so substantially in the quest of our ancestry, it seems appropriate that we briefly consider the history of that Society, their beliefs and customs. Space does not permit as complete a summary as this great Society deserves, and you are referred to one of the many books relating to the subject if this brief statement arouses your further interest.

The Society of Friends was formed about 1652. As early as 1517 there had been revolts against the established Church. It was then that Luther nailed his 95 theses on the church door at Wittenberg, said to have been the result of the sale of indulgences by Tetzel, the Dominican friar. There were many religious upheavals in the succeeding years.

The founder of the Society of Friends was George Fox, who was born in England in 1624, the son of a weaver called by his neighbors, "Righteous Christer." Although George and his friends were believers in the fundamental doctrines of Christianity, they were dissatisfied with the teachings and practices of that day, and longed for a higher and more spiritual life.

They agreed that their Society of Friends should eliminate pomp and show. Inward faith to God and outward faith to man was to be preserved. They were to be their brother's keepers. They recommended temperance, a minimum of entertainments, fairness and honesty in all commercial dealings, peace, brotherly love and fear of the Lord.

Many of their beliefs and customs were adopted only in the course of time and many others were eventually changed as the years went by.

One of the most influential converts to the faith in its early days was William Penn, son of a very wealthy man in England. It was contrary to law for persons to assemble for worship in a manner different from that of the Church of England. Penn and many other Friends were persecuted and imprisoned for their religious beliefs. While in prison he wrote those famous words:

No pain, no palm;
No thorn, no throne;
No gall, no glory;
No cross, no crown."

The King of England was indebted to Penn's father in the sum of about sixteen thousand pounds and after his father's death he went to the King to collect. He did not remove his hat in his presence and instead of calling him "Your Majesty" he addressed him as "Brother Charles" because the Friends believed all men were equal. They did not even doff their hats to ladies and kept them on in the church except when a prayer was offered.

The King gave Penn the present State of Pennsylvania in settlement of the debt and most of its earliest colonists were Friends.

Those who made fun of the fact that Friends would not take part in fighting said that they quaked with fear, which led to the nickname "Quakers." They agreed that they were in constant fear of the Lord. At first they did not like the name but eventually adopted it to some extent as they became so generally known by the name.

At first they withdrew from the profane world and did not wage evangelistic campaigns. If anyone wished to join their Society they had to request the privilege. They also had no ministers in the beginning and referred to them as the "hireling ministry."

At a Sunday service the men sat on one side of the meeting house and the women on the other, because it permitted freer discussion in the business meetings after the service and to silence their enemies who wrongfully accused them of immorality. There were no hymns, no announcements, no collection, no communion, no baptisms and no scripture reading. They all sat in silence listening for the still small voice within. If any member of the congregation felt so moved they could rise and give an exhortation or prayer. In case of prayer, they would rise and turn their backs to each other, the men removing their hats. One of the congregation was known as a "timer." When he shook hands with his neighbor, the meeting "broke." Sometimes they would sit in silence through the entire meeting.

The weekly meetings were members of a monthly meeting, and the monthly meetings were members of a quarterly meeting and the quarterly meetings were members of a yearly meeting.

At first they did not dress different from anyone else, but eventually they adopted plain dress as a revolt against the fancy dress of men and women, to identify their members so temptation would not be offered them, and to protect them from the Indians who were friendly to all they recognized as Quakers.

The color of their dress was usually "quaker grey" or black and the men had broad brimmed hats with high crowns. At first no objection was made to fancy wigs but in time they were worn only by permission of the church, and then they could not be too elaborate.

In those days the word "you" was used in addressing a superior and hence contrary to the Quaker belief of absolute equality. The words "thee" and "thou," however, were words of affection used in speaking to a friend or an equal. Use of the word "you" therefore, was forbidden as was Mr. or Mrs. as being a title given by a servant to a master, and they addressed everyone by their given names. Numbers were given for months and days of the week, instead of the names frequently given them, because the names given them glorified unworthy persons or false gods.

To court a Quaker girl the young man had to first have consent of her parents, and it was an offense to ask her to marry him before he had first asked her parents. There being no ministers in the Friends' Society, their marriages were performed by the parties themselves in the presence of the congregation. "Marriage," said Fox, "is God's ordinance, and not man's." "We marry none, we are but witnesses of it."

A couple wishing to be married declared their intentions to a Friends' meeting. Committees were then appointed to meet with the prospective bride and groom separately to determine their "clearness of marriage engagements, and what else may be needful." If they reported back favorably and consent of parents had been obtained, the ceremony was held in the presence of the congregation, the man and woman standing before them hand in hand, each declaring that they would be a loving and faithful spouse to the other until death should separate them. A certificate to that effect was signed by each of the parties and then every member of the congregation signed their names to it as witnesses. It sometimes took many months from the time of their first declaration until the wedding was finally consummated.

The Friends of years ago promptly disowned or expelled from their Society any members guilty of acts or omissions contrary to doctrine. A few were as follows:

Marrying out of unity, i.e. marrying someone not a member of the Friends Society or otherwise not approved by the Church; walking disorderly; playing cards; fiddling and dancing; using plural language to a single person; dancing with another person; hiring a slave; not paying debts; not conducting himself agreeably; bearing arms in a warlike manner; marrying only five months after the death of his former wife; affairs not settled; hiring man to do his military service and unsatisfactory conduct.

As a result of these doctrines and practices there were violent dissensions among them, the divisions thus caused were known as Orthodox, Hicksite, Conservatives, Wilburites, etc. The last named group differed with the mother church on whether sanctification came before justification or whether justification came before sanctification. The membership of the Society began to constantly diminish as there grew up about them other Churches practicing evangelism who were willing to help and forgive their erring members rather than to cut them off.

In the Friends Church of today there are ministers, they no longer require plain dress, they extend a helping hand to erring members and attempt to gain believers. They have again become a growing rather than a diminishing Society.

They always kept records of many of the births, deaths and marriages occurring in their membership, long before such matters were recorded by civil authorities, and it is because of these records that we were able to trace our early family history and genealogy so far.

The Family Fortune

There is an unconfirmed rumor that when the Jones ancestors left Wales for America they were required to deposit on interest a considerable sum to obtain the right from civil authorities to leave the country. Possibly a general requirement to assure that creditors of those who left for the new country would be paid if they had any unpaid obligations; after a certain time if no creditors appeared the sum was payable to the depositor.

In the compilation of this family genealogy from widely separated sources: Michigan, Ohio, Iowa and California, came inquiries as to whether it was an effort to list those entitled to the family fortune in Britain. Old correspondence concerning it will be found in the Gilbert Cope Genealogical Collection in Philadelphia.

Isaac Jones of Cassopolis, Michigan, became interested in it in 1894 and made a special trip to Ohio in that connection. If the deposit was not withdrawn and continued to draw interest the sum would be quite vast after more than 200 years.

Various stories concerning it are to the effect that one of our ancestors who knew the trials and perils of crossing the Atlantic Ocean in those days, destroyed the evidence of the Jones property in Great Britain so that no descendant would risk the trip back to get it.

George Jones (1801-1832) is reported to have said that his brother William Jones (1799-1834) was the one who burned the papers proving the family's right to property in Britain.

That the family had some business interests in Britain is indicated by the fact that George Jones, husband of Elizabeth, the grandson of Francis and Rachel Newton Jones, requested a certificate to go to Great Britain on business in 1742 and was under dealing by the Nottingham Monthly Meeting for not returning the certificate in 1745.

It is said that when excitement over the family fortune reached some height about 1894 a letter was addressed to government officials in Great Britain and they replied that if it were true that such a sum had been deposited on interest that many years ago, and had been unclaimed that long, it would have escheated long before to the public poor fund, and would have been used to care for the indigent people of that country. And, of course, it might have been real estate or other property that the family owned and not a deposit at all.

About the Book

It is interesting to note that Henry Barton Jones of Tucumcari, New Mexico, represents the ninth generation in which the name of Henry Jones has alternated with George Jones through an unbroken line of Jones descendants.

Tragedy, pathos and good fortune are all found in the succeeding pages. Almost every occupation from Governor down are hereinafter recorded.

Occasionally members of the family were removed from membership in the Friends Church, but usually only temporarily for some infraction of their then quite strict rules, such as marrying one who was not a member of the Society. For those who always worry about what the past may disclose it will be reassuring to know that the long membership of the family (well over 100 years) in the Friends Society, was a very favorable influence.

In an effort to exhaust every source to extend our genealogical record back as far as possible, correspondence was conducted with the Genealogical Office of the National Library of Ireland. Under date of June 3, 1946, the Genealogical Officer of the National Library wrote:

"I am sorry to say that we consider the prospects of a successful search on your behalf unlikely to be successful. You have already traced your family a long way further back than most people. In the seventeenth century records were not systematically kept in Ireland and many of those which were preserved perished in the destruction of the Public Record Office in 1922. You have already obtained all particulars available in the archives of the Society of Friends, which is the only source of information I would have consulted with much hope of success in a case like yours."

Accordingly the end of the road seemed to have been reached.

It would be appropriate to list here the names of all those whose contributions of data made this publication possible, but if I attempted to name them all, I would surely overlook some, there were so many. All I can say is thanks and thanks again.

In reading the editorial comment by compilers of other genealogies I note that here is an opportune place to scold those who failed to answer letters of inquiry and to recount the great expense and effort expended by the editor. Neither of these subjects fall within the scope of this publication. If there were those who did not answer letters of inquiry it has been forgiven. If money and effort have been expended it was for a great cause and provided the compiler many pleasant hours and an opportunity to become better acquainted with a family whose beliefs and history for many generations were based on the ideal that men should live in peace, friendship and brotherly love as far as possible.

It will also afford us all an opportunity to realize and appreciate more fully the hardships and difficulties suffered by our pioneer ancestors, many of which were endured by them so that we might enjoy the comforts that are ours today.

If there are corrections or changes that should be made please inform your compiler, for some errors are bound to occur. If you enjoy reading about your family won't you write and tell us?

Sincerely,

CARROLL B. JONES

First Generation

"Of every worthy stock the most degenerate sons cherish the names of those from whom by an authentic lineage they trace their honorable descent. With zealous affection and a pious reverence they explore all sources of knowledge respecting their lives, their characters, their motives, their acts. In a spirit neither arrogant, nor envious they are yet jealous for a just estimate of the virtue and power that marked the founders of their line; careful that no malign or reckless influence shall distort the record, or obscure the remembrance of their deeds; earnest in the determination that their latest descendants shall lose nothing of the heritage in these great names, in the course of its descent.

"Nor should it be for a moment supposed that the spirit of our institutions and the structure of our society, which have discarded the hereditary transmission of rank and power, discouraged even the succession of wealth, and make ridiculous the culture of a vulgar family pride, have at all weakened or diverted the force of those natural ties which connect us alike with our ancestry and our posterity, and sustain and protect, as a perpetual and imperishable possession, the glory and worth of our forefathers."

WILLIAM MAXWELL EVARTS

1. FRANCIS¹ JONES. Although we were able to trace his wife's family back two more generations, Francis Jones is our earliest known progenitor of the Jones family. Since his eldest son was born in 1688 and his wife was born in 1662 it is reasonable to believe that he was born about 1660. Our first definite record of him comes from the records of the Friends Society due to his membership with the meeting at Jamestown, South Wales. From it we find that he moved to South Wales from Ireland in 1708. In an effort to trace back further, correspondence was carried on with the Friends Society in Ireland. After searching their records prior to 1708 they stated that there were several Joneses mentioned as being members of the County Wexford Monthly Meeting in Ireland prior to 1708 but that Francis was not mentioned. It would seem that his name does not appear in any of the meetings in Ireland prior to that time, and only in the County Wexford Meeting were there any members named Jones.

According to the Library of the Society of Friends, Friends House, Euston Road, London N.W. 1, he is mentioned in the minutes of the Pembroke (S. Wales) Monthly Meeting 15th 8th mo. 1708. This was also known as the Redstone Monthly Meeting, or one was part of the other, and it was located in or near Haverfordwest, Pembrokeshire, South Wales.

From the minutes of these meetings it appears that the Jones family actually lived in or near Jamestown which was within the verge of the Redstone Monthly Meeting. Jamestown is near Manorbier, a village not far from Tenby.

The Monthly Meetings alternated back and forth between Redstone and Haverfordwest. A book published in England about Pembrokeshire Quakers shows that a John Jones attended meetings at Jamestown between 1699 and 1700, possibly a relative of Francis.

Different members of the Jones family were appointed by the Jamestown meeting as representatives at the Monthly meeting between 1708 and 1711 as follows:

|-----------|--|
| 15-8-1708 | Francis Jones |
| 21-8-1709 | Francis Jones Sr. and Jr. |
| 18-9-1709 | Francis Jones |
| 21-2-1710 | Francis Jones Sr. |
| 19-3-1710 | Francis Jones |
| 20-8-1710 | Francis Jones Sr. and Jr. and Samuel Jones |
| 18-3-1711 | Francis Jones |
| 15-4-1711 | Francis Jones |
| 15-5-1711 | Francis Jones |

The book previously mentioned, referring to the Friends meeting at Jamestown, says:

"There is no mention of the house at Jamestown till after the arrival of the Americans. The members who left for Pennsylvania towards the end of the 17th century may have taken the minutes with them, as we know that emigrants from some other meetings did."

Just what this means is not entirely clear. Possibly some former members at Jamestown returned from America and then the Pembroke-shire Monthly Meeting mentioned the meeting house at Jamestown with which they were formerly connected. It would also seem that the minutes of the Jamestown meeting itself are lost and only as members happen to be mentioned in the Monthly Meetings at Redstone or Haverfordwest is there a record of them.

Gerard C. Marriage of 9 Goat Street, Haverfordwest, writing under date of April 29, 1945, states that there is no longer a Friends Meeting in Haverfordwest and has not been one there during the thirty odd years that he has lived there. He said that he believed that he was the only Quaker living in the town. He said there was a Friends burial ground near the town dating from about 1660 but there are no headstones until recent years.

The practice of recording vital statistics and minutes of the coming and going of their various members has been of great help in tracing ancestry of Quaker descendants, but the early belief that graves should not be marked has been a decided hindrance.

That such an idea existed at that time is confirmed by the following from the book about the Pembroke-shire Quakers which bore an entry date of 1-3-1768:

"It is ordered that all tomb and gravestones be removed and in the future that none be erected in our burial grounds."

Irish or Welsh

Albert Brill Russell writing in "The Jones Family" (1925) is of the opinion that Francis Jones and his family were not an old Irish family. He says:

"While the first definite information we have of our Jones ancestors refers to their migration from Ireland to Wales, we may safely assume that the stock was Welsh or English. The name itself is almost sufficient evidence, for the old Irish families almost invariably used the prefix O' or Mc.

"The surname Jones ranks first in number among the family names of Wales, one Welshman in seven bearing the name; in England it holds second place, being barely exceeded in frequency by Smith; and among the old family names of New England it is outnumbered only by Smith, Brown, Johnson, Clark, White, Davis and Williams.

"Being of patronymic derivation, originally John's, it came into use as an hereditary family surname during the fifteenth century; and, being almost always of Welsh origin, it is found in England most frequently in those counties nearest Wales.

"A great many families from Wales, England and Scotland settled in Ireland about the time of the Battle of Boyne and prior thereto. A very large number, mostly Scotch, came over with Sir Hugh Montgomery in May 1606, and later came English and Welsh settlers.

"A great many Welsh names such as Evans, Jones, Roberts, etc. appear upon the records of Ireland."

There is an unconfirmed tradition that the Francis Jones family lived in Kirkcudbrightshire, Scotland, before they moved to Ireland. There is no proof whatsoever to support it.

Certificate for America

After a residence in Jamestown of only about three years on the 20th of the 5th month 1711 the Redstone Meeting granted the following certificate of which we may all be proud:

"Whereas we understand that our friend Francis Jones and his family intends to transport themselves to Pensilvania in america and Desires a certificate from friends on that account:

These are therefore to Certife all whom it may concern — that about three years ago they came over here to Pembrock Sheire from Ireland and Ever since did belong to our Monthly Meeting at Redstone and have all along lived in Love and peace with friends and Neighbors and behaved themselves orderly and Cyvil in all Respects, to the utmost of our Knowledge and also do depart out of our Countrey in Love and with Consent of friends; who truely wisheth and Desireth that the Lord may Bless and prosper them in all their good intentions Especially in their inward and Spirituall undertaking and Concerns of Soul Salvation, etc.

Signed by us

Tho: Cornock, Senr
Tho: Cornock, Junr
James Lewis, Senr

D. Musgrave, Jr.
David Musgrave
James S. Kone
James Lewis Junr"

A somewhat similar certificate was granted "Ye 21st of 7th mo. 1711" by "our men's meeting at Haverford West" to Samuel Jones, son of Francis, stating, "about 3 years past he came over here from Ireland 2 years of wch time he lived with his father . . . after wch . . . he married . . ."

When the above certificate was granted to Francis his second oldest son, Francis, Jr., lacked a few days of being 21 and was then unmarried so he was undoubtedly included with his two younger brothers in the certificate given Francis, Sr., and his family.

Sir Isaac Newton

The Preble County, Ohio, history states that the wife of Francis Jones, Sr., was Rachel (Newton) Jones, the sister of Sir Isaac Newton. No doubt she was related to him, but probably not his sister as he was the only and posthumous child of Isaac Newton, Sr., and Harriet or Hannah (Ayscough) Newton, his father having died shortly after his marriage. It is possible that she was his aunt, a sister of his father who was also named Isaac Newton. Or she may have been a half sister.

Among the succeeding generations there were great grandchildren of Francis and Rachel (Newton) Jones named Isaac Newton Jones, Newton Jones and many named Rachel Jones.

Sir Isaac Newton was born in 1642 and died in 1727. There is a portrait of him in Trinity College, Cambridge, England and Edward Dean Adams of New York City was the owner of his portrait bust made by Josiah Wedgwood, the great English potter, of black basaltes.

He was born on Christmas Day at Woolsthorpe near Grantham. His father died the previous October and his mother dt. of J. Ayscough Smith of Market Overton m. (2) in 1645 Barnabas Smith, Rector of N. Welham, Leicestershire. After his mother's second wedding he lived with his grandmother Ayscough at Woolsthorpe. On the death of his step-father he rejoined his mother in 1656 and was taken from school to help her on the farm.

His uncle William Ayscough, Rector of Burton Coggles, was a member of Trinity College, Cambridge, and upon his advice Isaac was sent back to school to prepare for Cambridge. In 1661 he matriculated as a subsizar at Trinity College, was elected a scholar three years later and obtained an A.B. in January 1665. He was elected a Fellow of the College in 1667.

So it would appear that if Rachel Newton Jones was a sister of Sir Isaac Newton she must have been a half sister and her maiden name Smith instead of Newton. But to have been even a half sister she would have to have been born before the death of Barnabas Smith in 1656, or have been a child by her mother's third marriage if she was married a third time.

In 1944 Mrs. Roger W. Babson of 67 Wellesley Avenue, Wellesley, Mass., had the notes made by Sir Isaac at the time he was knighted relating to his ancestry as required by the College of Heraldry, but these notes did not include his immediate family or his descendants.

In addition to his famous and well-known contributions to mankind as a mathematician, philosopher and scientist he served with distinction as Warden (1695) and as Master of the Mint (1699) during which period he reformed the management of the Mint, and directed the recoinage of the currency without altering the standard system of Great Britain.

He was elected President of the Royal Society in 1703 and re-elected annually 24 times until his death in 1727.

The fact that the first child of Francis and Rachel was born in 1688 would indicate that she was born about 1662 or 20 years after her relative, Sir Isaac Newton. Possibly she was a child of her mother's third marriage, but there is no information to the effect that Sir Isaac's mother was married a third time.

In an effort to locate some record of Francis and Rachel in Ireland from whence they moved to South Wales in 1708, inquiry was made of the religious society of Friends in Ireland at 6 Eustace Street, Dublin, Ireland, and reply was received under date of 26 Aug. 1945 from S. W. Webb, Recording Clerk, saying:

"We have made a thorough search of the records in our possession, but can find no reference to Francis Jones although in the records of County Wexford Monthly Meeting there are other Joneses.

"We find however, that there was a Rachel Newton who was born in Corbally, Queen's County, on 9th August 1662 and whose family later moved to Old Booley, County Wexford. We have no knowledge as to the identity of this Rachel Newton, but hardly think she can have been a sister of Sir Isaac Newton. We enclose a sheet giving particulars of her parents, brothers, sisters and grandparents, taken from our records.

"This is all the data we can find, and we have no means of verifying whether this Rachel Newton is the person you are inquiring about, as there is no record of her marriage, nor her death."

The sheet enclosed gave the following data:

"Jonas Newton, son of Thomas and Jane Newton, married Jane Urin, daughter of John Urin of Kinsale at Bristol 26th 1st mo. 1649, their issue were:

1. Jane b. 25th 2 mo. 1650 at Bristol, m. John Ellis, s. John Ellis, Charleton, Worcestshire, at Brigurteen 17th 8 mo. 1675
2. Anne b. 24th 6 mo. 1654 at Bristol
3. Susanna b. 21st 2 mo. 1657 at Corbally Queen's County, d. 1668
4. Samuel b. 22nd 7th mo. 1660 at Corbally
5. Rachel b. 9th 8th mo. 1662 at Corbally
6. Thomas b. 24th 2d mo. 1664 at Old Booley, County Wexford
7. Mary b. 15th 3d mo. 1667 at Old Booley, d. 1669
8. Moses b. 22d 8th mo. 1669 at Old Booley, d. 1669
9. Sarah b. 18th 1st mo. 1672 at Old Booley (twin)
10. Rebecca b. 18th 1st mo. 1672 at Old Booley"

It would appear from the above that Rachel Newton whose birth is there recorded was definitely not a sister of Sir Isaac Newton. As previously mentioned, from other facts the authenticity of the statement in the Preble County, Ohio, history to the effect that Rachel Newton Jones was a sister of Sir Isaac Newton, seemed doubtful.

This Rachel Newton whose birth was furnished above by the Friends in Ireland does appear to be the true Rachel Newton who married Francis Jones for these reasons:

1. She lived in Ireland from whence Francis and Rachel Newton Jones came to South Wales in 1708.

2. Her family and her husband were members of the Society of Friends.

3. When she was about two years old her family moved from Corbally in Queen's County to Old Booley in County Wexford. There were Joneses mentioned in the Quaker records of County Wexford but not in the other meetings in Ireland.

4. This Rachel Newton had a brother named Samuel and a father named Jonas and two of her four sons were named Samuel and Jonas if she was the wife of Francis Jones.

5. Her birth date is appropriate. She would have been 26 when her first child was born.

Although it seems certain that Rachel Newton Jones was not a sister of Sir Isaac Newton it is reasonable to believe that she was related to him. Where there is smoke there usually is fire. And the oft repeated claim of relationship must have had some foundation. It is probable that her branch of the Newton family like the ancestors of Francis Jones, Sr., immigrated to Ireland from England or Wales in the early part of the 17th century. Sir Isaac was born in 1642, she was born in 1662. The fact that they lived during contemporaneous years would attest to the possibility of a fairly close relationship.

Arrival in America

The "Encyclopedia of Quaker Genealogy" by Hinshaw, Vol. II, says of the Philadelphia Meeting of Friends that it has been from the days of William Penn to the present, the historic center of Quakerism on this continent. "Like London it is also the source to which many Quakers or people of Quaker descent, trace their ancestry, for Quakers of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, particularly those in the country meetings, were an ambitious people, and were quick to move to new lands which promised greater opportunities. In the 18th century many of them went south into Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina. In the 19th century many of them went west and north to Ohio and Indiana, to western New York and Ontario at first and later to Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota and the Pacific coast."

It was to Philadelphia and nearby Chester that Francis and his eldest son, Samuel, first brought their certificates from the Redstone Monthly Meeting. They were received at the Chester Monthly Meeting 6-17-1711 and at the Philadelphia Monthly Meeting 12-29-1711. On the 31st day 6th month 1713 their certificates were received at Newtown in Chester (Pa.) M. M. The records of the County Recorder of Chester County do not disclose any conveyances made to or from Francis Jones at that time.

Residence in Delaware

About two and a half years after his arrival in America Francis seems to have located a new home of greater promise within the limits of Duck Creek (Del.) M. M. and on the 13th of 11th mo. 1714 he obtained a certificate from the Chester meeting to Duck Creek: "Chester Meeting informs us that our friend Francis Joans intends to move with his family to Duck Creek and requests a certificate." No female members of the family were mentioned.

On the 20th day 4th mo. 1715 the Duck Creek (Del.) M. M. received the certificate of Francis Jones and family from Providence (Chester). Under dates of 11-16-1715 and 11-16-1716 the Little Creek (Del.) M. M. notes that Francis Jones appeared for Duck Creek meeting with others. On 2-16-1716 the Duck Creek M. M. appointed Francis and three others to attend the service of the next quarterly meeting on behalf of the Duck Creek M. M.

Part of the records of the Duck Creek meeting deposited with the Historical Society of Pennsylvania are missing. The missing portion probably indicated the removal of Francis Jones, Sr., or Jr., or both, from Duck Creek to the Haddonfield (N. J.) M. M., across the river from Philadelphia.

According to "Delaware" by the Federal Writer's Project published in 1937, Duck Creek village near Smyrna, Delaware, now has a population of 50 and was laid out about 1700 as the first settlement on the upper creek. For 150 years it was known as Salisbury. At this point on the old King's Highway a meeting house was built by the Quakers about 1705 and used until the place of worship was moved in 1783 to Cantwell's Bridge now known as Odessa. The old burial ground is about one mile south of Smyrna.

Not quite a mile toward Dover from the junction of highways 8 and 9 is the junction with Quaker Lane, a private dirt road. One-half mile to the right down Quaker Lane are the ruins of the Little Creek Quaker Meeting house built of brick in 1802 to succeed a meeting house that was erected nearby in 1771, though the "Friends of Little Creek in Kent County" had had their own congregation since 1711 when they received permission to separate from the Duck Creek Meeting near Smyrna.

Across Quaker Lane to the right is the old graveyard surrounded by a high wall and fragrant with red cedars and magnificent boxwood trees. Small headstones include those of many of the quiet and dignified old families of the region.

There is an active Friends Church at Camden, Delaware, four miles from Dover. The Recorder of the meeting at Camden went over all the records of the Little Creek meeting that they had there at Camden in 1945 and found no entries relating to anyone named Jones.

The early archives of the State of Delaware, such as are preserved, contain no reference to our Jones ancestors.

Removal from Delaware

It was here in Delaware that Henry, the son of Francis Jones, Sr., was married, the grandson of Francis was born and his daughter-in-law died, as is hereafter set forth in more detail. It is probable that Francis, Sr., or Francis, Jr., moved from their home in Delaware to or near Haddonfield, New Jersey, across the river from Philadelphia, about 1718 or shortly thereafter, having lived in Delaware only about four years. About 1726 he moved to Leacock, in Lancaster County, Pa., for the entries in an old family record refer to him as Francis Jones, Sr., of Leacock. Leacock is just west of Chester and the New Garden (Pa.) M.M. records under date of 5-9-1726 state that Francis Jones produced a certificate of removal from Haddonfield, M.M.

Francis Jones is not mentioned in the earliest deeds and wills in Lancaster County, but when his son, Henry, was married a second time in 1730 at the New Garden (Pa.) M.M. a Francis Jones was present, presumably Henry's brother, Francis, Jr., as Francis, Sr., was probably deceased by that time.

A copy of the family record above referred to is in the Cope Genealogical Collection in the Pennsylvania Genealogical Society in Philadelphia. It is from this record that we find the names and birth dates of his sons, all probably born in Ireland:

2. i. SAMUEL b. 5-1-1688, m. Hannah (Lloyd)
3. ii. FRANCIS b. 6-29-1690, m. Jane (Medcalf)
4. iii. HENRY b. 4-24-1693
5. iv. JONAS b. 6-15-1695

Second Generation

"Each of these names is the memorial of an individual human life, that had its joys and sorrows, its cares and burdens, its affections and hopes, its conflicts and achievements, its opportunities wasted or improved, and its hour of death. Each of these dates of 'birth,' 'marriage,' 'death' — Oh, how significant. What a day was each of these to some human family or some circle of loving human hearts."

N. H. MORGAN

2. SAMUEL² JONES (*Francis*¹) m. 9-17-1710 in Haverfordwest, Pembrokeshire, South Wales (probably at Jamestown) to Hannah Lloyd. The following item is found in the minutes of the Redstone Monthly Meeting under date of 20th 8th mo. 1710:

"Samuel Jones and Hannah Lloyd having laid before this meeting their intention of marriage, it is left till next month meeting to be considered of. Alex Mosgrove and Jennet Sumces is desired to speak with the young woman's mother and to enquire of her clearness from all others and bring an account to next meeting. Jane Merchant & Margaret Skone is desired to speak with Samuel's mother and bring their answers to the next meeting."

The inquiry was evidently favorable for the marriage was allowed at the meeting of 17th of 9th mo. 1710.

He was a member of the Jamestown Friends meeting (a part of the Redstone Monthly Meeting) until 1711 when he moved with his father and wife to America where they were received at Chester and Philadelphia M.M. in Pennsylvania. In 1720 Samuel Jones and wife conveyed land in Chester County to Robert Caldwell by deed recorded in 1772 in Liber Y of deeds on page 15. In the same county two deeds to Samuel Jones were recorded, one dated 1733 from Nathan Dicks and wife recorded in 1734 in Liber E on page 268 and the other from James Starr et al dated 1748 recorded 1749 in Liber G on page 438.

There is also one deed in the early records of Lancaster county covering land in Leacock township on which the name Jones appears. It is dated 10-8-1734 and recorded in Book A, Vol. 1, Page 3, from Charles Jones of Conestoga township to Samuel Jones of Leacock township. It conveyed 250 acres acquired by Charles Jones 3-27-1714.

From Friends records it appears that Samuel and his wife Hannah removed from Chester (Pa.) M.M. to Concord (Pa.) M.M. 7-25-1721 and from Concord to New Garden (Pa.) M.M. 7-11-1725 where it is stated that he produced a certificate from Chichester and Concord. The New Garden records show under date of 11-25-1728 that the Sadsbury Meeting proposed Samuel Jones for elder "which this meeting approves of and recommends him." 6-31-1728 Hannah was appointed overseer of Sadsbury.

In the Gilbert Cope collection is a copy of a memorandum made by Sophia Clemson Sharpless, granddaughter of Samuel Jones' eldest child Mary who m. (1) 1732 at Leacock Meeting, Lawrence Richardson. She m. (2) Thomas Green of Salisbury Township. After listing the sons of Francis Jones and their birth dates and the children of Samuel and Hannah Jones, under date of 1-2-1826 she says:

"The foregoing is copied from an ancient memorandum, made I presume by my Grand Father, Samuel Jones, who settled in the upper part of Old Chester County — now a part of Lancaster County at the 48 mile stone on the Lancaster road. The original patents stand in his name for the tract taken up by him, which extends for 2 miles along that road, and the two story log house which he built and in which all his children were born still exists (1826) and is a short distance in the rear of Amos Slaymaker's Tavern, near the said 48 mile stone.

"He was a very respectable and intelligent Farmer who came at a very early period from Haverford West in South Wales. I am not certain but believe his wife, Hannah, came with him from Wales.

"I can just remember him and recollect to have heard him spoken of as a man highly esteemed in his neighborhood, where he was in the Commission of the Peace under the proprietary Government. My father was his youngest son, Henry, and his daughter Esther, was the grandmother of my cousin Isabella Evans. His son Joseph emigrated with his family to North Carolina from this place about the year 1768, and his son Francis settled in South Carolina and from thence to Georgia where they left numerous families. A son of the latter, a very respectable friend from the state of Ohio visited me in this city (Philadelphia?) about 13 years since."

A Samuel Jones was commissioned a Justice in the years 1729-1733-1736-1737 and 1741. He received a certificate from the Sadsbury Meeting to the Philadelphia (Pa.) M.M. 9-7-1743 and Hannah, his wife, was then deceased for he was described as a widower, with Joseph and Esther as the children in his family.

The will of Samuel Jones of Whitmarsh, a shopkeeper, signed 6-6-1766 and proved in 1767 is among the Philadelphia wills and in it are mentioned all the known children of Samuel and Hannah, except their son Francis, who may have been deceased. Evidently Samuel died in 1767 aged about 79.

3. FRANCIS² JONES (*Francis*¹) moved with his father from Ireland to Redstone M.M. Pembrokehire, South Wales, in 1708. Resided at Jamestown with parents. Moved to Philadelphia and Chester, Pa., with father in 1711, to Duck Creek (Del.) about 1715 and to Had-donfield, N. J., about 1718. A marriage license bond was issued 11-27-1729 (or 1719) to Francis Jones of Burlington County, N. J., a cooper, and Jane Wallis of the same place, a spinster. Did she die and he later marry the widow Jane Medcalf? Or was it the father

Francis Jones who married the spinster and the son who married the widow?

1-3-1734-5 Nathaniel Newlin requested permission from the Concord (Pa.) M.M. to marry Esther Mattcaf, daughter-in-law (step daughter?) of Francis Jones of New Garden (Pa.) M.M. and on 3-15-1735 he married at the Sadsbury (Pa.) M.M. Esther Medcalf of Sadsbury, Lancaster County.

The Gilbert Cope collection says that Francis Jones m. in New Jersey, Jane (widow of Mathew Medcalf of Haddonfield (N. J.) M.M.) who left an only child (Esther) b. 1716. "Whether she m. a Wallis before she m. Francis Jones has not been investigated."

At a M.M. held at Newton (near Camden) N. J., 11th of 3d mo. 1719 "Att sd meeting Francis Jones Junior makes Complaint of a difference Depending Betwixt him and Samll. Ladd." 9-15-1719 he was appointed Constable of Gloucester town and 1-15-1719 or 20 Overseer of Highways. At a Friends M.M. in Haddonfield, N. J., 3-9-1726 Thoas. Sharp, on behalf of Francis Jones, Jr., requested that "inquiry be made concerning his conversation whilst he lived among us." John Hugg and John Mikle were appointed to inquire. On 4-13-1726 it was reported that his conversation had been orderly, except his marriage, for which he made acknowledgement, and it was ordered that he be granted a certificate to transfer to the New Garden (Pa.) Monthly Meeting. (He was probably m. in a civil ceremony instead of in the Friends meeting.) His certificate was received at the New Garden (Pa.) M.M. 5-9-1726.

On 8-30-1726 he presented a petition to His Majesty's Justices at Chester reciting:

"That your petitioner living at the Gapp on the Great Road leading from Philadelphia to Conistogoe, having very good accomdation for Travellers going along said Road, prays that this Court will grant him Lycense to sell Beer and Sider."

The petition was signed by Francis and endorsed by David Jones, John Musgrave and 19 others.

The will of Francis Jones of Gap, Pennsylvania, was probated 3-26-1739 indicating that he was about 49 at the time of his death. The will was dated 5th day 10th mo. 1737 and witnessed by Henry Gay, William Jones, and Hannah Jones, Jr. In it he is described as an Inn holder of the Township of Sadsbury and County of Lancaster. He gives the plantation where he lives of 300 acres to his eldest son, John, and his plantation adjoining on the north side of Thos. Faulkner's Plantation on a branch of Picqua . . . 200 acres . . . with allowance and a right of 50 acres more laying on the north side of the Mountain known by the name of Dry Run . . . "to his second son, Joseph, they were to pay certain sums to his other heirs. The will is set forth in full in "The Jones Family" by Russell.

After his death his widow, Jane, married Isaac Taylor, Jr., a widower (s. of Isaac and Sarah (Bradwell) Taylor). The following appears with reference to it in the minutes of the Sadsbury Monthly Meeting:

"9-2-1741 Jane Taylor formerly the widow Jones being denied by Friends for her being married by a Justice hath produced to this meeting a few lines expressing her sorrow at her outgoing and desires that Friends may pass it by with which this meeting accepts." 99

Her will probated 8-8-1764 indicates that she had one child by her first husband, as well as eight children by Francis. Their children were:

14. i. JOHN b. about 1717 probably in Gloucester, N. J., m. 4-13-1763 Betty Woodnut at Warrington, York County, Pa.
(See "The Jones Family" by Russell for continuation of this line)
15. ii. JOSEPH (Probably moved to Fairfax, Va.)
16. iii. FRANCIS b. 6-20-1725 Chester County, Pa., m. Sarah Jane Jones (dt. Henry and Eleanor Parke-Lindley Jones)
See No. 24
17. iv. JAMES
18. v. SARAH
19. vi. RACHEL
20. vii. THOMAS
21. viii. SAMUEL

4. HENRY² JONES (*Francis*¹). When he was 15 his father moved to Jamestown near Haverfordwest in Pembrokeshire, South Wales, where they were members of the Redstone Monthly Meeting of Friends. At 18 his father moved to America where they were first received at the Philadelphia and Chester Monthly Meetings of Friends. When he was 22 his father moved near the Duck Creek meeting of Friends in Delaware. The Duck Creek meeting was near Smyrna. It was here that Henry married in 1716 when he was about 20 years old for the Duck Creek M.M. minutes state:

"Henry Jones and Loveday Archer having taken each other out of the unity of Friends brought in an acknowledgement which was accepted."

This would indicate that they had been married by a Justice or some other authority instead of by the Friends ceremony. On the 7th of the 9th mo. 1717 the birth of their son, George Jones, was recorded "son of Henry Jones and Loveday, his wife, dau. of George Archer, late of ye kingdome of England, deceased."

Loveday died soon after her first child was born for the same records (Del. K 5 F p. 8.78) say:

"Loveday Jones late wife of Henry Jones, departed this life ye 25th of ye 10th mo. 1707."

The later figure is, of course, intended for 1717 as the prior record shows her son George born in 1717 and she was present at a Friends wedding in 1715.

It is evident that some time after 1717 and prior to 1726 he moved with his brother Francis and possibly his father, Francis, Sr., near Newton or Haddonfield, N. J., across the river from Philadelphia. The name of his brother Francis appears in the Newton (N. J.) M.M. (near Camden) in 1719 and in Haddonfield (N. J.) M.M. in 1726 when he transferred to New Garden (Pa.) M.M. It may be assumed that Henry made similar moves at somewhat similar times. As previously mentioned part of the Duck Creek (Del.) M.M. records were lost which might have shown the record of his transfer.

After he moved (about 1726) to Leacock, Lancaster County, Pa. (which was then in the verge of the New Garden (Pa.) M.M.) he proposed to marry the widow, Eleanor (Parke) Lindley. She was a member of the New Garden (Pa.) M.M. and he evidently had not brought any transfer from Duck Creek or Haddonfield M.M. and they were across the river and not then easily accessible. But she could not marry him unless he was a Friend and their union approved by the Society of Friends. So he went back to the Chester (Pa.)

M.M. where he once belonged, that was near at hand, and asked for a transfer to New Garden, and under date of 7-28-1730 the Chester M.M. states: "Henry Jones produced acknowledgement for marriage out of meeting by justice (accepted) and requested certificate to New Garden M.M." The certificate was granted 8-26-1730.

What marriage out was Henry acknowledging? Not the proposed approaching marriage to Eleanor (Parke) Lindley for that was to be consummated in the Friends meeting. Was it his first marriage to Loveday Archer? He had already brought in such an acknowledgement to the Duck Creek (Del.) M.M. Did it refer to another marriage made after the death of Loveday in 1717 and before his marriage to Eleanor in 1730? Probably the Chester M.M. made inquiry concerning his prior marriage outside the meeting and he admitted to his marriage to Loveday by a Justice and they made him bring in a similar acknowledgement to them. His name did not appear in the Chester tax lists prior to 1730.

He produced the certificate from the Chester M.M. at the New Garden M.M. 8-31-1730 and on the same day declared his intention of marriage to Eleanor Lindley, widow of James Lindley of Londongrove Township.

The New Garden M.M. were evidently informed by him that he had lived in New Jersey and they were not inclined to grant his request merely on the transfer from the Chester M.M. so they appointed a committee consisting of Simon Hadley and Joseph Pennock "to make Enquiry concerning his Conversation when he lived in ye Jersey."

This committee reported at the next meeting that they were "hindered of getting over ye river to ye Jersey when they intended by ye wether & this meeting Considering he hath lived this several years in ye place where he now Dwels & ye accot Coming so Clear as it doth & he also producing some papiers from under the hands of several friends of ye Jersey which seems to Clear him of some Reports yt was on him there, so this meeting leaves them to their liberty" to complete their marriage.

On the "17th day of ye 10th month" in 1730 they were married and in the marriage certificate he is described as being of "Leacock Township in ye County of Lancaster." His second wife, Eleanor (Parke) Lindley, widow of James Lindley who died 10-13-1726, was b. 1-2-1684 in Ballyredman, Carlow, Ireland. She and her first husband were received at the Newark, N. J., Monthly Meeting from the Carlow (Ireland) Meeting 8-3-1713. She was the dt. of Robert and Margery Parke. Her first husband owned a considerable acreage north of Toughkenamon Hill. By her first marriage she had 13 children. At the time of her marriage to Henry she was 46 and he was 37.

Francis Jones, probably Henry's brother, seemed to be the only member of his family present at the wedding. She was described as being from Londongrove township in ye County of Chester, and it was, no doubt, at the Meeting where she resided that the ceremony was held. The ceremony is recorded in the minutes of the New Garden Monthly Meeting although it recites therein that they had declared their intentions of marriage before both the Londongrove and New Garden Meetings.

According to Albert Cook Myers writing in "Immigration of the Irish Quakers into Pennsylvania" the New Garden (Pa.) Meeting was named in remembrance of the New Garden Meeting in County Carlow, Ireland.

The New Garden (Pa.) Meeting took in the families living around New Garden, Nottingham, Londongrove, West Grove and even to Toughkenamon. It was originally carved out of the Newark (N. J.) M.M. in 1718 and its members were principally, if not entirely, in Chester County.

In 1737 the Meetings at Sadsbury and Leacock in Lancaster County, which had been a part of the New Garden M.M. were erected into a Sadsbury M.M. It could not be definitely said whether Henry went to live at her home in Londongrove or she went to live in Leacock as they were both in 1730 a part of the New Garden M.M.

However, the subsequent entries appear to support the view that he went to live at her plantation as they do not appear in the Sadsbury M.M. minutes after 1737 (when it was erected) but do appear in the New Garden M.M. minutes after 1737.

Their marriage certificate recorded in the New Garden minutes (Marriages R. S. 675 pp 69½) with the names of all the witnesses is as follows:

"Whereas Henery Jones of Leacock Township in ye County of Lancaster in ye province of Pensilvania And Eleanor Lindly of Londongrove township in ye County of Chester in ye province of Pensilvania aforesd having Declared their Intentions of Marriage with each other before several Monthly Meetings of ye Christian people called Quakers at Londongrove and at Newgarden both in ye County of Chester aforesd according to ye good order used among them and after Deliberate Consideration their sd proposale of Marriage was allowed by ye sd meetings:

For 9 to 12 years after their marriage they continued to live within the verge of the New Garden Monthly Meeting. From records now in Philadelphia it appears they obtained a certificate of transfer to the East Nottingham M.M. in 1739. Under date of 16th 3 mo. 1741 the East Nottingham M.M. states as follows:

"This Meetg hath received a Certificate from Newgarden Moly Meetg dated the 3 mo. 1739 recommending Henry Jones and Elinor, his wife, the members of their meetg. and their children to-wit: Geo. Jones, Eliz and Hannah Lindley, under the care of Friends and Clear of Meetg engagements which being read was received."

"6 mo. 15 day 1741. Bush River preparative meeting offers Henry Jones as overseer in the place of Thomas Litton for Deer Creek particular Meetg."

The East Nottingham M.M. was formerly a part of the New Garden M.M. until it acquired its separate identity in 1730. It was said to have been originally a part of the Nottingham M.M. which included the East and West Nottingham Meetings and the Bush River Meeting.

The meeting house of the East Nottingham M.M. is located at Calvert, Maryland. According to "Maryland" by the Federal Writer's Project Calvert may be reached by driving from Pennsylvania into the northeast portion of Maryland on U. S. Highway 1, and turning left on highway 273 two and one-half miles. Its present population is 75. It was founded in 1701 on one of the Nottingham lots which figured in the boundary dispute between Lord Baltimore and William Penn.

In 1702 during the accession of William and Mary in England, when Lord Baltimore fell in disfavor, Penn pushed his settlement southward to George Talbot's Susquehanna Manor grant and there laid out the 37 lots of 500 acres each under the name of Nottingham. Not until the Mason-Dixon line was run in 1765 was most of the territory restored to Maryland.

Calvert is near the Pennsylvania border in Cecil County, Maryland. It was first called Brick Meeting House. The old Friends meeting house still stands there and can be visited today on application to the sexton. One end is brick and the other of stone. There is a movable partition which can be used to divide the structure into two rooms. Plain benches, some of them without backs, bespeak the spirit of the Society, which still meets there four times a year.

The brick end was built in 1724 to replace a log structure built in 1709. The records of the Society since 1730 have been preserved.

In 1945 the sexton of the Friends Meeting House at Calvert carefully examined all the stones in the Friends burying ground there but found none with the name Jones on them.

South and east of Calvert about 10 miles is Elkton, Maryland, (pop. 3,331) on U. S. 40 three miles from the Delaware state line in the northeast corner of Maryland. It was originally patented as Friendship in 1681 and later was called Head of Elk. It was, no doubt, the city for which West Elkton, Ohio, was named, as the Jones family eventually settled there.

Although Henry and Eleanor Jones probably attended Monthly Meetings occasionally at Calvert, minutes of that meeting (East Nottingham) indicate that they were regular members of the Deer Creek Meeting that was a part of the East Nottingham M.M. This meeting (Deer Creek) was at Darlington in Harford County, Maryland, and it must have been near that village that Henry and Eleanor lived after 1741.

In 1748 Henry and Eleanor suddenly became under inquiry from the Friends Society when their daughter and her daughter by her former marriage both married contrary to the doctrine of the Friends Society. Under date of 6-20-1748 the East Nottingham M.M. records:

"The Bush River preparative Meeting informs this meeting that the daughter and step daughter of Henry Jones, that is to say, Hannah Lindley now Hooper, and Sarah Jones, are both married out of the unity of Friends to their first cousins by a Justice; this meeting therefore, according to the directions of the Yearly Meeting do appoint Isaac Webster and Richard Johns to draw up the Testimony against them and bring to next meeting, and make inquiry how the parents kept their places, respecting their said marriages and make report to the next Moly meeting."

East Nottingham M.M. subsequently records:

"28th day 7th mo 1748. That about drawing a Testimony against the Daughter of Henry Jones not being fully complied with and as the young man with whom Sarah was married was a member also of Deer Creek meeting viz: Francis Jones. Isaac Webster and Richard Johns are continued and James Lee added to them and this Meeting orders that the said Francis be included in the Testimony also, which they are directed to bring or send to next Moly Meeting."

"15th day 8th mo. 1748. The Friends apptd to see how Henry Jones kept his Place in Relation to his children's marriages having not made a clear report, They are Directed to Continue their care and Joseph Jones is added to them to report to next meeting whether they think he stands clear or not."

"25th day 11th mo 1748-9. The Friends apptd to inquire further into the clearness of Henry Jones concerning the marriages of his daughters do now report that he says he is clear and that they can't find anything by Enquiry to prove the contrary."

In 1751 Francis and Sarah brought in an acknowledgement to the Society which was received and ever after they were loyal members of the Friends Society.

The records of Harford County located in Bel Aire, Maryland, do not go back any further than 1773. Baltimore County, formed in 1659, included the present Harford and Cecil Counties. Cecil was established as a separate county in 1674 and 100 years later, in 1773-4, Harford was organized as a separate county, from which date its records at Bel Aire commence.

If the Jones family lived near Darlington after 1741 and until their removal to North Carolina sometime before 1768, they were probably residents of Baltimore County all during the time they lived in Maryland, although in that part that eventually became Harford County.

The first two county seats and county court houses of Baltimore County were located in the present Harford County limits. It was moved to Baltimore in 1748.

According to the "History of Harford County" by Preston (1901) "The first settlement of Friends in Harford is veiled with much obscurity, but there are reasons for concluding that they found their way here, shortly after their establishment of the adjacent colony of Pennsylvania, where Penn in his holy experiment "laid the foundation of a state with a government deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed" where not only the persecuted members of his own religious denomination should find a peaceful home, but the good and oppressed of all lands and every religious persuasion should find an asylum and the pure and peaceable principles of Christianity should be carried into practice. The enlightened statesmanship of the Lords Baltimore, and aside from the spirit of criticism, simply state the fact of history that what was granted as a "privilege" by them, was conceded as an "inalienable right," by Penn, which is the true ground and teaching of democracy in government, and always held and taught by Friends * * * "

The first authentic record now fixes the date of the establishment of the Deer Creek Meeting in 1736, held then as now at Darlington. It was a branch of the Bush River Meeting under the Nothingham M.M. On 9-29-1737 Nathan Righie conveyed 3½ acres, part of "Philips Purchase," to the trustee of the Quaker Meeting House at Deer Creek. (Liber H. W.S. I. A. 1, folios 17 and 18, Land Records of Baltimore County.)

The same history says that Harford County has been the home of many members of this faith, whose upright lives, and good words, have established lasting memorials. "From the beginning Friends have advocated a broad and liberal education and with their advent in any community the establishment of schools for the guarded education of youth has been a concern with them."

Recounting the customs and manners prior to the Revolution, it says there was much pretense to aristocracy and style and considerable wealth resided in the state. Hospitality was freely dispensed and a hearty welcome was given to everyone even if they were strangers.

Slavery was an established institution, although as a rule the slave owners were kind to their servants, and it was considered bad form to sell a slave. There were few libraries, and a man with a dozen books was considered quite a scholar. Newspapers were few and not in general circulation, and the people depended on the gossip of the day for their news, and often upon a political harangue, for their politics.

The great powers in politics of that early day were the schoolmaster, the lawyer and the doctor. The public school system did not exist, and the only schools were those in which a gentleman of means would employ a teacher for his children, and the boys and girls of the neighborhood would be invited to attend.

Stocks and pillories were in constant use, and the criminal code was more severe than now.

That part of Baltimore County that later became Harford County, was almost entirely an agricultural community. The plow was little used, except to break up new ground in the spring and to fallow in the fall. The chief farming implement was the hoe. It was then a great, clumsy lump of iron, often rudely made by the blacksmith on the plantation, not sharp but so made that it could not be broken.

Corn and tobacco were the chief crops. They were frequently shipped to England and the money from them used to buy clothing, manufactured articles and merchandise. Fox hunting and cock fighting were the most popular sports.

A doctor stood especially high in influence and popular esteem. There were no drug stores at the time and the doctor with his mortar and pestle daily pounded out his own drugs. Great quantities of medicines were taken in those days — more even by the well than is given to the sick now. Large doses of calomel and rhubarb had to be taken each spring, and nauseating combinations of senna and molasses were taken daily by many. The patient with a raging fever was denied water.

So much mercurial compounds was taken that the lips turned blue and gums fell away from the teeth. It was quite common to cup and leech.

Quinine as a cure for fever and malaria was not discovered until 1820 and cinchona bark, which was scarce and expensive, was used. Vaccination was then unknown and smallpox was frequent and fatal.

In every home was a spinning wheel on which the housewife and her daughters did the weaving of material used for clothing and around the open fire in winter their deft fingers plied the knitting needles. Furniture was of the simplest kind and stoves were unknown. Candles or the roaring fires were the only illumination for the houses. Sewing machines, kerosene lamps and hundreds of modern conveniences had not come into use. Travelling was done on horseback or in lumbering vehicles, and visits along the water were made in boats.

When Henry and Eleanor first moved to Darlington in 1739 or 1741 their son, George, was then about 22 or 25 and was married there in 1741 or 1742 to his wife, Elizabeth, as will hereinafter be set forth in some greater detail. George and Elizabeth's son Henry who married Kezia Hixon (also spelled Hickson) was born there in Maryland (or possibly in England, when George, his father, took his family there on business). Probably Henry and Eleanor died in Maryland. Possibly their son George and his wife, Elizabeth, did also, for our next definite trace of the family is found in the minutes of the Cane Creek M.M. in North Carolina when Henry, husband of Kezia, was taken into membership there 10-1-1768.

To determine, if possible, the place and time of death of the older generations, a search was made of the Deer Creek burying ground near Darlington by Mrs. La Verne Hill Forbush, a Baltimore genealogist. Writing under date of April 22, 1946, she stated that she carefully went over the grave stones there and found none with Jones or Hickson on them. There are, of course, she wrote, dozens of unmarked graves. Evidence again of the early prejudice of the Friends against marking graves.

The Nottingham (Pa.) M.M. of which Deer Creek (Md.) Meeting was a part, shows in its records that Francis Jones and wife received a certificate from Nottingham M.M. to Cane Creek (N.C.) M.M. 9-28-1745. This must be intended for 1755 as the Cane Creek Meeting is said not to have been created until 1751 and they were mentioned in the East Nottingham M.M. in 1751.

This was probably Francis³ Jones, son of Francis and Jane Medcalf Jones, who married Sarah Jane (Jones) Jones, daughter of Henry and Eleanor Lindley Jones. They would have been half uncle and aunt of Henry Jones, husband of Kezia Hickson Jones as will be mentioned in more detail hereafter. They were probably the first to leave the East Nottingham M.M. and their residence in Maryland for North Carolina. They were received at the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. 3-8-1755 with their two oldest children who were said to each have been born in Baltimore County, Maryland, in 1752 and 1753.

Previous to 1739 conflicts had arisen between the State of Pennsylvania and the State of Maryland relative to their boundaries and the disputed territory must have been close to, if not included in, the land at Darlington where the Joneses moved in 1741. Armed bands had advanced on each other, the sheriff of Lancaster County, Pa., and the sheriff of Baltimore County, Md., had each attempted to assert authority. Settlers were arrested and harassed. Prisoners of one sheriff were forcibly freed by those claiming he had no authority.

At last the King by an order in council dated 18 Aug. 1737 ordered the Governors of Pennsylvania and Maryland to put a stop to such disorders on pain of His Majesty's highest displeasure. As a result an agreement was reached between the states for a temporary or provisional line, subject to later final adjustment. This agreement terminated the bitter conflicts that had been raging and, no doubt, was an important factor in encouraging the Jones family to move into this territory where development and settlement had been retarded by the former hostilities.

Being fundamentally people of peace and friendliness it would have been their natural inclination to live where they would be free from civil conflicts. This would have seemed assured to them after the agreement between Pennsylvania and Maryland made in 1738, and probably caused them to move near Darlington in 1739 or 1741. And as will appear, it may have been a contributing reason that prompted Henry and Kezia and his half uncle and aunt, Francis and Sarah, to move from Maryland to North Carolina after a residence there of twenty or thirty years.

The early records of Nottingham and Deer Creek meetings are said to mention Henry Jones and daughter Rachel; Joseph Jones who m. Lukens; Isaac Jones, Isaac Jones Jr. and Ann Jones; Anny Jones who m. Joseph Ely; Isaac Jones who m. Elizabeth Walton and had ch: Thomas, Asa, John, and Mary. Also mentioned were Ezekiel, Rebecca,, Anthony, Samuel, and Lydia Jones (dt. of Joseph). Mary was b. 1796. John m. Debora Tomkins.

It is possible and probable that they were relatives. We have no record of our ancestors who were named Henry having a daughter named Rachel so it would appear that there was another Henry Jones residing in the verge of the Deer Creek meeting at that time, or that Rachel was a daughter concerning whom no other record has been found.

The war between Britain and France had been raging previous to 1749, known to us as the French and Indian War. It was supposed to have terminated in 1749 by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, but colonial trouble with the French and Indians seemed to continue for the British in America. Bands of Indians made repeated forays into Frederick County, Maryland, burning houses and killing the inhabitants. This must have been somewhat near the Jones family in nearby Baltimore County.

General Braddock was dispatched by the King to quell these invaders but on the 9th of July 1755 he was disastrously defeated and Col. Dunbar with the remainder of the British army retreated to Philadelphia with the result that the northern and western boundaries of Maryland were thrown open to the Indians. In great alarm many of the inhabitants of the western settlements fled to Baltimore, where preparations for defense were being made. A great log wall was built about the city and it was planned to place the women and children aboard vessels in the harbor and send them to Virginia.

In September of that year, following the Monongahela disaster, the country to a distance of 35 miles east from the south branch of the Potomac was completely deserted. Governor Sharpe writing to Lord Calvert at the time said that "one could foretell without the spirit of prophecy that all that part of Frederick County that lies beyond Frederick Town will be abandoned before this time 12th month at farthest."

That fall the city of Baltimore raised funds for ammunition and an army of volunteers. At that time slaughter and devastation occurred in the western part of the province (state) but the marauders never reached Baltimore. During the winter and spring of 1756 they continued to overrun the western section of the province of Maryland and actually approached as close as thirty miles from Baltimore.

At length France and Britain abandoned all pretense of peace and war was formally declared 17 May 1756. This seemed to arouse the Indians to a still greater degree of fury during the succeeding months but danger to Maryland was considered over with the capture of Fort Du Quesne in the latter part of 1758.

It is easy to see, with these battles between the French and Indians on one side and the British and many colonists on the other, raging about them, the Quakers of Maryland considered North Carolina a haven of peace and quiet. We know that Francis and Sarah left about this time (1755). Possibly Henry and Kezia left at that time also, but he was not received into membership at the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. until 1768.

The Nottingham (Pa.) M.M. under date of 7-22-1750 disowned a Henry Jones of the Deer Creek (Md.) meeting on complaint from the Bush River meeting. This could not have been Henry, husband of Kezia, as he would have been only about eight years old at the time. It might have been Henry, husband of Eleanor, as he then would have been about 57. Was it the unknown Henry Jones previously mentioned who had a daughter Rachel? Was it Henry Jones, son of Samuel and Hannah Lloyd Jones? He would have been 23 years old. But they were not known to have moved to Maryland.

In an effort to locate the Bush River meeting minutes we were advised by Mrs. Forbus. That there were no separate minutes of Bush River as it was only a preparative meeting and there were no records from it except as they might be reported in the Nottingham M.M. She stated that there were two preparative meetings in the Baltimore Yearly Meeting having very similar names: Bush River about 10 miles south of the Deer Creek Meeting near an arm of Chesapeake Bay and Bush Creek in Frederick County near New Market. In 1754 Bush River and Deer Creek began holding meetings together at Deer Creek. It appears that Deer Creek eventually absorbed Bush River for it is not listed as a preparative meeting after 1805.

Was our Henry, husband of Eleanor, still living at Deer Creek in 1750? Had he moved to Philadelphia or did he move there after being disowned by the Friends? Was our Henry Jones the Henry Jones who entered a "caveat" in Pennsylvania against granting a patent to Samuel Culbertson for a tract of land in Hopewell township, Lancaster (now Cumberland) County, Pennsylvania, surveyed to Gustavus Henderson in pursuance of property warrant dated 10-10-1750? He was then described as being of Philadelphia, still owning land in Lancaster County.

The fact that Henry Jones was a very common name makes it difficult to positively identify our ancestor in those early years. It is possible that he, too, went to North Carolina with the members of the family that removed to that state, and may have spent his last years there, but there is no record of it.

(dt. Henry and Eleanor Parke-Lindley Jones). In 1739 her parents transferred from the New Garden M.M. to East Nottingham (Pa.) M.M. where they were received in 1741. See No. 23.

As previously mentioned, under date of 20th of 6th mo. 1748 the Deer Creek (Md.) division of the East Nottingham (Pa.) M.M. reported that "the daughter and step daughter of Henry Jones, that is to say, Hannah Lindley and Sarah Jones, are both married out of unity of Friends to their first cousins." Action by the Society of Friends is recounted herein under the history of Henry² Jones.

About three years later Sarah and Francis brought to the Friends meeting a letter of repentance which appears on the East Nottingham M.M. records as follows:

"28th day 7th mo. 1751. Whereas we the subscribers sometime ago did transgress the wholesome rules of our discipline so as to marrie each other being first consins, out of the unity of friends, for which we were justly disowned without further dealing with. Now from a True Sense of our misconduct we acknowledge the judgment of friends to be just and are sorry that we gave the occasion as witness our hands.

Francis Jones
Sarah Jones

"The above is received as their future conversation do appear correspondent."

In 1755 Francis and Sarah moved to the Cane Creek M.M. in North Carolina where they were Friends in good standing again, and during the rest of their lives they were faithful, loyal and unceasing workers for the society. In 1773 they transferred to the Bush River (S.C.) M.M., probably the one nearest their new home in Georgia, where they later became original members of the Wrightsborough (Ga.) M.M. in Columbia (now McDuffie) County in 1774.

The Journal of the Augusta (Ga.) Land Court of Jan. 13, 1774 states that Francis Jones came to Georgia bringing a wife, 6 sons and 6 daughters from one year to twenty years old. He was granted a tract of 200 acres between one Nichols and one Burke . . . on a branch of the . . . Frk of Little River on ye south side for which he deposited £ 4 12 s 4 d and the same was reserved for six months. The plat on which this land is shown is on file in the office of the Secretary of State in Atlanta, Ga., in plat book C #270.

After her death in Georgia in 1801 Francis transferred to Preble County, Ohio, where so many of the family had gone. He died there. His will is in the Probate Court at Eaton, Ohio, where it was probated in 1814. He devised "half of the 500 acre tract which I own in Jackson County, Ga., to my son Henry."

Mrs. Clark Jones of Arrowsmith, Ill., whose daughter lived near Sturgis, Michigan, in 1944, was a daughter-in-law of Newton Jones, son of Francis and Sarah Jane Jones. In writing of his trip from Georgia to Ohio she says:

" . . . a company of 40 families started across the country to Ohio. They crossed the Ohio River at Cincinnati June 12, 1805. The town then consisted of one brick store, one frame building and a few log cabins. Francis Jones (b. 1725) who was then 80 years old was carried through the Cherokee Nation by the Indians. They called him "one of Penn's men" on account of his Quaker garb, and said he was too old to walk. They were never troubled by Indians, while their neighbors were greatly annoyed for several years."

Under date of Oct. 20, 1907, Martha J. Mote of Richmond, Ind., wrote to Gilbert Cope, Philadelphia historian and genealogist, stating the Jones family came to Philadelphia from Wales, that Francis and Sarah Jones had the following children: Samuel, Henry, Joseph, Thomas, John, Mary, Deborah, Sarah, Jane and Hannah Jones. She said that she thought they were descendants of Sarah Newton. She further said that Francis moved to Maryland, then to Columbia Co., Ga., and then to Miami Co., Ohio. She thought that some of his children were born in Maryland. She wrote, "I find in Carolina records Henry and Elinder Jones in 1725 (?). Who are they?"

Children (the two eldest b. Baltimore Co., Md., the two youngest b. in Columbia Co., Ga., and the remainder in Orange Co., N. C.):

A copy is owned by Mrs. Harriette Miles Odell of 328 Woodlawn Ave., Topeka, Kans. The following was written by Jesse Jones for the History of Miami Co., Ohio:

"Samuel Jones (1755-1836) came from Columbia County, Ga., and settled here in the year 1805. About the first of June two teams, one drawn by four, the other by two horses, reached the place of their destination, with his household goods, having staid the previous night at the house of his brother-in-law. The place selected for their residence was about one-half mile west of Stillwater and nearly two miles south of Milton in Section 9, on the hawk of a most romantic glen, full forty feet in depth which still remains unclaimed from the forest. The family consisted of 7 sons and 4 daughters. They first felled a large white oak. While some were sawing off broad cuts, others were riming them; others were cutting forks and poles and putting up the tent frame. Before night they had it covered and weatherboarded on three side. The south end being left open, a small cook tent joined."

22. GEORGE³ JONES (*Francis*¹, *Henry*²). His birth is recorded in the minutes of the Duck Creek (Del.) M.M. the 7th of the 9th mo. 1717. As his mother, Loveday Archer Jones, died just about a month after his birth, his father was left to care for him alone. It is not known what assistance he had, if any, in the care of the baby. Sometime after his birth, his father moved back to Pennsylvania, for in 1730 he was a member of the Chester (Pa.) M.M. and said to be a resident of Leacock Township, Lancaster County. That was the year his father married his step-mother. He was then 13 years of age, and probably moved to his step-mother's plantation in London Grove Township where they were members of the New Garden (Pa.) M.M. As his step-mother had 13 children by her first husband, George acquired a considerable number of new brothers and sisters.

His father and step-mother moved to the present Harford County, Maryland, in 1739 or 1741 when he was 22 or 24 and he was evidently still one of the household for the East Nottingham (Pa.) M.M. through its Deer Creek (Md.) division reports in its minutes as follows:

(Page 170) "1742-9-16 George Jones and Elizabeth, his wife, having been married by a priest, though they were defended by Believing Parents — gave paper of Condemnation."

We are unable to find any definite record of Elizabeth's maiden name. In "The Family of Charles Allen of Morgan County, Indiana" (1931) it is recorded that Zachariah Allen, son of John Allen, married Lavinia Jones, daughter of George Jones, who married a Lindley.

Because of this statement and because the dates are so appropriate we are inclined to believe that George Jones (b. 1717) was married 1742, to his step-sister, Elizabeth Lindley. Possibly, the Friends refused to approve his marriage because it was to his step-sister, so they were married by a preacher of some other faith (all of whom were then described as "priests" by Quakers) and defended in it by their good Quaker parents because these marrying children were actually no blood relation to each other and entitled to be married if they so wished.

If this were true, George and Elizabeth had a child, not herein recorded, named Lavinia (sister of Henry) who m. Zachariah Allen and their children were:

1. SUSANNA
2. GEORGE
3. ELIZABETH
4. WILLIAM b. 10-1768, m. Jane Hobson b. 2-3-1774 (dt. of Charles and Sarah Beck Hobson) a sister of Lydia Hobson Jones (No. 113)
5. JAMES
6. LAVINIA JR.
7. ZACHARIAH JR. (There are many Allens in the Holly Spring (N.C.) M.M.Minutes)

Charles Allen (s. of William and Jane Hobson Allen) m. Sarah Jones (dt. Evan and Hannah Reddick Jones).

Elizabeth Parke Lindley Jones b. 1-2-1684, according to the Carlow M.M. Ballyredman County, Ire., had the following sister and brothers:

1. MARTHA b. 12-3-1686
2. ROBERT JR. b. 8-13-1688
3. WILLIAM b. 10-11-1690
4. THOMAS b. 11-20-1694

The children of James and Eleanor Parke Lindley were:

1. THOMAS b. 2-25-1706
2. RACHEL b. 5-11-1707
3. JAMES JR. b. 4-30-1709
4. MARGERY
5. ROBERT b. 4-22-1712
6. WILLIAM b. 12-20-1714
7. ALICE b. 2-25-1716
8. JONATHAN b. 3-11-1719, m. Deborah Halliday
9. ELIZABETH b. 8-4-1720
10. HANNAH b. 1-11-1723, m. ----- Hooper
11. ELEANOR b. 1-11-1727

Thomas, James and Jonathan seem to have moved from New Garden (Pa.) to Cane Creek and Spring (N. C.) M.M. between 1753 and 1780 (Hinshaw Vol. 1, pages 404 and 449).

At the same meeting to which George brought the condemnation of his marriage by a priest he also requested a letter of recommendation to Friends in Great Britain for the record further says:

"and this meeting hath sign'd the sd George Jones a few lines by way of certificate to Friends in Great Britain he intending to transport himself there on account of his Temporal affairs."

He was then about 25, not long married and probably ambitious to advance financially. Many of the monied men of the day were engaged in trading with the mother country, and he may have wished to try his hand at buying or selling across the sea. His father and grandfather, who had come to this country, were both born in Great Britain and he must have had a natural longing to see the land of their birth, of which they had probably often spoken.

It is also possible that he went back to try to claim the family fortune which tradition says was left in the old country. In any event he must have failed to make proper report to the Friends Society when he returned, for page 230 of the Deer Creek meeting says:

1745-11-18 "George Jones having had a certificate from this meeting some time ago to cross the sea — But Never Returned the said certificate nor no other in answer though he went the voyage — was death with."

The spaces of these entries would indicate that he was in Great Britain a considerable time as there was over three years between the record of his going and the record of his return. George made answer to these charges as shown on page 232:

"George Jones appeared at this meeting and says He never gave in that certificate to Friends in England and have Lost it. He is therefore informed that he must take the best care he can to get Credentials from friends with whom he conversed in England with what a good Conduct in future may be Some Relief So the Business is referred to give some opportunity to Perfect the Same."

This may have been too difficult a requirement for George, or he may have felt he was too harshly dealt with, or he may have gone with others of the family to North Carolina without asking for a letter of removal to the North Carolina meeting. At least, there is no record of his removal from the church, and, in fact, no further record of him.

According to Water's "Genealogical Gleanings in England," Vol 1, page 149, the will of George Jones was probated in Philadelphia in 1751 (Book 1, page 404). Although the will speaks of going overseas to Great Britain 9-22-1743, which was about the same time our George went to Great Britain, he bequeaths his property to his widowed sister, Elizabeth Clay. If it was our George Jones he would have died at 34, and that would be rather young to have had a widowed sister, and it would seem that he would have mentioned his wife, Elizabeth, and their son Henry if it had been our George Jones.

Whether he stayed in Maryland or went with those who moved to North Carolina is not definitely known, but it seems a reasonable possibility that he was one of the two George Jones families listed as living near each other in Chatham County, North Carolina, in the census of 1790. The other George Jones would have been his grandson. He would have been about 73 at the time.

Child of George Jones, probably born near Darlington, Maryland:

51. i. Henry b. about 1742 (He may have been born in England where his father had gone on business)

The following letter, now in the possession of Mary Boner of Camden, Ohio, was written by Francis Jones of Ohio to Newton Jones and wife of Wrightsborough, Ga., 9-24-1804:

"Respected Uncle and Aunt:

I embrace this opportunity to inform you we are well — in reasonable state of health. We had a tiresome journey (to Ohio). We found the roads difficult in many places so that we barely could pass but we got along without having the second pull and if you undertook to come here let your team be well proved and your loading as light as possible. Little wheels can be bought as cheap here as there. Crockery ware and glassware can be had as cheap. I swapped my bay on the banks of the Nohchuncky and got a mare never doubled. I have killed 3 deer and 15 hogs and 3 coons and 1 fox. Father has killed one bear. Uncle William one. Jesse one bear. Game is middling plentiful. I have bought me a cow for 12 dollars. Cotton is one shilling and 9 pence a pound. Plenty at that. I have nothing further to write so I conclude, we remain, your cousin,

Francis Jones

He was received at the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. 10-1-1768 probably as a new member as it does not state that he was received on certificate from some other meeting. The Cane Creek meeting was organized in 1751 and is now located near Snow Camp 15 miles south of Graham in Alamance County. The county line is a short distance south of the meeting house and many members resided in the neighboring county of Chatham.

In its earliest years the Indians lived about it. During the Revolutionary War it served as a hospital for soldiers under the command of General Cornwallis. It survived the war between the states, and even today is an active Friends meeting.

In order to check the markers in the burial ground there inquiry was directed to the minister of the meeting and under date of 3-24-1945 Elbert D. Newlin, minister of the Cane Creek meeting, wrote:

"I personally looked over the cemetery somewhat and cannot locate any markers with Jones on them. Then I have talked to some who have the cemetery in charge and they don't think any Jones graves are marked.

"As you know, this is an old cemetery, the meeting here was established in 1751, and the burying ground is not kept in very good shape, also many are buried here with no marker to their grave.

"Some think some Joneses are buried at nearby Rock River Friends Church."

According to historians, after the custom of not marking graves was eventually brought to an end by the Friends, the first ones erected were never over 18 inches high.

It is probable that the Joneses did not attend the Cane Creek church and their records from the Rocky River preparative meeting nearby merely cleared through the Cane Creek M.M. Rev. James G. Pike of the Rocky River Friends meeting, R. F. D., Siler City, N. C., writing in 1945 said that there were both Hobsons and Joneses in their church burying ground, but the only Jones markers were:

"James T. Jones b. 8-26-1873, age 43 yrs."

"A. P. Jones b. 2-20-1869, age 42 yrs."

The spring following Henry's admittance to the Friends Society, viz: 3-4-1769, his wife, Kezia, was also received as a member of the same monthly meeting together with her first child, Elizabeth, b. 9-26-1768. We are left only to conjecture as to why he and she were not both received at the same time. It is, of course, possible that she merely decided to join later, or she may have been waiting in Maryland or elsewhere for her husband to prepare their new home in North Carolina, to which she came the following spring. However, it seems most plausible that it was the birth of her first child that made her admittance to the church later than that of her husband, for the record of his being received in membership is only four days after their first child was born. The church minutes state: "Kezia Jones, the wife of Henry Jones, having been under the care of this preparative meeting sometime, now requests to come into membership with her child which this meeting receives as such."

It seems logical to believe that Henry was born near Darlington, Maryland, about 1742. When Friends married out of unity as Henry's parents did, the record of their marriage usually appears some months after the ceremony took place. As the Deer Creek (Md.) meeting records them bringing in a letter of condemnation for being married by a priest on 9-16-1742, their marriage took place some time prior to that date, and Henry was probably born in 1742 or 1743, if he was their first child.

The Hickson Family

We could not find the record of Henry's marriage to Kezia Hickson, and for some time after this compilation was started, her maiden name was not even known. In January 1946, while inspecting old papers in the possession of a Mrs. Bernhart, formerly head librarian of the Richmond, Indiana, library, and a granddaughter of Jesse Stubbs, son of Mary Jones Stubbs, daughter of Francis and Sarah Jones Jones, Roger A. Stubbs found a notation concerning the Hickson family.

It indicated that the first Hickson (sometimes spelled Hixon and Hixson) of this family to come to America was of German descent but lived in Ireland prior to his sailing for America. It further stated that his daughter married a Jones, father of George and William Jones of Elk. This must have been Kezia who married our Henry Jones of West Elkton, Ohio, where the Elk M.M. was located. They were parents of George and William Jones who lived at West Elkton (Elk).

It erroneously stated that another daughter married William Gifford. It should have said a granddaughter as it was Kezia Jones, daughter of Henry and Kezia Hickson Jones, who married William Gifford. The early unnamed Hickson progenitor was said to have had a son, John, brother of Kezia Hickson Jones, who was killed by "Revolutionists" in Georgia. After his death his widow, Mary Mooney Hickson, m. Samuel Brown out of unity and was dis. by Wrightsborough (Ga.) M.M. The children of John and Mary Mooney Hickson were:

1. Kezia (named after her aunt Kezia Hickson Jones?) d. before 1805 in Ga., m. Wilkes County, Ga., 7-8-1799, Joseph Stubbs (s. John and Esther Maddock Stubbs).

2. William b. 12-25-1776 (shortly after the death of his father) m. Rachel Stubbs (dt. John and Esther Maddock Stubbs). He was not a Quaker at the time of his marriage but later became one and was a leader in the Hicksite secession at West Elkton, Ohio., in 1827.

Roger A. Stubbs believes that Kezia Hickson Jones was the daughter of William and Sarah Hickson, because her two oldest children were named Elizabeth and George after the parents of her husband, Henry Jones, and their next two children were named William and Sarah after her parents "as was the custom of the day."

Vol. 10, page 816, of "Colonial Records of Georgia" by Chandler states that the Savannah Council Chamber read a petition from William Hickson and others setting forth that they were desirous to obtain land outside the Reserve for Quakers in Wrightsborough, being some of them of that profession and others approved by them to become settlers there, and that they have severally proved their family rights as by certificate produced would appear, therefore praying for the several tracts agreeable to their families. In the following list appeared the name of William Hickson 400 acres 7-4-1769.

Vol 11, page 86, of the same publication shows that the Savannah Council granted William Hickson lot No. 30 in Wrightsborough 8-7-1770.

In Vol 2 on page 245 of the "Georgia D. A. R. Collection" by Davidson are shown the court records of Richmond County where it appears that John Hickson deeded 4-28-1774 to William Chandler (both of St.

Paul's Parish (Wrightsborough)) the same lot number 30 that was deeded to William Hickson in 1770. Possibly this John Hickson was Kezia Hickson Jones' brother, and William her father.

In the same volume on page 93 Timothy Hickson, planter, is shown deceased. On 7-15-1783 Agnes Peritt was appointed administratrix of his estate. Kezia Hickson Jones was said to have had a brother Timothy.

The Colonial Records of North Carolina, Vol. 4, page 519, show that a William Hickson was a juror in Pasquotank County 2-25-1739. According to Vol. 22 of the same records, page 249, William Hickson was appointed executor of John Brothers 707 acres "currency 7 for 1" 12-8-1744. He was in "arrears for quit rents" in 1735.

The Pasquotank Quaker records are mostly unpublished and are in the North Carolina Historical Commission at Raleigh. They have not been searched.

There was a William Hixon who lived in Nottingham Township, Burlington County, N. J., and was a constable there in 1694. His will was dated 1722 and he left ch: John, Joseph, Benjamin, Priscilla and "Daughters." He lived near the Chesterfield meeting of Friends but does not seem to have been a member. There were no Hicksons in the New Garden (Pa.) Friends records.

The book "Notable Southern Families - Hixson of Tennessee" gives descendants of Joseph and Susannah Hixon who were early settlers of Greene County, N. C. (now Greene County, Tenn.) Their children: Andrew, William, Timothy, Joseph, Ephraim, John, Susannah, Davis, Benjamin and James. They lived there as early as 1789.

The Bernhart data heretofore referred to included a letter from Dr. S. O. Barwick of Elkhart, Indiana, dated 9-15-1915, addressed to Atty. Lewis Stubbs (son of Jesse) saying that he was working on a Hickson Genealogy. He is now deceased but is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Bertha Lurchert of 226 Hickory Street in Elkhart.

The Hicksons in the Revolutionary War were: Virginia: Timothy, James, Elijah, John, James, William and Benjamin. New Jersey: Joseph and Abner. North Carolina: Corbin and Timothy.

The above Hickson data does not definitely connect the Hicksons mentioned with our Kezia Hickson Jones, except as to her brothers. It is included here with the hope that it may assist those who may later attempt to trace the Hickson lineage.

Disagreement of Authorities

There seems to be considerable difference between historical authorities as to the place our Jones ancestors lived previous to the time they lived in North Carolina, and it is the answer to this possible disagreement that tends to confirm the fact that our Henry Jones, son of George and Elizabeth Jones, was the son of the George and Elizabeth Jones who were married at Darlington, Maryland, about 1742.

The histories of Cass County, Michigan, indicate that the first representative of our family in America emigrated from England or Wales to North Carolina. The Preble County, Ohio, history definitely says that they formerly lived in Pennsylvania and were members of a group of Friends who left Pennsylvania just prior to the Revolutionary War for what was then considered the more peaceful territory of North Carolina.

In this connection it is well to remember that the Joneses in Maryland to whom we seek to connect our Henry Jones, husband of Kezia, were members of the Nottingham (Pa.) M.M. by reason of their membership in the Deer Creek meeting in Maryland and although actually across the line in the Maryland of today, the part of Maryland in which they lived was then considered a part of Pennsylvania and until 1765 when the running of the Mason-Dixon line restored it to Maryland.

In presenting their account of it the Cass County history of 1875 referred to Henry as "the grandfather of the present generation" who emigrated from England about the middle of the 18th century and settled in North Carolina.

The Berrien and Cass County History of 1893 says that Henry's father, George, was of Welsh extraction and "came to this country at a very early period." In another portion of the same history it states that Henry, husband of Kezia (without naming him), was born in Wales and emigrated to America in colonial days and located in South Carolina. It erroneously states that their names were George and Jane Jones, instead of Henry and Kezia. No doubt a confusion with Henry's father whose name was George.

The Cass County history of 1906 says, "The family is of Welsh descent, but the first representatives of the name in America came from England to the new world." And says of George W. Jones (1824-1896) that he "comes of Welsh extraction on the paternal side, his great, great grandfather having left that country for this at a very early period." It is the author's belief that this referred to George Jones, husband of Elizabeth, b. Little Creek, Del., 1717.

Here is, indeed, considerable disagreement between the various Cass County histories themselves.

The Preble County, Ohio, history in referring to their version of the matter says:

"The southern part of the township was settled by a large colony of Friends who came from the Carolinas and Georgia. The families of Stubbs, Jones, and Maddocks, formed a large part of the number. They were originally from Pennsylvania. From there they moved to North and South Carolina, and from these later states to Georgia."

It further says, "Among the emigrants (from Pennsylvania to North Carolina) were members of the Stubbs, Jones and other families who afterward became identified with the Elkton (Ohio) settlement. These colonists settled in Guilford County, N. C. While here William Gifford was married to Kezia Jones, daughter of William Jones, one of the emigrants from Pennsylvania."

Although they incorrectly gave his first name as William instead of Henry in the version last above, we definitely know that Kezia Jones Gifford was the daughter of Henry and Kezia Hickson Jones, so they as much as say that he was originally from Pennsylvania. This would place our Henry Jones back in that part of Maryland then considered as a part of Pennsylvania with George and Elizabeth Jones and other Friends before the time he removed to North Carolina.

In favor of the Ohio history's account it may be said that the family lived in Ohio many years before they moved to Michigan, and the records that remained in Ohio and the memories of older persons who remained in Ohio may have given the more accurate version of their former residences.

Roger A. Stubbs suggests that both may have been more or less right and that Henry, husband of Kezia, may have been born in Great Britain about 1743 for the records of the Nottingham (Pa.) M.M. show that his father, George Jones, obtained a certificate to go to Great Britain on business in 1742 and was under dealing after he came back from England in 1745 for not returning the certificate. Possibly Henry was born in England when his father visited there, and returned with his parents in 1745, thus being both from England and an emigrant from Pennsylvania.

Henry's Constant Neighbor

Another fact tending to establish Henry's connection with the Joneses from Darlington, Maryland (formerly Pennsylvania), was his almost life long association with another family named Jones who we definitely know were from the Nottingham (Pa.) M.M., of which the Deer Creek meeting at Darlington, Md., was a part.

The records of the Friends in the Carolinas and Georgia disclose various persons and families named Jones but one family more than any other seems closely associated with Henry and Kezia. They were Francis Jones and his wife, Sarah Jones Jones, who were received in membership at the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. in 1755. This was the same Monthly Meeting in North Carolina where we have our first definite trace of Henry, the husband of Kezia.

Although Henry joined this meeting some years after Francis and Sarah did, their subsequent locations and movements to far distant points were nearly similar and simultaneous.

Both families were granted certificates to the Bush River (S. C.) M.M. on the same day in 1772. Both families were received at the Bush River meeting the same day in 1773. Both families were present at the first meeting of the Wrightsborough (Ga.) M.M. in 1774 and later both Henry and Francis were named as two of the trustees of the meeting house at Wrightsborough.

Francis was present at Henry's second marriage at Spring (N. C.) M.M. in 1796 and although the two families lived near each other so many years none of the children intermarried, indicating a family relationship. Many years later Tabettha Stubbs, granddaughter of Francis, did marry William Jones, the grandson of Henry and Kezia.

Five of the children in Henry's family had the same given names as five of the children in the Francis Jones family. Also one of the children of Francis and Sarah was named Henry and one of the children of Henry and Kezia was named Sarah.

Although Henry and Kezia returned to North Carolina while Francis and Sarah remained in Georgia in 1784 they were eventually reunited again when (after the death of Sarah in Georgia) Francis moved to Preble County, Ohio, where Henry and his second wife, Prudence, moved in 1807.

From all the above it would seem that our Henry was related to the Francis Jones family who were their neighbors in the south so many years. Francis and Sarah were about 10 or 15 years older than Henry according to our previously detailed statistics, and she was Henry's half aunt and he was Henry's second cousin.

Henry Was a Little Giant

It seems confirmed by family tradition that more of the Joneses were large and well developed than were of small and slight physiques. Miss Shirley Ward, who discovered in California the lost Nathan Jones descendants, writing of her interview with one says, she believed "that the Joneses were of a superior race — all the women beautiful, refined, and wonderful housekeepers, cooks, seamstresses and artists in whatever they did, and all the men big framed, strong and energetic — pioneer builders."

This tendency among the men may have had its inception with Henry, the husband of Kezia, or possibly with his ancestors, for the "memoirs" of his grandson, Henry Stubbs, the son of Elizabeth Jones Stubbs (1768-1828), written May 20, 1878, says of him:

"My grandfather, Henry Jones, was a Welshman, perhaps five feet and five or six inches tall, weighing over 300 pounds, a low, heavy built man."

Through the succeeding generations the Joneses seem to have been much taller, generally the men approaching six feet and somewhat less heavy than Henry. The author's father weighed in the neighborhood of 250 pounds in his later years and was nearly six feet tall.

Where He Lived

When Henry and Kezia Jones first came to North Carolina, if they resided in the verge of the Cane Creek M.M. they were probably residents of Orange County, which was formed in 1751. If they lived in the same neighborhood during the years from his admission to membership in the Friends Church at Cane Creek in 1768 until they left for Georgia in 1772, that they did when they returned to North Carolina in 1784, then they were residents of that part of Orange County that later became Chatham County, although Henry's son George purchased land in Guilford County just over the Orange County line.

From the original Orange County various other counties were eventually carved: Chatham and Guilford in 1770, in an effort to better control the revolting "Regulators" and Alamance in 1848. Randolph was carved from Guilford County in 1779.

The "History of Guilford County" by Stockard probably describes the people, their life and customs during those early days, not only for Guilford County, but for the entire community embraced in the original Orange County.

This history says that the earliest settlers were English Quakers, Scotch-Irish and Germans. One band of Scotch-Irish came from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and a group called the Nottingham Company from Pennsylvania purchased 21,000 acres on the Buffalo and Reedy Forks Creeks. Most of the Scotch-Irish were Presbyterians. The Pennsylvania Quakers were reinforced by another group of Friends from Nantucket.

Both these religious groups had suffered religious persecution and were both impelled by the same purpose: to gain for themselves new homes and freedom to worship as they chose. But in early North Carolina they did not mingle much or inter-marry. (Probably because the Friends did not favor marriages outside their own membership.) Although the historian says their whole modus vivendi was the opposite of the other.

History further records that these Quakers did not live in crude log cabins. Many of them had comfortable homes, hip-roofed with dormer windows such as they knew in England, built of brick or frame material. They had wealth; they loved beauty. They worked continually, stirring from four o'clock in the morning until late at night. Industry led at length to luxury and plenty. They were pastoral and agricultural people such as good living never spoils, but on the contrary develops in them spirit and energy. Many were skilled craftsmen, coming from their former English training. Henry, himself, was a saddler.

Spacious fields of wheat, corn, buckwheat, and patches of flax and cotton, surrounded their homes. Sometimes as many as 100 beehives added another charm to their gardens profuse with lilacs, roses, sweet lavender and daisies.

It was a custom that no young woman should marry until she possessed forty or more bed quilts, counterpanes and snowy sheets that she made herself. These she embroidered with all sorts of needlework.

The women wove for the whole family, tow shirts, barndoor breeches, and silken gowns. They sold great quantities of cloth, wagon loads of butter, cheese and honey. They raised silk, flax, cotton and wool and manufactured these products for sale. They sold green apples and chestnuts all winter.

Some of the early Quakers owned slaves and they did not accept negroes in their Society, but in 1774 the North Carolina Yearly Meeting directed that all members' slaves be freed, and later they were instrumental in effecting their freedom over the so-called underground railroads.

The Friends, says the historian, came to North Carolina not as hunters and wanderers, but with civilization and the Christian religion. In the "History of North Carolina" by Williamson it is said that there are instances of philanthropy and civilization among the oldest settlers in North Carolina that can hardly be equalled by a similar class of men in any other country.

Among Early Revolutionists

If the muttering of impending war clouds had prompted members of the Friends Society to come to what they considered the more peaceful territory of North Carolina, they were destined to disappointment. How long Henry may have been in North Carolina before his admittance into membership in the Friends Church in 1768, is not known, but probably not long. Some historians say that actually the first battles of the Revolutionary War were fought in that portion of North Carolina where Henry and Kezia lived and it was at the time they lived there.

Public resentment had arisen against the public officers appointed by the British Governor Tyron. It was claimed that they charged exorbitant fees for their services and demanded such high taxes that it amounted to extortion. The sheriffs collected the taxes and it was claimed that they were long delinquent in accounting for what they had collected.

A public meeting was called for 10-10-1766 to be held at Maddock's Mill on the Enoe River (if there was no objection). This mill was owned by Joseph Maddock, formerly a tailor in England, then a resident of Chester County, Pa., and finally the miller on the Enoe River. His children, Samuel and Esther, married Jones descendants and his grandchildren, Nathan, John and Samuel Stubbs, did likewise.

Maddock being a respected Quaker and the meeting notice made subject to objection thus protected Maddock from punishment as being one of the instigators and removed the possibility of their enemies claiming they were just a bunch of drunken agitators.

An association was formed known as the "Regulators" from men said to have been from Orange, Randolph, Anson, Montgomery, Guilford and Chatham counties, with some from Rowan and Surrey counties. They resolved they would pay no taxes except those levied by their own representatives.

One of the leaders of the Regulators was Herman Husbands of Sandy Creek. His opponents claimed that he harangued his neighbors all week and rested not on the Sabbath. And that although a member of the Friends Society and supposed to be a man of peace, he was quick at resentment and pernicious in revenge.

He was arrested in May 1767 charged with participating in a riot. On the day of his trial 3700 armed Regulators advanced on the Court House. But they were not permitted to attend without first disarming. Over 4000 people attended the trial and he was acquitted. Sometime later he was disowned by the Quakers.

In the Hillsborough District in 1768 persons resisting the collection of taxes and high fees assaulted the Sheriff and Register of Deeds of Orange County. The presiding Judge fled and the mob burned his buildings.

In 1769 John Lea, the Sheriff of Orange County, in attempting to serve a peace warrant on John Pugh and three other Regulators, was attacked and beaten.

In 1771 Governor Tyron called out the militia to preserve order in the district where the Regulators seemed to have overruled the crown's public officers. Under date of 5-15-1771 Samuel Low of Alamance County petitioned Governor Tyron for redress from the grievances suffered from extortions of crown officers. And other similar petitions had been addressed to him. Some public officers were tried and found guilty, but when they were only fined a penny by the crown Judges, public indignation ran high.

When it was heard that Governor Tyron's militia were marching westward toward the lands of the Regulators 1000 strong, the Regulators hastily assembled an army of 3000 men and advanced to meet the militia. They met on the banks of the Alamance River. The advantage gained by the Regulators in their numbers was lost by their lack of heavy guns. The militia had cannons which they fired with telling effect, and the Regulators were not able to cope with them.

Not a great many were killed and no prisoners taken. Governor Tyron offered to pardon all those who would give up their arms and pledge allegiance to the crown, except the leaders of the insurrection.

It was from this warlike atmosphere that Henry and Kezia moved to Georgia in 1772, where they had also been encouraged to move by the fact that the state of Georgia had granted 40,000 acres to the Quakers.

From North Carolina to Georgia

It was only about four years after Henry was admitted into membership at the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. when that meeting granted him and his family a certificate to the Bush River (S. C.) M.M. under date of 3-10-1772. It is very doubtful whether they ever lived in South Carolina, although possible. The Bush River M.M. was established in 1770 and located in Newberry County, S. C., near the west central portion of the state. Hinshaw's Encyl. Vol. 1 states that the Quakers who first moved to Georgia took their certificates to the Bush River meeting because that was the closest meeting to their new home. Henry and his family were received at the Bush River M.M. 1-30-1773, and were also present at the first organization meeting of the Wrightsborough (Ga.) M.M., whose members were complied by order of the Bush River M.M. "ye 4th of ye 10th month 1774" and included besides Henry and family, his half uncle, Francis Jones and family, John Stubbs and family, and many others.

Rachel Kirk Price in "An Account of the Kirk Family" says the Friends who settled in Georgia travelled about 300 miles from North Carolina to a place known as Maddock's Settlement, because Joseph Maddock was one of the first settlers. This later was known as Wrightsborough. It was located about 30 miles from Augusta in Columbia (now McDuffie) county near the present town of Thomson. There they lived in peaceable possession of their homes undisturbed by the natives for a considerable time, until there was a new purchase made by the government with which the Indians seemed dissatisfied. Many were induced to make settlements on it, to clear it and sow it with grain, but the frequent incursions of the Indians was a cause of great discouragement to them, so that it was deemed best by many not to reside on it.

Hinshaw in Vol. 1 further says that in 1770 the General Assembly of Georgia granted a tract of 40,000 acres in St. Paul's Parish to be held in trust for the Quakers. Here they began the town of Wrightsborough on what was then known as Town Creek, 16 miles from Appling, the county seat, and named it for Sir James Wright, the Governor of the colony.

There may have been a change in the name of the rivers as it is now said that its location is on the junction of the Wrightsborough River and the Little River.

There were about 200 families in Wrightsborough at the outbreak of the Revolution. From a protest signed by most of the inhabitants of Wrightsborough repudiating the resolutions passed on August 10, 1774, by the "hotheaded patriots" of the coast quite a complete list of the settlers can be obtained. Among them were the names of Henry Jones, Francis Jones, John Stubbs, Samuel Hart, Edward Greene, Abraham Johnston, and many others.

Lucian L. Knight in "Georgia Landmarks" says "there was comparatively little hostility to England in this part of the Province, at least until the Battle of Lexington. The district had just been purchased from the Indians by Governor Wright who had promised the settlers every protection against the savages, and they were less exercised over the Boston Tea Party and the revocation of the charter of Massachusetts than they were over the perils of the frontier. These men were Quakers — most of them at least — inclined to the arts of peace rather than to the pursuits of war. But the subsequent history of Georgia proves they could fight like lions at bay when the necessity for resistance arose."

Mrs. Clark Jones of Arrowsmith, Illinois, daughter-in-law of Newton Jones, son of Francis and Sarah Jane Jones, is quoted as saying: "There on the banks of the Ogeechee River (in Georgia) they lived during the Revolutionary War. Their clothing and valuables were buried in large wooden chests to keep them from the soldiers."

Three daughters and a son were born to Henry and Kezia during their residence in Georgia: Sarah, Kezia, Anna and Henry Jr.

On the 3d of the 9th month 1779 John Stubbs, Henry Jones, Nathan Stubbs, Francis Jones and three others were appointed by the Wrightsborough meeting as trustees to receive a conveyance of land from the Governor for a meeting house.

In 1784, 2d month, 7th day, about eleven years after they first moved to Georgia, Henry and Kezia and their children: Elizabeth, George, William, Sarah, Kezia, Anna and Henry, were granted a certificate by the Wrightsborough meeting back to the Cane Creek M.M. in North Carolina where they were received 1784, 5, 1. They probably had returned to the community where they formerly lived.

Their exodus from Georgia was not far ahead of the great Quaker migration that set in about 1802 and continued until about 1807, during which entire families obtained certificates of removal, most of them going to Ohio. Eventually the Wrightsborough meeting house was abandoned, as the Quakers sought new lands, new homes, and new conditions on the new frontier.

"Georgia Landmarks" mentioned above, published in 1913 says of Wrightsborough: "Today the quaint old town presents a typical picture of Goldsmith's 'Deserted Village' where —

"The hollow sounding bittern guards her nest,
And long grass o'ertops the mould'ring wall.'"

There quoting Mr. St. Elmo Massengale of Atlanta whose ancestors were pioneers in Wrightsborough, it says: "The little place is almost deserted. Some few of the old homes are left, but they are gray with age, forlorn and desolate. I failed to find the old house which was used as the State Capitol (during the Revolutionary War) but it survived for more than a century, one of the most conspicuous landmarks in the village. It was a treat to wander among the old ruins, with each of which was associated some choice bit of romance, some legend of the old days, full of the spice of historic interest. I could almost fancy myself back in the Wrightsborough of 100 years ago, wandering among box hedges and quaint gardens of roses and hollyhocks, watching time flit by on an ancient sun-dial."

The little church in which the Quakers worshipped and probably the one for which Henry Jones was a trustee was said to still be standing in 1913, surrounded by tall, dark cedars; equipped with high-backed pews, an old-fashioned pulpit, and long narrow windows, it represented a style of architecture severely simple, but characteristic of the Friends Society who never cared for outward show.

Yellow with age, the tombstones are said to cluster thick there in God's acre. Only fragments remain of some, while over most of them the weeds and vines have grown. Into the deep cut epitaphs has crept the green moss, and here the "forefathers of the hamlet sleep." On one stone it recounts that the decedent "was fighting for liberty over these hills in 1777 and left the field, not a captive, but a conqueror, December 1824."

Back to North Carolina

About a year and a half after his return to North Carolina Henry Jones purchased 350 acres in Chatham County of Mincher Littler, a wheelwright, and Deborah, his wife. There were two separate deeds dated 10-1-1785. One conveyed 150 acres described as running a certain number of poles to certain trees, thence to Scrub Oak Branch and later across the Alder Branch (probably rivers). The other deed conveyed 200 acres described as being the same land as was conveyed by a deed recorded in Book B, Folio 133. The consideration for the first deed was 50 pounds and it was recorded in Book D on page 44. The consideration for the later deed was 150 pounds and it was recorded in Book D on page 52.

In both of these deeds Henry Jones was described as a "sadler" of Orange County, N. C. He must have moved from Georgia first to Orange County and then later purchased this land in Chatham County. A saddler, of course, made not only saddles, but harnesses and leather goods in general. With the exception of travel by boat, the most usual form of transportation, in those days, was either by horseback or wagon. Probably horseback was the favored means on the frontier because many roads were no more than trails. He probably also made leather clothing which was a durable and popular form of dress among the pioneers.

We may well assume that Henry purchased raw hides and then tanned and cured them, and later cut, sewed and shaped them into saddles, bridles, belts, scabbards, shoes, leather hats and coats. In fact the account book of Amos Green shows a sale of "too hides" to Henry Jones 6-10-1787 for 14-0. At least one of his sons followed the same trade.

After they returned to North Carolina their children, Hannah, Mary and Rachel were born.

3-12-1788 was the day their oldest daughter, Elizabeth, was married to Nathan Stubbs, a young widower 28 years old. She was nearly 22. He was the son of John and Esther Maddock Stubbs. His first wife was Eleanor Jones, daughter of Francis and Sarah Jane Jones.

Henry evidently left Georgia for North Carolina without disposing of his real estate for by deed dated 9-12-1788 Henry Jones of Chatham County, N. C., a sadler, late of Georgia, sold to Nathan Hornaday of Randolph County, Georgia, 200 acres on Germany's Creek. The deed was witnessed by his new son-in-law, Nathan Stubbs, and by Thomas Cary. It is recorded in Vol. 2 on page 307.

About a year later (9-5-1789) he purchased two parcels of land, one of 30 acres and one of 20 acres, from Michner Littler who sold him 350 acres in 1785. The new purchase joined the original 350 acres, cost five pounds, and the deed was recorded in Book G on page 88 in Chatham County, N. C.

According to the D. A. R. Records of Columbia County, Ga., a deed was executed 5-31-1790 from Henry Jones, Sr., and wife, Kezia, William Jones and wife, Jemima, Robert Jones, John Powell and wife, Margaret, to Meredecai Evans, son of Richard Evans, deceased, for love and affection, as well as it having been the desire of Mary Jones, late of the county, deceased, a widow. As heirs of the said Mary Jones, deceased, they conveyed 200 acres on McBean's Creek in Georgia, being the same as was granted to Mary Jones May 17, 1785. The witnesses were John Evans and Mary Jones.

It is doubtful, indeed, whether the grantors in this deed named Henry Jones and Kezia, his wife, were our ancestors. Our Henry was not the son of Mary Jones but of Elizabeth Jones. Of course, heirs are not necessarily children and they may have been cousins, or nephews and nieces of Mary Jones, deceased.

It is indeed unusual to find another Henry Jones who had a wife named Kezia living during a contemporaneous period with our Henry and Kezia, and a further unusual circumstance to find them selling land on McBean's Creek in Richmond County, Georgia, just about two years after our Henry conveyed his land on Germany's Creek in the same county in the same state. In 1790 Richmond County had Columbia County subtracted from it and in 1870 McDuffie County was subtracted. Germany's Creek is near Wrightsboro in McDuffie County. Where is McBean's Creek? Were William and Robert Jones and Margaret Powell the brothers and sister of our Henry? The fact that he signed "Henry Jones Senr" gives some credence to the possibility that it may have been our Henry because his son Henry, Jr., (b. before 1784 and d. after 1790 at the age of 8 years) was then alive.

In 1789 Henry's oldest son, George, was then 19 years of age and married Lydia Hobson, daughter of a Revolutionary War militiaman, Charles Hobson, and his wife, Sarah Beck Hobson. She was evidently not then a member of the Friends Society and according to practice he was dismissed 1790, 9, 4, for marriage out of unity. But he soon "confessed his misconduct" and was welcomed back into the fold, 1791, 5, 7.

In 1790 the first National census was compiled and it presents interesting information. Our Henry Jones was listed in the Hillsborough District of Chatham County, N. C., in column 3 on page 85. In his family were two males over 16 (himself and son William), one male under 16 (son Henry, Jr.) and five females. According to our present knowledge it seems as though there should have been six females (his wife and five daughters: Sarah, Kezia, Jr., Anna, Hannah and Mary). One of the daughters must have been living elsewhere at the time. Sarah, the oldest then at home would have been about 15 at that time.

Residing right next to Henry and his family was his son George and one son under 16 (Henry) and one female (his wife Lydia).

In column 4 of the same district was another George Jones with one male under 16 and one female residing with him. Could this have been the father of Henry, husband of Kezia? If so, he would have been 73 years old at the time. It seems doubtful that he would have had a boy under 16 living in his home, but not impossible. They may have erroneously listed George, husband of Lydia, in two different places. And, of course, it may have been an unrelated stranger.

1793, 8, 2, Henry Jones of Chatham County sold the 20 acre parcel last purchased of Mincher Littler to William Allen of the same place for 30 shillings. The deed is recorded in Book G on page 104.

Rev. James G. Pike of the Rocky River Friends meeting, R. F. D., Siler City, N. C., writing in 1945 said that he believed the land of which Henry Jones was grantee and grantor, herein described, is in the northwest part of Chatham County, in Albright township, near the Rocky River Friends Church, about nine miles northwest of Siler City, but the closest village and railroad is Staley which lies just across the county line in Randolph county.

Mrs. Mable Hobson Betz of Sacramento, California, who is compiling a Hobson genealogy, made a trip to North Carolina and under date of August 6, 1947, says: "I only hope you can some day take a trip down to the old Jones home, where Pearlman Hobson now lives. Looking through some of his old deeds and records I found his land had belonged to your people. * * * Probably 4 miles from Staley. This belonged to Henry Jones * * * The land looked fair and was more level than over in Surrey County which is quite rolling * * *"

1793, 11, 2 Henry's son William was dismissed from the church for his prior "marriage out of unity" to Elizabeth Culbertson. She was the daughter of Andrew and Mary Elizabeth (Quakenbush) Culbertson. Soon thereafter (1794, 3, 1) the church dismissed William's sister Sarah because she had previously married out of unity Elizabeth's half brother, Samuel Culbertson, son of Andrew and Esther Culbertson.

1794, 4, 28 Henry purchased additional land in Chatham county of Thomas Esery for 38 pounds, being 100 acres lying on both sides of the South Fork of the Rocky River.

1796, 3, 29, in consideration of the love and affection he bore for his son William, Henry deeded him 170 acres. The boundaries of this parcel went to the east side of the Scrub Oak branch, thence north to the south fork of Rocky River, thence up the various courses of said fork to the mouth of the Alder branch, thence up said branch with its various courses to the western boundary of Henry's land. This deed was recorded in Book J, page 28.

1796, 6, 8 Henry sold to Thomas Esser, also of Chatham county, the 100 acres lying on both sides of the south fork of Rocky River, that he had purchased of Esery. Henry paid 38 pounds for it, but sold it for 32 pounds 10 shillings. The deed was recorded in Book J, page 72.

1796, 11, 5, the Cane Creek M.M. granted Henry a certificate to the Spring (N.C.) M.M. to marry, and there on 1796, 11, 9, he was married to his second wife, Prudence Mardock, daughter of John and Ann Mardock. A copy of their marriage record is as follows:

"WHEREAS, Henry Jones of Chatham county, son of George and Elizabeth Jones, and Prudence Mardock, daughter of John and Ann Mardock of Orange county, each of the state of North Carolina, having declared their intentions of marriage with each other before several monthly meetings of the people called Quakers at Spring meeting house in Orange county, aforesaid, and according to the good order used among them, they having consent of parents, were allowed of by said meeting,

NOW THESE ARE TO CERTIFY whom it may concern, that for the full accomplishing their said intentions of marriage this ninth day of the eleventh month in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred ninety-six, They the said Henry Jones and Prudence Mardock appeared at a public meeting at Spring meeting house above said, and the said Henry Jones taking the said Prudence Mardock by the hand did in solemn manner openly declare that he took her, the said Prudence Mardock to be his wife, promising through divine assistance to be unto her a true and faithful husband until death should separate or words to the same effect, and then in the same assembly the said Prudence Mardock did openly declare that she took him the said Henry Jones to be her husband promising through divine assistance to be unto him a true and faithful wife until death should separate them or words to the same purpose, and moreover they the said Henry Jones and Prudence Mardock, she according to the custom assuming the name of her husband, as further confirmation thereof to these presents do set their hands.

It is interesting to note that in naming George and Elizabeth Jones as being the parents of Henry it did not give their address, but did give the address of the bride's parents, which would indicate that George and Elizabeth were probably deceased. Henry must have been about 54 at that time which gives further force to the assumption that they were then deceased. Yet, later, it refers to the bridal couple as "having consent of parents" which might indicate that George and Elizabeth Jones were then still alive, although neither attended the ceremony. Henry's half uncle Francis, who seemed to live near him so many years, was there with his sons, Samuel and Thomas.

Henry evidently stayed at the bride's home near the Spring meeting that winter for it was not until 1797, 4, 3, that this meeting granted Prudence a certificate to the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. where she was received 1797, 5, 3.

Just before the stepmother came to Henry's home near the Cane Creek meeting, Henry's daughter, Kezia, Jr., was married 1797, 3, 8. In the marriage record she was described as being the daughter of Henry and Kezia Jones of Guilford County, N. C. Of course, her mother Kezia was then deceased, and her father had always previously been described as being from Chatham county. The bridegroom was William Gifford, son of Jonathan and Eunice Macy Gifford. He was the son of Benjamin Gifford, a Mayflower descendant.

During the next two years two more of Henry's daughters were married in the Cane Creek meeting. Hannah married Jonathan Johnson, son of Jesse and Hannah Hadley Johnson, 1804, 11, 7, and Mary married William Cox, son of Thomas and Amey Cox Cox, 1805, 5, 16. In both instances the record stated that they were daughters of Henry and Kezia Jones of Chatham county.

Sometime between 1797 and 1807 John Jones, only child of Henry and Prudence, was born in North Carolina. It is believed he died young in Ohio.

September 5, 1806, just before leaving North Carolina for Ohio, Henry Jones, "sadler" of Chatham County, sold Simon White of the same place two parcels of land for $600., containing "in the whole of what is here ran around 180 acres of land." One piece was on both sides of the south part of Rocky River. They were from the parcels Henry previously purchased of Mincher Littler. The starting point was where the two parcels joined each other "at a marked Spanish Oak just below the ford of the creek by the house of said Henry Jones being James McDaniels corner then down the creek to the mouth of Alder Branch then up the Alder Branch following the various courses thereof," etc., later crossing the south fork of the Rocky River and eventually to the beginning.

Exodus to Ohio

The next day (1806, 9, 6) Henry and his daughter Ann, Prudence and their children, Rachel and John, were granted a certificate by the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. to the Miami (O.) M.M. where they were received 1807, 12.

"A History of the Friends in America" by Thomas, says "The many disabilities that Friends suffered in slave-holding states from their faithful adherence to their position that it was wrong to hold fellow beings in slavery were a great drag upon them. It was exceedingly difficult—in fact often impossible—to produce free labor, especially in the country districts. In these same localities, manual labor was by a false public sentiment considered degrading, so that those who from conscientious grounds had to do such work themselves were obliged to take a lower position in society than the one to which they really belonged. To the Friends, living in such an uncongenial atmosphere, the free west appeared as a land of promise, and a steady exodus soon set in."

Another reason for the exodus of Friends from the South was the warnings of Zachariah Dicks, a prominent minister in the Society, who was supposed to have the gift of prophecy. In 1803 he went from meeting to meeting in North Carolina and Georgia declaring that a terrible "internecine war" would come upon America because of slavery "within the lives of children then living." And history shows that he was right.

According to the Preble County (Ohio) History (1881) George Jones, son of Henry, brought back glowing representations to North Carolina concerning the Ohio country, and a considerable company then moved from North Carolina to Preble and Butler counties in Ohio. "The toilsome journey was made by wagon, and the little company was several weeks on their way. They made a stop in the vicinity of what is now West Elkton. All was forest and there was no roof ready to shelter them, save the overhanging boughs of the native forest. For some time the family lived in a canvas tent in which they had camped out every night since leaving their southern home. All joined together and rolled logs for the construction of one another's cabins." According to the "Pictorial and Biographical Record" (Mich. 1893) they crossed the Ohio River at Cincinnati which then contained a solitary log cabin.

In the book "Newberry, South Carolina" by O'Neill and Chapman (1892), quoting David Jones of West Milton, O., who in 1889 told of migrations from South Carolina to Ohio, it is said:

"Those heroic adventurers left the balmy south, the land of the chestnut, the cedar and the pine; crossed the Alleghenies, and entered the dark mephitic tangled woods of the far off northwest, whose giant oak, towering hickory, majestic walnut, spreading beech and lofty poplar frowned upon them and seemed to forbid their ingress."

The History of Preble County further states that the hardy resolute pioneers who penetrated west of the Miamis into that country "found a land as fertile and as fair as heart could wish." The long cool aisles of the forest led away into mazes of vernal green where deer abounded. All about them were displayed the lavish bounties of nature. The air was fragrant with the thousand odors of the woods in early spring. Underneath the giant oaks and sugar trees, the low-branched beeches, the walnuts and the sycamores, the ground was jeweled with strange and brilliant flowers.

Many of the early pioneers felt that they could not trust the Indians, but as a general rule they never molested those pioneers who were members of the society of Friends.

Log cabins erected by mutual assistance were the first dwellings. The habits of the pioneers were of a simplicity and purity in strict conformity to their surroundings. The men were engaged day after day in the herculean task of cutting away the forest, cultivating crops, caring for such stock as they had, and hunting deer, bear, squirrels, turkeys, and small game. The women in addition to grinding corn and wheat, gathered herbs and wild fruits and not only made all the clothing but also the fabric for it like the woman described by Solomon: "She seeketh wool and flax and worketh willingly with her hands; she layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff."

Intoxicants Among the Friends

Hospitality was simple, unaffected, hearty and unbounded. Whiskey was in common use in most of the cabins of the early settlers, including those of the Friends, "clear as amber, sweet as musk, smooth as oil." The records of the Elk (O.) M.M. show William Jones was named on a committee "to labour in the case of spirituous liquors." The Preble County History says, "This country was settled by families from the Carolinas and Georgia, all of whom were familiar with the work of distilling, and each man who could afford it had a copper still on his place. The article produced was of the best quality. It was regarded as indispensable at every log rolling and house raising."

It appears that the moderate use of intoxicants was not frowned upon by the early Society of Friends. History records that William Penn, when he lived near Philadelphia, had his cellar full of fine, old imported wines.

A. C. Myers in "Immigration of Irish Quakers in Pennsylvania" states that although liquor was freely used by some of the early Friends they insisted there be no excessive partakers and occasionally removed from the Society those members who came too far under its influence.

In 1725 the Chester (Pa.) M.M. recorded:

"It was desired ye Friends take care at Burralls not to make great provision as to provide strong liquors and hand it about but lett Every one take yt is free to take yt as they have ocation and not more than will doe them Good."

Eventually the Society opposed the use of intoxicants to any extent. The changing view is evidenced from the Elk (O.) M.M. minutes in the Men's Book under date of 9-3-1825 where is found the following report of the Liquor Committee:

"We the committee appointed to extend care of Spirituous Liquors have attended to the appointment and have found a number of cases wherein that article has been used in time of harvest in all of which cases we have extended care and in some instances to a middling good degree of satisfaction yet several others have justified their conduct as being nothing more than a medicinal use. We also agree to report that we think our testimony is losing ground as it respects the unnecessary use of that article."

Roger A. Stubbs of Long Lake, Minnesota, says that he believes all Quaker families who settled near there as early as 1855 were all total abstainers. And this practice and view was ultimately approved by all members of the Society.

Early Ohio History

The Preble County History further commenting on the life and times of those pioneer days says:

"Hardships were cheerfully borne, privations stoutly endured; the best was made of what they had, and they toiled patiently on, industrious and frugal, simple in their tastes and pleasures. Without iron wills and indomitable resolution they could never have accomplished what they did and their heroism deserves the highest praise."

Divine worship was first conducted by the Friends in the individual homes. In 1806 three acres were purchased in West Elkton upon which a meeting house of round logs was built and a graveyard laid out. It was a part of the Miami M.M. until 1809 when it was known as the "Elk Monthly Meeting." In 1817 a brick building known as "the old brick meeting house" was erected at a cost of about $500., and at that time it had a membership of about 300.

1807, 11, 9, Rachel, daughter of Henry and Kezia Jones of Butler County, O., married Amos Hawkins at Elk Creek, part of either Center M.M. or Miami M.M. in Ohio.

1809, 9, 30, Henry was on a committee from Miami (O.) M.M. to help organize a monthly meeting at Whitewater (Richmond) Indiana, and 1809, 12, 2, he joined the New Elk M.M. at West Elkton, Ohio.

The land records of Preble County, Ohio (Book I, page 63), show that 8-18-1810 Henry Jones bought 52 acres from his son, George Jones, in the west one-half of the northeast quarter of Section 32 in Gratis Township. George and William Jones, later as administrators of his estate, sold this property to Jonathan and Hannah Johnson, 4-8-1820 (Book 7, page 321) March 29, 1826, they sold it to William Jones, son of George Jones, last above mentioned (Book 7, page 322). His daughter, Susan Jones Stubbs, succeeded in ownership (except one acre to Henry Maddock 2-1-1834). Ownership then passed to her daughter, Eva Stubbs Brown, then to her son, Herbert Brown, who sold it to Henry Straub, whose grandson, Edward Straub, lived there in 1944. This property was about one-half mile south of West Elkton and was 160 rods north and south and 50 rods east and west. The road along its northern boundary is the road to Somerville.

Marmaduke J. Stafford, a descendant, who grew up nearby, recalls a log house about 20 rods from its north end and near, if not over, its eastern edge. This was undoubtedly the location of the Ohio home of Henry and Prudence Jones.

A Henry Jones purchased land in Section 28 in 1814 and also bought 5½ acres in the northeast quarter of Section 29, from Jesse Hobson in 1819, and 21 acres in the northeast quarter of Section 28 from Jake Langston in 1819. These transactions may have been with the grandson of Henry and Kezia Jones, the son of George and Lydia Hobson Jones, who was born in North Carolina in 1790.

The Women's Records of the Elkton (O.) M.M. show that Prudence Jones became an elder. And "4th day 7th month 1812 Ann Jones and Delwin Bogue declared their intentions of marriage with each other. Prescilly Pricket and Amy Jones were appointed to inquire into the young woman's clearness of marriage engagements with all others and what else may be needful."

"1st day 8th month 1812. The friends appointed to inquire into Ann Jones' clearness of marriage engagement reports the needful inquiry has been made and nothing appearing to hinder: This meeting leaves her at liberty to accomplish her marriage with Delwin Bogue."

In the Probate Court at Eaton, Ohio, in file No. 23 is found the will of Henry Jones, executed on the 7th day 5th month 1818, containing the following:

"HENRY JONES LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

Be it remembered that I, Henry Jones, of Preble County, State of Ohio, do make and ordain this to be my last will and testament in manner and form as follows:

The reason that Henry seems to have favored his daughters more than his two sons may be found in the fact that the two sons were considered quite wealthy for that day and age as will later herein appear.

The "Thomas Chalkey's Journal" mentioned in his will is in the nature of a published diary kept by a travelling evangelist of the Friends faith. He travelled many thousands of miles to nearly all the Friends meetings all over the world. It covers the years from 1675 to 1741 and recounts his experiences and explains many of the Quaker beliefs. Henry's copy must have been an early edition as the copy presently available was published in London in 1850.

Chalkey's travels were so broad that it is very probable that Henry's father and grandfather attended meetings where he spoke. One of Fred Underwood's daughters is said to have a somewhat similar record kept by George Fox, the originator of the Society of Friends.

It was probably in July 1818 that Henry Jones, the little Quaker giant of West Elkton was laid to final rest in the burying ground back of the meeting house. He must have been about 76 years of age. At the meeting of the E. M. (O.) M.M. held 8-7-1818 his death was recorded. A small marker bearing the inscription "H. J. July 1818" is believed to be the place of his interment.

Caught in the turbulent surge of Quakerism, his life was one of nomadic change. Born in Maryland, he left the family home near Darlington for North Carolina, then to Georgia, back to North Carolina and later to Ohio; a loyal and devoted Christian he was never censured by the church; and his ability as an artisan of leather was, no doubt, a necessary adjunct to the various pioneer communities where he lived with his friends in their search for peace and prosperity.

The following is the inventory of his estate filed December 31, 1818 (at one place it says 1819) Folio 77, Box 2. Eaton, Ohio, Probate Court:

Her son, Henry Stubbs, reported in the Minnesota state census of 1875 that his mother was born in Georgia (1768). Actually, it now appears that her family moved to Georgia when she was about four years old and, no doubt, her earliest recollections were of Georgia. He made the same report in the Federal Census of 1880. He told a granddaughter, "Some of my folks came over with Oglethorpe to Georgia." A list of those colonists shows a Stubbs but no Joneses or Hicksons.

Roger A. Stubbs, the great grandson of Henry Stubbs is inclined to believe that Henry was mistaken in listing his mother as born in Georgia and believes the state of Georgia was over emphasized in his mind, due to the fact that he was an old man when he made the report and also due to the fact that he had visited Georgia in 1848.

When he was two years old his parents moved from North Carolina to Georgia, where the state had made a large land grant to the Quakers. They lived at Wrightsborough during the Revolutionary War and until George was 14 years old. Then in 1784 his parents moved their family from their home on Germany's Creek in Georgia, which was probably in the present McDuffie County, Georgia, back to his native state of North Carolina, where 10-1-1785 his father purchased land on the south fork of Rocky River near the Scrub Oak and Alder Branches in Chatham County.

The Hobson Family

He was married in N. C. when about 19 years of age, probably in 1789 for 1790, 9, 4 he was dismissed by the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. for marriage out of unity to Lydia. She probably was not a member of the Society at the time of her marriage. His confession of the same was received by the Friends meeting 1791, 5, 7.

His wife, Lydia Hobson, was born 4-12-1768. According to the Hopewell Friends History of Frederick County, Virginia, her great grandfather, George Hobson, owned land on Middle Creek in what is now Berkley County, West Virginia. According to Earl H. Davis of 3940 Elm Street, Long Beach, Calif., he was the son of George Hobson who lived and died in England.

George II was born in England and immigrated to America, settling first in Maryland. He may have lived in Burlington, N. J., in 1732 as his son, George Hobson, III, lived there when he was married in that year. In 1743 he was the owner of a large plantation in the above mentioned Berkley County for 11-2-1743 he and his wife, Elizabeth, deeded 600 acres of their 937 acres of land to their son, George Hobson, III. 11-19-1748 George Hobson, II, executed the following will:

"In the Name of God Amen:

I, George Hobson, Sr., of Opegnon in the County of Frederick and Colony of Virginia, being sick and weak of body, but of perfect mind and memory, do make and constitute this my last will and testament in manner and form following, viz:

IMPRIMIS: It is my will that all my just debts, contracts and engagements together with my funeral charges be fully paid and satisfied out of my movable estate.

ITEM: I give, devise and bequeath unto my grandson, George Hobson, Jr., all this my plantation whereon I now live save only 300 acres at the lower end of the same to be divided off for my grandson, William, to him and his heirs and assigns, forever.

ITEM: I give, devise and bequeath unto my grandson, William Hobson, 300 acres of this my patent land on the lower end of my plantation as aforesaid to be divided off to him and his heirs and assigns, forever, and also privilege and liberty of the orchard on that side near the barn for the term of eight or nine years until he can raise an orchard for himself.

ITEM: I give, devise and bequeath unto my son, George Hobson, 300 acres of land lying on Middle Creek and adjoining to the land I formerly gave him and whereas he now liveth to him, his heirs and assigns forever.

ITEM: I give and bequeath unto my granddaughter, Hannah Hobson, Jr., my horse called "Mobb."

ITEM: I give and bequeath unto my two grandsons, Stephen and Charles Hobson, my three breeding mares, Blaze, Jewell and Jenn, to the use and behoof of the said two boys and their heirs forever.

ITEM: I think it necessary that the said mares be valued and taken unto the custody of my son, George, and the estimate of value of them be rendered to the said two boys at their coming of age.

ITEM: The residue of my moveable estate, I give, devise and bequeath unto my wife, Elizabeth Hobson, and my son, George Hobson, and their heirs forever, willing and requiring that my wife, if she survive me, have a comfortable living out of my said estate during her natural life.

ITEM: I ordain and constitute my loving wife, Elizabeth Hobson, and my son, George Hobson, executors of this my last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills by me at any time heretofore made, ratifying and confirming this as my only last will and testament.

IN WITNESS, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 19th day of November in the year of Our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty-eight.

At a Court held for Frederick County on Tuesday the 7th day of March 1748 (9) this appraisement of the estate of George Hobson, Sr., deceased, was presented the Court by George Hobson, Jr., the executor, and admitted to record (Bill Book I. page 255-6). J. Wood, C.C."

George Hobson, III, was probably born in Maryland or Virginia about 1712. He m. 8-8-1732 Hannah Kenniston b. 1718, 2, 19 Chester Co., Pa., d. 1815, 4, 29 (dt. Edward and Mary Greenaway Kenniston). Her parents were m. 12-1703 in Concord (Pa.) M.M. Her father d. about 12-1736.

The marriage of George Hobson, III, and Hannah Kenniston is shown in the New Jersey Archives Vol. 22, page 182, he being there described as from Burlington, N. J., and she from Chester, Pa. She had four brothers and a sister.

One authority claims George III was married twice and had about 20 children, being married first at the age of 16. Probably he was confused with his father of the same name. The following were his children by Hannah:

1. WILLIAM m. Sarah Williams
2. STEPHEN m. (1) Ann Barns, (2) Mary Crew, (3) Deborah Marshall, widow of Benj. Hinshaw
3. CHARLES m. Sarah Beck
4. GEORGE IV
5. JAMES
6. SILAS
7. EDWARD (?)
8. THOMAS (?)
9. LYDIA (?)

George III and Hannah moved to North Carolina about 1756 and settled in Chatham or Guilford County. They are both buried in the Rocky River burying ground near the Quaker Church in North Carolina. Their graves are said to have received special markers from the Pioneer Society of North Carolina.

Rev. J. G. Pike of the Rocky River, N. C., Friends Church, writing under date of 2-28-46 from Siler City, N. C., says that the following Hobson grave markers are in the burying ground there:

George and Hanna Hobson (oldest stones of all — no dates)

Joseph Hobson b. 8-1783, d. 2-27-1850

Mary Hobson b. 11-1793, d. 3-28-1870

Stephen Hobson

Millie Hobson b. 8-18-1815, d. 5-27-1901

Rebecca Hobson b. 10-6-1834, d. 1-24-1917

Mary A. Hobson b. 7-8-1824, d. 4-8-1918

William Hobson b. 12-6-1826, d. 7-24-1897

The Hobson home is thought to be on the Rocky River about two miles east of Staley, N. C. In recent years nothing remained but a pile of stone.

The children of Charles and Sarah Beck Hobson were:

1. ISAAC b. 3-23-1766, m. Emy Marshall
2. HANNIH b. 2-25-1767, m. Jonathan Masters
3. LYDIA b. 4-12-1768, d. 10-19-1845, m. George Jones
4. SUSANNAH b. 5-1-1769, d. 1843, m. Isaac Stout
5. JESSEE b. 12-17-1770

6. GEORGE b. 5-27-1772, d. 3-17-1846, m. Rebecca Marshall (dt. Thomas and Ann Chapman Marshall)
7. JANE b. 2-3-1774, m. William Allen b. 10-1768 (s. Zachariah and Lavinia Jones Allen)
8. MARY b. 3-1-1777, m. Thomas Stubbs
9. ELIZABETH b. 3-21-1779, m. Eli York
10. CHARLES b. 3-17-1781, d. 7-9-1830
11. PHEBE b. 2-11-1783, d. 9-18-1838, m. Ezra Hinshaw b. 4-20-1783, d. 9-18-1838
12. REBECCA b. 11-25-1785, d. 10-12-1855, m. Simon Hinshaw
13. JOSHUA b. 9-29-1787, d. 4-18-1844, m. Margaret York
14. SARAH b. 1790, m. William Stubbs

William and Thomas Stubbs were brothers of Nathan Stubbs (No. 112).

Sarah Beck Hobson was the daughter of Jeffrey and Lydia Beck. A Joseph Beck b. 12-2-1781, d. 9-26-1871, is buried in the Friends cemetery at West Elkton, O., as is his wife, Rebeeca b. N. J. 1791, d. 1867. It is possible that he was a nephew or other relative of Sarah Beck Hobson, who is said to have been buried in the same cemetery. He would have been a cousin of Lydia Hobson Jones if a nephew of her mother. Did the Beck ancestors live in New Jersey?

Captain Richard Pearson Hobson, the popular, handsome hero of the Spanish-American War, who sunk the Merrimac at great personal danger, was the son of James Marcellus Hobson (b. 1840) and Sally Pearson Hobson. Their children were:

1. SAMUEL A.
2. RICHARD PEARSON
3. JOSEPH M.
4. JAMES M., JR.
5. SARAH ANN
6. FLORENCE R.
7. MARGARET W.

Captain Hobson became a prohibition lecturer. After a lecture he was interviewed by Carroll S. Jones (1857-1921) and although they did not know just how they were related they believed they must be for their ancestors had lived in North Carolina about the same time.

Charles (s. George and Hannah Hobson) b. 5-14-1744 Va.?, d. 10-24-1829 O., m. Sarah Beek b. 2-15-1745, d. 10-16-1829 (dt. Jeffrey and Lydia Beek). Charles was a militiaman in the Revolutionary War, serving with the militia of North Carolina, Virginia, and South Carolina from the Hillsborough District of North Carolina. Proof of this service may be found in the account of wages allowed him by the Auditor of the Hillsborough District, Vol. IX, page 113, folio 2. Those wishing to join the D. A. R. may refer further to item No. 81, Book C, page 58; item No. 83, page 88 and page 136. For other payments to him for militia services see Chatham County Treasurer records Vol. 11, page 113, folio 3; and for further proof the deed dated 2-10-1777, recorded in Book C, page 504, in the Chatham County Register's Office, being a conveyance by George Hobson, a wheelwright, and Hannah Hobson, his wife, to Charles Hobson of 125 acres on Rocky River.

Many Hobson descendants still live in North Carolina. Charles and Sarah moved to Preble County, O., from North Carolina, just before their deaths and are said to have been buried in the Quaker burying ground at West Elkton.

Lydia, their third child, was a true daughter of the American Revolution but for many years her grave in the Young's Prairie cemetery was not marked with a D. A. R. emblem. On a beautiful afternoon, October 2, 1946, the Samuel Felt Chapter of the D. A. R. placed official D. A. R. markers on her grave and on that of her sister, Phebe Hobson Hinshaw, who was buried near her.

The markers were of bronze bearing the official insignia of spinning wheel tipped with 13 stars, representing the 13 original colonies. They were in the shape of a shield bearing the inscription "Daughter of a Revolutionary Soldier." Inscribed was also the name of the donor, Mrs. Fanny T. Rowles of Montclair, New Jersey, a descendant of Lydia Hobson Jones. The editor of this volume spoke briefly on behalf of the other descendants present numbering about 40 or 50.

The Cassopolis (Mich.) Vigilant reporting the occasion stated:

"The Hobsons were of the Quaker faith and at the outbreak of the Revolution were non-participants but as time passed, Charles Hobson realized that if his family were to enjoy religious liberty, it would be necessary to fight for it, therefore he entered the war and served with the Hillsborough District Militia, being at that time a resident of Chatham County, North Carolina."

The Picture of George and Lydia

The picture herein said to be that of George and Lydia Hobson Jones was furnished by Miss Sadie Lane of Eaton, Ohio. A question arises as to its authenticity when we consider that he died in 1834 and she in 1845. The picture would have had to have been taken before 1834. When were pictures such as this first made?

Evelyn Wetzel writing in the June 1947 "American Home" states that Louis Daguerre of France perfected his photographic process known as the "Daguerreotype" in 1839. She states that in those days it was necessary to have a two hour exposure and so not surprising that the "daguerreotypes" were unsmiling, austere and stiff. The picture of George and Lydia being a daguerreotype, a serious question arises as to whether it is actually George and Lydia instead of some other relative. Could it have been their son Henry and his wife, Hannah Green Jones?

Sarah Green Davis, granddaughter of George and Lydia Hobson Jones, was seven when he died in 1834 and 19 when she died in 1845. She said that her grandmother had dark hair and dark eyes. She was a tall, fine looking woman. She was a "doctress." She rode a beautiful chestnut mare and had a very fine red plush or red velvet saddle made by her husband, who was a saddler. Her husband, George Jones, grandfather of Sarah Green Davis, wore knee breeches, white hose and silver buckles on his shoes. He wore his hair long and rolled under similar to the pictures of William Penn.

She said it was quite an occasion when her grandparents came to visit. They often came on horseback. For their driving horses they had silver mounted harnesses.

Sarah Green Davis had a gold buckle made to her order in Sacramento in the early 1850s. It is exactly the same style as that worn by the lady in the picture thought to be Lydia Hobson Jones, which must have been taken some years earlier. She furnished the gold herself and paid the craftsman to make it.

Where They Lived

George and Lydia lived in North Carolina about five years after their marriage before moving to Georgia where George had lived from the time he was two years old until he was 14. It was 1795, 12, 5 when the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. granted them a certificate to move to the Wrightsborough (Ga.) M.M. George was about 25 years old at the time.

They lived in Georgia about eight years. Then on 1803, 6, 4 when George was 33 they obtained a certificate from Wrightsborough M.M. back to Cane Creek M.M. in North Carolina.

George must have preceded the granting of his certificate in moving to North Carolina, for May 8, 1803, John Long of Orange County, N. C., for $600. deeded to George Jones of Guilford County, N. C., 250 acres in Guilford County on the waters of Stinking Quarter, described as commencing at a small ash in the Orange county line, thence south 81° west 118 poles to a white oak grub in William Jones' line, thence south on his line 150 poles to Peter Smith's corner (a Spanish oak), thence south 8° west on his line 140 poles to a black jack, then on the county line to the first station, with all privileges of hunting, fishing and fowling all wood, waters, mincs, minerals hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Jesse Hobson, William Jones and John Long were witnesses.

August 8, 1803, James O'Neal of Guilford County, N. C., conveyed for $1000. to George Jones of the same place 205 acres in said county located on the waters of Stinking Quarter Creek, being a part of a tract confiscated to the Trustees of the University of North Carolina and described as beginning at a hickory (John Holsted's corner), thence west with his line 230½ poles, to a black oak, on John Holsted's upper corner, thence south 30° west, 178 poles to a black oak (Smith's corner), thence north 40° 30' east 202 poles to beginning with all privileges etc.

October 18, 1804 George Jones of Guilford County, N. C., for $550. conveyed to Jacob Marshall of Orange County, N. C., 245 acres, being most of the land he formerly purchased of John Long the year previous for $600. and November 18, 1804 he conveyed to William Jones of Guilford County, N. C., for $60. the balance of the 250 acres formerly purchased of John Long. It was described as 4¾ acres and 13 poles.

George and Lydia stayed in Guilford County, N. C., only about two years for 1805, 8, 3, the Cane Creek M.M. granted them a certificate to the Miami (O.) M.M. It was during that two years that George made his first trip to Ohio and as was previously mentioned, brought back to the Friends in North Carolina the glowing reports of the new land in Ohio, and quite a company, including his father and family, moved to Ohio to take up new lands in Butler and Preble Counties near West Elkton. George's certificate from Cane Creek M.M. was received at the Miami (O.) M.M. 1806, 11, 13. The certificate of his father, Henry, and wife, Prudence, and children, Rachel, Ann and John, from the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. dated 1806, 9, 6, was received at the Miami (O.) M.M. 1807, 3, 12.

Their Home in Ohio

The Miami (O.) M.M. was located on the Little Miami River in Warren County. It was the first Friends meeting to be established in southwestern Ohio. It was opened in 1803. It was the center from which Quakerism spread over western Ohio and throughout Indiana. It was probably the closest Quaker meeting to the Jones land in Preble and Butler Counties when the family arrived there in 1806 and 1807.

The Miami meeting had a phenomenal growth. The migration from the South to the Northwest which disrupted so many meetings in North and South Carolina and in Georgia, was a boon to the Miami meeting which seemed to be the principal objective of these southern home-seekers. About 550 certificates of membership from other meetings were received at the Miami meeting. Of these 170 were from South Carolina, 150 from North Carolina, 75 from Virginia and 35 from Georgia. These certificates covered about 2200 memberships.

The Elk M.M. at West Elkton where the Joneses attended was set off from the Miami (O.) M.M. 12-2-1809.

There seems to be a possibility that George alone transferred his membership from North Carolina to Ohio, as there is no record of the transfer of his wife, Lydia, and family. However, they eventually joined the Society for the Elk M.M. under date of 1812, 11, 7, received into membership, Lydia, and her children Sarah, William, George, Kezia (spelled Rozia), Lydia, Patsy and Nathan. This is the only place that mention is made of a daughter named Patsy. As no mention is here made of Martha, who was then about 4 years old, it is possible that they called Martha by the nickname of Patsy. It is also possible that Patsy was the name of a child who died young.

No mention was there made of their oldest child, Henry, because in 1812 he was over 21, and no mention of the next oldest, Charles, as he had previously married and had a home of his own, and it is probable that for the same reason Elizabeth, the third oldest, was not there mentioned. She later was received in membership at Elk M.M. 7-3-1813 after her marriage to John Lamm.

George was about 35 when he moved to Ohio. He entered land patented to him by the government in Gratis Township, Preble County, in Section 33, April 1, 1809; in Section 19, May 6, 1819, and in Section 32, April 1, 1809. He sold 50 acres (part of the W½ NE¼ Section 32) to his father, Henry Jones, in August 1810 (Book of Deeds, Vol. 1, Page 63, Eaton, Ohio).

George and Lydia lived in Ohio some 23 years and in that time witnessed their industry crowned with no little material success. He brought horses and other property with him from North Carolina and entered considerable land. As his father before him, George was a saddle and harness manufacturer in addition to his farming ventures. The "Pictorial and Biographical Record" of 1893 says that he was a man of "splendid judgment and rare ability, well-read and possessed of an extensive knowledge of all subjects of general interest." Eventually he removed from Preble County a few miles southwest into Butler County and located at Somerville on Elk Creek where he erected a large saw and grist mill, and built what was then the largest tannery in the State. His residence was "a large brick structure, conveniently arranged and supplied with all the comforts of life." According to our cousin, W. A. Roberts (mayor of Somerville in 1950), the brick house owned by our ancestor George Jones in that Village is believed to be the dwelling presently occupied by Charles Cornthwait on lots 41 and 42. It is in the southern portion of Somerville on the east side of highway U. S. 127. He says that a neighbor, Mrs. Maggie Milholland, who is over 80 years of age, believes this to be the Jones dwelling.

The records in the Register's office in Hamilton show that lots 41 and 42 were originally part of section 3, town 5, range 2 of Milford Township in Butler County owned by George Jones. In June 1816 George Jones purchased separately four tracts of considerable acreage in this section from Joseph Blossom, Daniel Perry, James Ermerson and James Newton (probably the site of Somerville on which he planned to erect his mill and tannery).

He sold small lots fronting on the Hamilton-Eaton highway from this tract. January 4, 1822, to Solomon White, June 1822 to A. Williams and William Masey and in 1829 to Abraham Williams and William Moore.

He disposed of his interests there before the Village of Somerville was platted so the lot numbers contribute nothing to the determination of his residence. Family records say the Joneses took pride in having fine horses in Ohio.

Like his father, George worked actively in the Quaker church and did much toward increasing its usefulness. He donated the land on which was erected a large church edifice. His name frequently appears in the Elk M.M. records as being appointed on various church committees. He was a member of a committee with Nathan Stubbs, Thomas Talbert and Samuel Stubbs to supervise the building of a new meeting house.

Pioneers in Michigan

In 1828 his son, Charles, made a trip into the southwestern part of Michigan territory and just as his father brought back to North Carolina favorable reports on the Ohio land, so Charles brought back to Ohio favorable report on the "St. Joseph country" in Michigan. Charles returned in the spring of 1829 and purchased land of Joseph Frakes in Section 28, Penn Township, Cass County, and brought his family there in November of that year. He built a cabin 20 x 30 feet which was occupied by 17 members of the Jones families until additional homes were constructed. He brought several fruit trees with him from Ohio.

In June 1829, George Jones, then nearly 59 years of age, attended the government sale of land in Cass County, Michigan, and he and his sons, and sons-in-law, purchased there some of the choicest, dark, alluvial prairie land in the State. These and later purchases direct from the government were as follows:

To George Jones of Butler County, O., June 17, 1829, Penn Township, lands: Sec. 17 — 640 acres; Sec. 18 — 139 acres; Aug. 17, 1829: Sec. 20 — 80 acres; Sec. 21 — 240 acres; Sec. 28 — 80 acres; Sec. 30 — 78 acres; Feb. 12, 1831: Sec. 15 — 80 acres; Jan. 4, 1830: Sec. 27 — 160 acres; In La Grange Township, Jan. 4, 1830: Sec. 11 — 80 acres; Feb. 19, 1832: Sec. 24 — 80 acres; and in Calvin Township, Jan. 4, 1830: Sec. 8 — 80 acres.

In Penn Township to George Jones, Jr.: Sec. 8 — 80 acres; Sec. 9 — 160 acres; Sec. 21 — 80 acres; to Amos Green: Sec. 9 — 40 acres; Sec. 10 — 80 acres. To Charles Jones of Preble County, O.: Sec. 19 — 300 acres; Sec. 20 — 240 acres; Sec. 26 — 80 acres; Sec. 28 — 80 acres; to Jones and Boguc: Sec. 27 — 80 acres; to William Jones: Sec. 28 — 40 acres; to Henry Jones (in La Grange Township): Sec. 13 — 160 acres; Sec. 24 — 80 acres.

This was a grand total of 3237 acres purchased direct from the government and does not count any additional acreage purchased from other patent holders. An Isaac Jones of Butler County, O., entered 40 acres in La Grange Township, Sec. 2, in 1833, but his relationship, if any, has not been determined.

Henry Jones employed two men to accompany his father, George, to the land sales in 1829. They were equipped with necessary implements for putting in the first crop on their new land, including four yoke of oxen.

Departure for Michigan

The autumn of 1830 witnessed their final departure from Ohio for their new home in Michigan. It was a most significant parting and separation. According to the Cass County History of 1906, George and Lydia then had eleven married children, all with large families, the smallest being that of George Jones, Jr., with six. We can account for only ten such children, and believe ten instead of eleven to be correct on the premise that he mentioned them all in his will.

Of these ten children and their families, George and Lydia were accompanied to Michigan by Henry, Charles, Sarah Green, George, Jr., Nathan and Martha Townsend. There remained in Ohio, William, Elizabeth Lamm, Lydia Kenworthy, Kezia Airy and their families. Six came to Michigan, four stayed in Ohio.

Roads and communications were not too good in those days, and it is probable that many of them were permanently separated from their beloved relatives at that time. However, there was an exchange of pictures, obituaries and letters, as such were recently found among old family records in Ohio, evidently sent there by those who moved to Michigan.

The Cass County History says that their departure was quite an event in the neighborhood and was not wholly unlike the emigration of some of the patriarchs of old in many particulars. First there were two four-horse teams loaded with household goods, then one two-horse team, followed by four yoke of oxen, the cattle, sheep, and hogs bringing up the rear.

Why They Moved to Michigan

It is interesting to contemplate the various reasons that may have influenced the removal of this large part of the Jones family from Ohio to Michigan in 1830. One of the reasons must have been of economic origin, or perhaps a manifestation of that spirit that branded Quakers in general as being "an ambitious people, quick to move to new lands which promised greater opportunities."

Seven years later in 1837 an economic depression commenced in the United States that lasted for several years. The history of the preceding period is set forth in Shepard's "Life of Martin Van Buren" and covers the years and times around 1830 in giving the possible causes of this depression. It is there said that the financial derangement arising from the War of 1812 that was felt in 1819 was over by 1821, and a period of material progress seemed to be at hand. Our harvests were always great. The National debt was entirely paid by 1834. Our cities grew. From a population of ten million in 1821 we grew to sixteen million in 1837. Michigan Territory increased from ten thousand to two hundred thousand.

There was an extraordinary growth of internal improvements such as canals, roads and some railroads. And the American people with one consent gave themselves to an amazing extravagance of land speculation. There was an honest delusion of intelligent men inspired by the most extraordinary growth the world had seen. The oft quoted illustration of Mobile, the valuation of whose real estate rose from one million odd dollars in 1831 to over twenty-seven million in 1837 to sink again in 1846 to less than nine million, not unfairly tells the story.

The price of public lands was fixed by law at $1.25 per acre, and they were open to any purchaser without the wholesome limits of acreage and restraint to actual settlers which were afterward established. Here then was a commodity by which so many fortunes had been made. In public lands, therefore, the fury of money getting, the boastful confidence in the future of the country, reached their climax. The annual sales continued to increase. In 1830 they were over two million dollars and steadily mounted thereafter to nearly twenty-five million in 1836. Prices, of course, went up.

In attempting to now appraise the quite radical step taken by the Jones family in 1829 and 1830 in purchasing over 3000 acres of government land in Michigan and moving to it from their Ohio home, it may be fairly said that they were not speculators in the sense that they bought the land merely for resale at higher prices, for they actually resided on and settled the land. They were not moved by profits others had already made in speculation for their purchases were made at the beginning of the period of inflation and speculation.

It is possible that they shrewdly sensed the coming inflationary period and wisely chose to purchase land at the beginning of the upward spiral.

Another factor that may have prompted them to leave their old home in Ohio was the fact that the Friends Church was rent asunder, by personal beliefs, a year or two previous to their departure. Separate meeting houses were set up in many Ohio communities, one attended by the followers of the doctrines of Elias Hicks, called Hicksites, and the other by those who rejected his teachings, called Orthodox. Those who even attended the meetings of the other were dismissed from membership. Even families were divided in religious worship.

This cleavage between their old neighbors and friends over religious doctrines must have touched their hearts and caused them considerable sadness. To move to a new country was an escape from this all consuming unpleasantness.

Another motivating force may have been the land itself. Their Ohio land, though good, was generally quite rolling, with deep cuts here and there. The Michigan land was flat, dark, black, prairie land of the highest excellence.

The New Home in Michigan

From the Cass County History comes this interesting description of Penn Township where most of the Jones land was located:

"On the fourth of March 1681 the celebrated Quaker, William Penn, received 'letters patent' from Charles II to a certain tract of land now known as the State of Pennsylvania, and in 1682 consummated his celebrated treaty with the Indian nation, which, for a period of forty, if not fifty years, remained unbroken and 'the land of Penn' was thus preserved during all that time from the reeking scalping knife and deadly tomahawk of the wily savage.

This great "Apostle of Peace" who can appropriately be called the promulgator of his peculiar religious belief in this country, builded stronger than he knew, and his descendants, ever noticeable for their sterling principles of peace, integrity and honesty as enunciated by him, have ever been ready to commemorate his memory by naming localities after him, and it was this feeling of love and affection for the great exponent of their religious belief that caused the early settlers of that portion of the County of Cass, of which we write, to name it Penn, and surely, no name could have been selected which would more nearly have typified the peaceful, pastoral, people who have ever since its formation been its inhabitants.

While other portions of the county have at divers times been thrilled by horrid deeds perpetrated by its inhabitants, this Township has been phenomenally free from everything of the kind, and no descendant there of that "Biblical personage, Cain, has ever taken that which he could not restore."

Penn Township was surveyed in 1827 and the description of the land in a majority of cases was "first class." On the east the land is gently undulating and hilly, and was originally covered with thick woods, the soil being in a measure sandy, while on the west it is more of a clay loam, the center being to a limited extent occupied by a prairie which has a dark, alluvial soil found in most of the prairies of this state.

Elm, sugar (maple), beech, poplar, linden, oak and walnut timber was originally scattered over the township, while paw-paw and spice bushes flourished amain; these comprising the principal deciduous trees, tamarack only being found in limited quantities.

The prairie of which mention has been made, centers in about Section 21, extending north and south about $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles and east and west $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles, and is a very productive tract of land, yielding ample returns to the husbandman.

It was called Youngs Prairie in honor of its discoverer who was a member of an early surveying party. From a distance the tall waving prairie grass appeared to be a lake to all but Youngs who maintained it was a prairie.

The pioneers who came to southwestern Michigan found a most fertile and productive land. In the spring the woods were odorous with the spicy exhalations of bursting buds, and the prairies were jewelled with strange and brilliant flowers — “the stars that in earth’s firmament do shine” — while the luxuriant growth of tall, waving grass, gave evidence of the strength of the virgin soil which it clothed. The profusion and variety of the wild flowers was remarkable. They gleamed through the cool, green grass in countless millions.

The long aisles of the forest led away into mazes of vernal green and twilight shadow, where the swift deer bounded by or paused to hear the rolling echoes of the woodsman’s axe. The underbrush nearly everywhere had been annually burned away by the Indians and where the ground was level the vistas stretched far away, there being nothing to obstruct the vision but the brown boles of the trees which appeared like innumerable pillars supporting the fretted ceiling of a vast temple.

The placid and pellucid waters of the little lakes mirrored the overhanging boughs of the great trees that lined their banks and lent brightness and variety to the view. All about were displayed the lavish bounties of nature. Animate life abounded in forest and in lake. Game was plenty. The water teemed with fish. Water fowl, swans, geese and ducks were in their season present in great flocks.

The turf on the prairies was very tough and the ground in most places was filled with a network of the wire-like red-root. The most difficult plowing, however, was in the openings and timber lands, where, although the underbrush had been kept down by annual fires, the roots had grown to great size. These were called “stools.” A common plow would have been quickly demolished against them. The plow used was a massive construction of wood and iron, and was known as the “bull plow.” To the bull plow were attached ordinarily six or seven yoke of oxen. This was known as “breaking” land.

Social gatherings included log rolling, harvesting and husking bees for the men and apple-butter making and quilting parties for the women.

The greater class (of pioneers) was made up of those earnest, strong sturdy characters who came into the wilderness with the settled and definite purpose of hewing out homes by dint of patient toil and of securing for their families the best possible condition of life. As a rule they were a pious, God-fearing class of men. Their habits of industry, frugality and sobriety, their patience, steadfastness and determination to succeed made them in time, however humble their beginnings might have been, substantial citizens.”

As a boy, George Jones worked with his father to open up a new country in Georgia. Later as a young man he was a pioneer in Ohio and now in his sixtieth year he left the comforts of his Ohio home to conquer another new country, still undaunted and with the spirit of an adventurous pioneer.

He made sure that his land holdings included a part of the Dowagiac Creek where the "Jones Mill" was erected and operated by his son Henry. History records that George "was quite portly" and due to his age unable to walk any great distance, but he daily drove with his carriage and horses out over his many acres "giving to their management his personal attention."

The Cass County History further states that "The Friends Meetings were first held at the house of George Jones, a Mr. Benjamin Cox of Indiana sometimes officiating." Later churches were built first at Birch Lake, then one in Penn Township called the Prairie Grove Church, and later in 1880 one was erected in the Village of Penn that still continues an active Friends meeting house.

The Federal census of 1830 lists the family of George Jones, Sr., as follows: 1 male between 40 and 50 (George), 1 female between 50 and 60 (Lydia), 2 males between 20 and 30, 1 male between 15 and 20, 1 female between 15 and 20.

Two years after their arrival at their new home, his son, George Jr., died, leaving a young widow and six young children as will hereafter be more fully mentioned. The inventory of his estate is on file in the Probate Court in Cassopolis, Michigan.

His Last Will

On February 14, 1834, George Jones executed his last will and testament as follows:

"Know All Men By These Presents, that I, George Jones, of the county of Cass, and Territory of Michigan, being weak in body, but of sound mind and memory do make this my last will and testament, as follows, to-wit:

I also give and bequeath to my son, Charles Jones, 40 acres out of the southeast corner of said quarter Section.

I also make and appoint Charles Jones and John Townsend my executors who are to sell to the highest bidder all my personal property not mentioned in this will, pay all my just debts and divide the remainder of all the proceeds of sale amongst all my children.

And I do hereby utterly disallow, revoke and disannul all and every other former will and testament ratifying this and no other to be my last will and testament and executors by me in any wise before named, willed and bequeathed.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 14th day of February in the year of our Lord 1834.

Not long thereafter, April 4, 1834, the spirit of this hardy pioneer was called to a new and different frontier. He was 64 years old and was buried near his prairie home in Penn Township. This quiet and peaceful spot west of the hamlet of Penn is now called Young's Prairie Cemetery. Almost all those buried about him are his relatives and descendants, so that it is, in most respects, a family cemetery. His wife, Lydia, is buried beside him, having survived until October 19, 1845, aged 77. Still living in this old family cemetery is a weeping willow said to be a descendant of one the family owned in Ohio.

William's granddaughter, Harriet Inman Wilson, who was born after his death, said that her mother told her he was a man of powerful physique and they had to have three teams to take his casket to the burying ground in Ohio. Much of the land between West Elkton, Ohio, and Seven Mile, Ohio, is said to have been owned by him.

115. SARAH⁵ JONES (*Francis*¹, *Henry*², *George*³, *Henry*⁴). According to Hinshaw Vol. 1, p. 384 she was condemned for marrying out of unity a man named Culbertson by the Cane Creek (N.C.) M.M., 1794, S. 1. There is no evidence that she moved to Ohio when the other members of the Jones family left North Carolina for that state in 1806. If she remained in North Carolina, the Culbertsons would be the only Jones descendants who remained in the South. Her father's will indicates that she was not living in the neighborhood of West Elkton, Ohio, in 1818, as she was not given any share in her mother's household goods as were her sisters who lived in Ohio. Letters written to Solomon and John Culbertson of Siler City, N. C., were received by them in 1948 but not answered.

A Samuel Culbertson died testate at Swan's Station, N. C., in 1817. Samuel is thought to be son of Andrew and Esther or Anne Culbertson of Rocky River, Chatham Co., N. C. Further details are said to be available in the 1896 Supplement to the Culbertson Genealogy by Dr. Lewis R. Culbertson of Zanesville, O.

Jonathan and Eunice Macy Gifford of Nantucket, Mass.) His will is in Book 7, page 527, Probate Court, Eaton, O. Jonathan was the son of Benjamin Gifford, a Mayflower descendant. Kezia and William were gct Ohio from North Carolina 9-7-1812. The History of Preble Co., O. (1881) says that William and his wife were induced to come to Ohio by his brother-in-law, George Jones. They came by wagon and it took several weeks. They both died of "cold plague" in 1813. According to Hinshaw Vol. 1, p. 811, Nathan, Henry and William Gifford (sons of William and Kezia) were gct Miami (O.) M.M. from Deep River (N. C.) M.M. 2-5-1810. The same day a similar certificate was granted to their mother but she decided to stay with her husband. Later (9-7-1812) she and her children were granted a new certificate to Miami or Elk (O.) M.M. because the certificate of 1810 was reported lost.

He was gct. O. by Perquimins (N. C.) M.M. 4-6-1811. The records of the women's division of Elkton (O.) M.M. show:

"4th day 7th month 1812 Ann Jones and Delwin Bogue declared their intentions of marriage with each other. Prescilly Pricket and Amy Jones were appointed to inquire into the young woman's clearness of marriage engagements with all others and what else may be needful."

"1st day 8th month 1812. The friends appointed to inquire into Ann Jones clearness of marriage engagement reports the needful inquiry has been made and nothing appearing to hinder: This meeting leaves her at liberty to accomplish her marriage with Delwin Bogue."

Their family were gct Silvercreek (Ind.) M.M. 1-1-1820 by the Elk

(O.) M.M. They must have later transferred to the Salem (Ind.) M.M. in Union Co., for that meeting states:

"This family has removed from this locality, but their birth records recorded."

The census of 1820 shows Delwin Bogue in Franklin Co., Ind., as follows:

- 3 males under 10 (Jonathan, Henry, Delwin Jr.)
- 1 male 26-45 (Delwin Sr.)
- 1 female 16-26 (Ann, wife)
- 1 female over 45 (Prudence, widow of Henry Jones?)
- 2 females under 5 (Jemima and Prudence)

The census of 1830 for Union Co., Ind., shows:

- 2 males 5-10 (Phineas and Delwin)
- 2 males 15-20 (Jonathan and Henry)
- 1 female under 5 (Charlotte)
- 1 female 5-10 (Pollyann)
- 1 female 40-50 (Ann, mother)
- 1 female 60-70 (Prudence, widow of Henry Jones?)

The Salem and Silvercreek M.M. mentioned above are also said to be the same meetings, the name having been changed.

118. HENRY⁵ JONES (*Francis*¹, *Henry*², *George*³, *Henry*⁴) d. after 1790 at the age of 8. He was b. before 1784. He is mentioned in the Friends certificate of removal from Ga. to N. C. in 1784. He was also alive at the time of the 1790 census as accounted for in the number of males registered. The sad story of his death as recorded by his nephew, Henry Stubbs, in his autobiography under date of 5-20-1878 is as follows:

"My mother had two living brothers, one dead by accident, George and William Jones. Uncle Henry gone while quite young. The owls or some varmints caught some of their fowls, and Henry had a crower he thought much of. One moonlight night he got up at the hour of midnight and went out and caught his chanticleer. A brother hearing the chickens squawk got up, took down his gun, thinking an owl had the chickens, and shot off the gun."

This, no doubt, was the greatest tragedy of our family history. Which of the brothers fired the shot that killed Henry who was mistaken for an owl is not now known.

119. HANNAH⁵ JONES (*Francis*¹, *Henry*², *George*³, *Henry*⁴) d. 4-14-1852 O., m. 11-7-1804 Chatham Co., N. C., Jonathan Johnson b. 8-9-1781, d. 1-15-1853 O. (s. Jesse and Hannah Hadley Johnson). Their m. is recorded Hinshaw Vol I, p. 401. They were get Miami (O.) M.M. 10-3-1807. On 4-8-1820 he purchased from the executors of his father-in-law Henry Jones' estate 50 acres in Section 32, Gratis Township, Preble Co., O., and sold it the same day to his nephew, William Jones. The deaths of Hannah and Jonathan are recorded in the records of Elk (O.) M.M. and they are buried in Friends cemetery at West Elkton, O., next to her father, Henry Jones. Jonathan sold one Samuel Fort 80 acres in

The following is condensed from a letter written by Marmaduke J. Stafford of 430 Main Street, Richmond, Ind., under date of 10-31-1943:

"I am unable to find anyone who knows for certain where Jonathan and Hannah Jones Johnson lived at first, though I do know that they later lived and died on my grandfather's farm which was in Section 34, Gratis Township, Preble Co., O. My sister and myself are strongly of the opinion that they lived for a few years in Hamilton Co., Ind. But we cannot prove it. If, after he deeded the 50 acres purchased of the Henry Jones estate, he took the proceeds, and upon the solicitation of their daughter, Keziah, concluded they could do well at Coal Creek, they may have moved.

How did William Stafford get acquainted with his wife Hannah (Johnson) unless she visited her sister, Kezia? But this would have been but a short acquaintance so it is more probable that Hannah was living with her parents there.

My grandparents drove the 120 miles several times, more than likely, just to see her sister. Kezia (Johnson) was married in 1827 and (her sister) Hannah and William (Stafford) in 1841.

Hannah (Jones) Johnson had a lingering illness and probably needed more nursing than Jonathan or her daughter Kezia could give her, so they came back to Ohio. My father and sister, Amanda, told me that my mother, Martha, who was not married until 1830, helped in nursing Hannah.

My grandfather, Marmaduke Mendenhall's house was a large, frame, one room on main floor with stone walled cellar underneath and half a story above, with porch facing southeast to be parallel with the road which ran southeast. This was not large enough to take their parents in so he built a one room frame house with porch about 8 or 10 rods from his own house and here they lived until their deaths in 1852 and 1853. After their deaths this building was moved to join his own house for a kitchen and remains so today. Sometime in the 40s my grandfather built four frame rooms to the front of the other buildings, two being upstairs.

Jonathan and Hannah had no property at their death, considerable illness in their old age having caused them to use all they had, but they had a large family and raised them all well and to maturity."

The Friends records seem to confirm cousin Marmaduke's guess that Jonathan and Hannah lived a few years in Indiana, viz: 1827, 4, 7 they were get Westfield (Ind.) M.M. from Elk (O.) M.M. 1838, 4, 21 with ch: Mary, Lydia and Hannah get Cherry Grove (Ind.) M.M. from Elk (O.) M.M. 1840, 10, 17 with dt. Hannah get Westfield from Elk (O.) M.M. 1849, 11, 17 with dt. Hannah rocf Richland (Ind.) M.M. at Elk (O.) M.M.

120. MARY⁵ JONES (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴) m. 5-16-1805 N. C. William Cox (s. Thomas and Amey Cox Cox). They adopted their orphaned nephew, Jesse Gifford, and raised him as they had no children of their own. 4-27-1831 Jesse was get Elk (O.) M.M. from Whitewater (Ind.) M.M. at Richmond where William and Mary were members, as he wished to live with other relatives near West Elkton, O. William and Mary and their "bound girl" Elizabeth Swartz were get White Lick (Ind.) M.M. 1-27-1836. William's paternal grandparents were Herman and Jane Cox. His maternal grandparents were Benjamin and Martha Cox.

121. RACHEL⁵ JONES (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴) d. 4-22-1866 Attica, Ind., m. (1) 11-19-1807 Miami (O.) M.M. Amos Hawkins, Jr., (s. Nathan and Ann Hawkins of Butler Co., O.) Her parents, Henry and Kezia, were said to be of Butler Co., at the time of her marriage. Amos, Jr. died after 1823. She was 72 yrs., 8 mos., and 18 days old at the time of her death. The stamp on the back of her picture is dated 10-5-1864, indicating she was then about 71 years old. She m. (2) Nathan Small (see Old N. W. Quarterly Magazine, Vol. 8, Page 53). She was willed the family bible by her father, Henry Jones, but no trace of it has yet been found. It would be most valuable for its genealogical information. She is buried in the old cemetery at Waynetown, Indiana.

According to one account Amos Hawkins and the Comer boys drove a bunch of hogs to market in Cincinnati. When the Comer boys returned they said Amos died on the way and was buried. The family went with them to dig up the body but they couldn't find it. Amos owned a farm just outside the present Glenn Miller Park in Richmond, Ind.

Rachel's great granddaughter, Viola Bailey, was told that she was married (2) to Nathan Small before her grandfather, William Hawkins, was 12 years old. As he was born in 1808 or 9 that would put the death of Amos, Jr., about 1821, but this must be a mistake for their son Silas was born in 1823 and his father must have died shortly before or after his birth.

According to Perlle Small Leach her grandfather, Nathan Small, was widower with child by his first marriage when he married her grandmother, the widow Rachel Jones Hawkins. Nathan bought a "forest claim" of a man who entered it when Indiana was first being settled. This homestead has always remained in the family and in 1945 it was owned by Ferman Small. It is near Attica, Ind.

Nathan built a large one and one-half story log house on it and lived there until his death. After his death his sons, George and Elum, inherited the property and George built a home on his part, but he lived in the log house and took care of his mother, Rachel, until her death 4-22-1866.

Her enlarged picture hung for years in the old Small home. There was also some old, hand-made furniture in the home.

Rachel, like her father, brother and possibly others of her family, was very obese in her later years. She then weighed in the neighborhood of 350 pounds. The door of the home had to be widened to permit her coffin to pass through. From her picture here reproduced it would appear that she had a ready twinkle in the eyes, probably good natured, full of fun, yet smart and witty.

139. HENRY⁶ JONES (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, George⁵) d. Cass Co., Mich., 3-19-1851, m. 4-8-1813 Preble Co., O., Hannah Green b. 12-14-1792 Ga., d. Cass Co., Mich., 3-25-1884 (dt. Amos, Sr., and Esther (Low-Hart) Green). According to the Cass County History of 1875 Henry was b. in Ga. 5-28-1790 but the Cane Creek (N. C.) M.M. records indicate that his father moved to Ga. from N. C. in 1795 when Henry was about 5 and his obituary confirms his birth as being in Guilford Co., N. C. His father had previously lived in Ga. but moved to N. C. in 1784. In 1803 when Henry was 13 his father moved from Ga. back to N. C. where his grandfather was living, but they did not stay long in N. C. and in 1805 when Henry was 15 they moved from N. C. to their new home in Preble Co., O.

Their home was north of Cincinnati and as Henry grew older he worked three winters in that city packing pork and took it down the river on flat boats to the city of New Orleans. When he was 23 he married Hannah Green, daughter of Amos Green, Sr., and Esther Low-

Hart Green. Her mother evidently taught her how to make Quaker bonnets for she was a milliner, as was her mother before her. The editor has a blue and white hand-made bed spread over one hundred years old that she is believed to have made. It is in the background of the picture of Suzanne Jones published herein.

Their marriage is found in Vol. I on Page 28 of the marriage records in the Court House at Eaton, O., as follows:

"Married by me agreeable to license Henry Jones and Hannah Green this 8th day of April 1813. (Signed) Alex Pugh."

It appears that Henry was not as loyal a Quaker as were his father and grandfather. He was married by a Justice instead of by the Friends ceremony and the Elkton (O.) M.M. of women Friends says:

"1st day 7th month 1814. Hannah Jones formerly Green produced an offering to this meeting condemning her outgoings in marriage with a man not in membership with Friends which was read and received."

The Green Family

Henry's sister, Sarah, married Amos Green, Jr., who was the brother of Henry's wife. Due to this double connection between the Jones and Green families it seems appropriate to attempt to trace the Green ancestry to some extent.

In general it is said that the Green family in England assumed their name from an allusion to their beloved manor which was "Buckton" in the county of Northampton, renowned for its spacious and delightful green. "They were lords of the manor, and owned many stately castles." Edward III gave to Sir Henry Green and his heirs the grant of a yearly fair which was held for many years upon their spacious green.

In the reign of Henry V, Sir Thomas Green was warden of Whittleburg Forest, an office which he "held in capite of the King by service of lifting the right hand to the King yearly on Christmas Day in whatsoever place the King is." Sir Henry Green was a Lord Chief Justice of England and Catherine Parr, the niece of Sir Thomas Green who died in 1506, was Queen of England.

Our connection with these noted Greens is not definitely established beyond the fact Thomas Green, born in England, was the earliest known ancestor in our line and may well have been a descendant of these earlier Greens among whom the name Thomas seems to have been a popular Green family given name.

Our earliest Green ancestors to come to this country were Quakers. From the West Chester (Pa.) History and the Potts Genealogy it appears that our earliest known ancestor, Thomas Green, may have died in England but his wife Margaret did definitely come to this country and died in West Chester County, (Pa.) in 1708. Their son, Thomas Green, Jr., was born in England. He and his wife, Sarah, came to Pennsylvania May 11, 1686 and settled in Concord Township, Delaware County. Their son Robert b. 1684, d. 1779, m. 9-18-1724 Rachel Vernon (dt. John and Sarah Pyle Vernon).

Robert Green, Jr. (son of Robert and Rachel (Vernon) Green) married Hannah Clayton, daughter of Edward and Ann (Whitaker) Clayton. He died in 1790. Their son Amos was born 1755.

The will of Edward Green, late of Bristol, England, a grocer at Capt. Robert Dudley's in Middlesex County, Va., dated 8-22-1697, left property to his brother, Robert Green of Bristol, a haberdasher of hats. The will was proved 8-9-1698 (our Robert was in this country after 1686). He arrived at Philadelphia from Bristol on the ship "Delaware" 5-11-1686.

The Virginia Land records show grants to Robert Green in the 17th century and the will of our Robert Green, Jr., mentioned in the letter of Dr. Jesse Green devises land in Virginia.

The Old Homestead

It was Robert, Jr., who erected the old Green homestead that still stands six or seven miles from Wilmington, Delaware. It is a large stone house and the picture of it appears in this publication. It was taken April 14, 1908. On that date a distant cousin who still resided near there, Dr. Jesse C. Green, went with a photographer to this fine old house and this picture was taken from the east in the morning sunlight for Mrs. Minerva Power.

The house was erected in 1776 and is about 10 miles from West Chester, Pa. The name of its owner in 1908 was William Twaddle.

The date of erection and initials of Robert and Hannah Green thus:

G

R and H

may be seen cut in the stone of the west end gable. The one story part of the main building, which is at the north end of the porch is what they called the "bridle and saddle room" of that day when both men and women rode much on horseback.

Robert, Jr., lived in Birmingham township, Delaware County, Pa., and was married at the Bradford Friends Meeting house in Chester County.

According to Dr. Green, the battle of Brandywine was fought at Chadsford three miles distant from the old stone Green homestead. A portion of the British army passed by our old ancestral home, took all the horses belonging to the gentry, except the hackney mare, belonging to Hannah, wife of Robert Green, on account of her leaping over fences when attempts were made to corner her.

The Doctor further says, "They took my grandfather's favorite riding horse and forced him rapidly along the road in the sight of the owner who was mowing grass in the meadows in front of the house. My grandfather made no resistance but kept on mowing, although hurt by the cruelty to the animal."

A letter written over forty years ago by the Doctor to Olivia E. Chapman contains so much interesting information of the early Green families that it is reproduced here in full:

West Chester, Pa. 2 mo 5, 1906

Olivia E. Chapman

Dear Friend —

Thy welcome letter of the 29th ult. with enclosure is received and read with much interest. The Amos Green son of Robert Green Jr.

named in thy letter was a brother of my grandfather Jesse Green. I have heard him frequently speak of "brother Amos."

Robert Green Jr. was married to Hannah Clayton 6 mo. 10, 1756 at Bradford meeting Chester, Co., Pa. They had 8 children, Mary, Jessee, Amos, Silas, Robert, Lot, Abigail, Rachel and Rebecca. Robert Jr. died in 1790 and his widow, Hannah in 1803.

I find in a copy of the will (which I have) of Robert Green, the following item:

"I will and bequeath unto my loving son Amos Green the sum of fifty pounds to be paid to him by my son Jessee, his heirs, or assigns as aforesaid as also fifty pounds to be paid him by my son Robert, his heirs or assigns as is hereafter mentioned" (Jessee and Robert Green were his executors).

"I also will and bequeath to my said son Amos his heirs and assigns forever a certain right for six hundred acres of land (by information) lying and being in Harrison County, in the State of Virginia, which I purchased of Thomas Pennell son of Robert of Chester County, Pennsylvania."

The will is dated 9 mo. 21, 1789.

I have copied the above thinking it might interest thee, and made some extracts from a paper in my possession in regard to the goods chattles of the Amos Green alluded to above which may also be of interest —

"State of Georgia, Wilkes Co., by David Ferrell, Clerk of the Court for the said Co.

"To all to whom etc. * that on the first day of May 1797 administrator of all & goods chattles & which were of Amos Green, late of the County of Wilkes aforesaid, deceased, was granted and committed to Hester Green of said county she having just entered into bond etc  Seal of Court attached March 2, 1801. Signed D. Ferrell"

Following the above Hester Green gave power of attorney to my grandfather Jessee Green to settle the estate of the said Amos Green, dated March 3, 1801.

This power of attorney etc. with other papers came down to me from grandfather who had preserved them. This is about all the information I can furnish about thy great grandfather Amos Green.

Silas Green settled in Preble Co. Ohio, and Lot in the western part of the State on the Monongahala river —

In regard to the first Thomas Green who arrived from England in 1686 I can add nothing more than was said in a former letter, and nothing definite or reliable in regard to his ancestry. I have had correspondence with one of the Greens near Chester England but could not get satisfactory information in regard to the "missing link."

I also corresponded with a Green, former president of the Western Union Telegraph Co. He seemed to think all the Greens came from one general ancestor, and his daughter Susan T. Green writes me from Louisville, Kentucky (after the death of her father) "We are descended from Robert Green who with his uncle William Duff, a Quaker, settled in Culpepper Co. Virginia in 1710."

Dr. Orville Green said it was common to use the final "e" in the Rhode Island Greens and omitted in the Boston Greens. A History of the descendants of Joseph Greene of W——, Rhode Island, and other lines of Greenes in America by Frank L. Greene, Albany, N. Y. was published by I. Munsells, Albany, N. Y. 1894. I examined the work and not finding our family name mentioned, wrote to the author for an explanation of the omission. He did not know of our family and was sorry his attention had not been called to it.

I am very glad to get the Green History published in the Chicago Record Herald so kindly enclosed in thy letter. It contains some interesting facts in regard to the Greens. Many thanks. I have much the same in an account of the Manor and Parish Church of Green's Norton, alias Norton Davey in the county of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough — Compiled by Samuel Beal, D.C.L. Rector, and am inclined to look at the Catherinc Parr account — the missing links are needed.

As to our relationship to Nathaniel Green (whose father was a friend) I am unable to give thee any information.

The house in which the elder Robert Green resided was demolished before my time but I have an oil painting of the neighborhood which includes the large stone house erected by Robert Green Jr. in 1777 in which he resided and also an oil painting of the old sawmill house (on one part of the farm) in which house I was born in 1817. Hope to get photos of each in the future.

If I should obtain information in regard to our ancestors that is reliable it will give me great pleasure to send it to thee.

I am not compiling a history of the Green family only gathering the genealogy of my own particular part of it.

I prepared one of my paternal and maternal ancestors which was published in Vol. 6 of American Ancestry 1891.

Thinking thee might feel some interest in a little personality I enclose cuttings from one of our daily papers printed some 12 years ago with the hope thee will pardon what might seem personal vanity in sending them. In addition I might remark I am still in active practice.

As requested I will send a picture under another cover, prepared for a Chester County book published some years back. My wife passed away in 5th mo. 1900.

Hoping the little information conveyed in these sheets may be of some use, I am,

Thine sincerely,
Jesse C. Green

The Power of Attorney

It would appear from his will and from the power of attorney herein-after set forth that Robert Green, Jr., was a man of considerable wealth and property. It also appears that several of his debtors had moved from Pennsylvania with that large group of immigrants who went to North and South Carolina and Georgia prior to 1786, and he decided to send his son Amos down to collect what he could from these delinquent debtors.

To that end he had a very complete and all embracing power of attorney prepared and signed before one of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas in Chester County, Pa., 7-18-1786 empowering Amos to deal as he might with those who had gone so far from Pennsylvania that it may have become difficult to keep current their obligations to him.

The original of this old power of attorney now over 160 years old is in the possession of Jasper Gleason, a descendant, of Penn Township, Cassopolis, Michigan.

It is as follows:

Amos in the South

Possibly Amos did not promptly go to the southern states from Pennsylvania right after his father gave him the power of attorney. Perhaps he went, returned, and went again. At least the minutes of the Wrightsborough (Ga.) M.M. say that he was received there 7-4-1789 on certificate from Concord (Pa.) M.M. dated 11-5-1788.

Amos must have left this certificate behind when he left for the south or sent for it later because the following letter is in the possession of Stephen I. Rudd of Cassopolis, Michigan:

"Rowan County, No. Carolina ye 13th of 6 mo. 1789

Friend Amos Green:

I have to acquaint thee that I lately was at thy Father's House and he sent by me several letters in one of which there is thy certificate of thy right amongst friends and I expect to send them to thee by one of the Representatives of Friends Meeting in hopes that they will come safe to thee.

As I expect thy father's letter will inform thee of the state of the family, I shall only say they were well on the 15th of the 5th month last when I saw them last.

My residence is in the Verge of Muddy Creek Meeting and I would be glad thee would call on me if thou Travels our way and so I am with Regard thy unknown friend etc.

Wm Manlove."

We do not know how successful Amos was in making collections for his father, but he did meet and fall in love with a charming young widow named Esther or Hester Low-Hart.

An account book kept by Amos Green, now in the possession of Stephen I. Rudd, seems to confirm the fact that Amos did go to Georgia shortly after receiving his father's power of attorney in 1786 for 6-10-1787 he sold Henry Jones (the saddler who then lived in Georgia) two hides for 14 - 0. It is interesting to note in his account book that the items most usually purchased in those days included:

"Shuger," rum, pepper, molasses, camphor, and sometimes linen, a quire of paper, or a weight of pork.

Perhaps Amos decided to stay in Georgia after he got there and sent back for his church letter in 1788 to become a member of the Wrightsborough (Ga.) M.M.

At any rate when Amos sold Henry Jones those two hides June 10, 1787, down in Georgia little did either of them realize that Amos' daughter Hannah Green was to marry Henry's grandson Henry Jones in Preble County, Ohio, April 8, 1813, nearly 26 years later, for neither were then born.

It appears that the widow Hart was not a member of the Friends society when Amos first arrived in Georgia and it may be that she joined the Society, upon her own request, at the Wrightsborough, Ga., M.M. 8-2-1788 to overcome the objection that would be raised to Amos, a good Quaker, marrying one who was not a member of the Society.

She was reputed to be quite wealthy. Evidently she had at least two children by her first marriage (Hinshaw I, pp. 542 and 557). She was said to be skilled as a milliner.

Their wedding occurred in the meeting house in Wrightsborough

(Ga.) 7th of 12th mo. 1789 before 31 relatives and friends. Their wedding certificate is as follows:

Whereas, Amos Green, son of Robert Green, of Birmingham Township, Chester County in Pennsylvania and Hannah, his wife, and Esther Hart, daughter of Isaac Low of Richmond County and State of Georgia and Grace, his wife, having declared their intentions of marriage with each other before Several Monthly Meetings of the People called Quakers held in Wrightsborough Township Richmond County and State of Georgia, aforesaid according to the good order used amongst them and having consent of parents and relations concerned their said proposals of marriage were allowed of by the said Meetings.

NOW THESE ARE TO CERTIFY WHOM IT MAY CONCERN that for the full accomplishing their said intentions this seventh day of the twelvth month in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine. They the said Amos Green and Esther Hart appeared in a Public meeting of the said people held in Wrightsborough Township, aforesaid, and the said Amos Green Taking the said Esther Hart by the hand in Solemn manner openly declared that he took her the said Esther Hart to be his wife, promising through divine assistance to be unto her a loving and faithful husband until death shall separate them:

And then and there in the same assembly the said Esther Hart did in like manner declare that she took the said Amos Green to be her husband, promising through divine assistance to be unto him a loving and faithful wife until death should separate them.

AND MOREOVER they the said Amos Green and Esther (she according to the custom of marriage assuming the name of her husband) as a further confirmation thereof did then and there to these presents set their hands.

AMOS GREEN
ESTHER GREEN

And we whose names are under written, also being present at the solemnization of the said marriage of subscription have as witnesses thereunto subscribed our names the day and year above written.

"The Pictorial and Biographical Records" (1893) says that Esther Low Green was "a lady of great culture and intelligence possessing a love for reading and a retentive memory which enabled her to store away in her mind an extensive fund of knowledge. She reached the advanced age of 90 and to the last retained her memory unimpaired." She is buried in the Youngs Prairie Cemetery, Cass County, Michigan. She died 1-5-1843 aged 88 years 9 mo. 18 days.

The same history states that "Amos was born an American, but was of English parentage and a nephew of General Nathaniel Green of Revolutionary fame." This relationship is not confirmed and Olivia Rudd Chapman (who had the original power of attorney given by Robert Green, Jr., to Amos Green in 1786 relating to his Georgia lands), says, "We are not direct descendants" but "are related to him." History says that General Green's Quaker mother said to him: "If thee must engage in this carnal warfare in defense of thy country, never let me hear of thee being wounded with thy back to the enemy." A famous monument has been erected to his memory by the State of North Carolina.

History records that Guilford Courthouse figured prominently in the Battle of Guilford in 1781 where General Nathaniel Greene was so intent on crippling Cornwallis that he little realized he was to title a city of the future: Greensboro, the county seat of Guilford County.

A letter written by Mrs. Chapman to her cousin in California over forty years ago relates to the Green family history and it is as follows:

LETTER FROM OLIVIA E. CHAPMAN TO MINERVA LESTER POWER

Linden Lea
5 January 1906

My dear Mrs. Powers,

There seems to be no place to begin or close the genealogy. Since Christmas I thought to begin it again and strange as it may seem I do not find my memoranda. I seldom mislay anything, but I've looked and searched for them but do not yet find them. I do not mean the "Old papers" but the material I had accumulated. I have also been trying to get Aunt May here for a day thinking she might help me out, but bad weather has prevented. Jennie Hubbard and her brother Wilbur Bonine hire Aunt May's board in Penn this winter. I think the notes must be in the library and I shall look again soon.

How would it do to write to the place where one of our Robert Greens lived, say to the county records, to find out about him? Birmingham, Chester Co., Pa., in 1788 once it is mentioned in a little receipt I have signed by Robert Green. It was called the "Province" of Pennsylvania. In one place Robert was called a mason by trade, and Thomas Green — I think — his brother, was a blacksmith.

It seems the older Robert Green was deceased at this time and had held large claims in the southern states. The date of the giving of the attorney to Amos Green, my great grandfather, was 1786. One Robert Green was alive at this date. I think I'll send you the old papers. They are precious and if lost my brother and sisters would chide me severely. But after giving it the study you have, some idea might be found that I would not see. Possibly the church records of those places might help us. It seems this Amos Green went south to attend to this business and married a wealthy widow, Esther Low.

I have several papers signed by her out of the old walnut chest I now have that my grandfather brought from Georgia. They were in a false till underneath the main till. This chest always sat in the hall, back hall at my grandfather Green's and I've sat on it many a time there. It is plain and unpretentious.

I think I told you that when my grandmother and grandfather Green were married 40 couple went home with them to dinner from the Friends Church where they married themselves according to the Friends ceremony, went home with them all on horseback. Bride, groom and all on horseback. The Joneses were aristocratic people and took great pride in their horses, saddles, etc.

One of Jesse Green's daughters, Esther Green Newton, now deceased, about my mother's age, had several dresses and garments of our great grandmother Green's (Esther Low's). Jesse Green was my grandfather's brother — Amos Green's brother. They fell to Esther Newton because her name was Esther. Now her daughter, Jane Newton Crego, has them. She lives about four miles from us, has no children, is wealthy. It was she who sold that large amount of walnut timber a few years ago that was shipped abroad in the log.

I cannot now tell the dates of birth farther back than Amos Green, my grandfather. I can tell quite a little about the Joneses, you know Sarah Green, my grandmother, was a Jones. Her brother Henry married a Green also, Hannah I think her name was.

I have a letter from Hobson's father saying he knew very little about their ancestors. We cannot trace them farther.

I presume I am repeating what I have told you before and hope you will pardon me. When we once get started again I will do better. I do hope you find the "link," I'll try too. Unless we do find it, do you wish me to answer your questions in regard to the families here?

I wish you could have visited us, can you not come sometime? We are plain unpretentious people but would be delighted to give you a warm heartfelt welcome.

This letter will seem very unsatisfactory to you but I think I can write soon again. Many, very many, serious things have claimed my attention during the past year and I have lost much of what we had in mind unless I find my memoranda.

But if it is not asking too much, jolt my memory a little and once at work again I can do better.

Hastily, but Sincerely Thine,
Olivia E. Chapman

Amos and Esther have three children recorded in the Wrightsborough M.M. Minutes:

Jessee b. 12-13-1790, Hannah (our ancestress) b. 12-14-1792 and Amos Jr. b. 12-10-1794. December seems to have been a popular month for children in their family.

The Low Family

As noted in the certificate of marriage Esther Low-Hart-Green was said to be the daughter of Isaac and Grace Low of Richmond County, Ga. (sometimes spelled Lowe). Vol. 9 of the Historical Society of Delaware listing the marriages at Old Swede's Church in Wilmington shows the marriage of Isaac Low to Grace Acterthon 5-18-1751. Was it the marriage of our Isaac and Grace, the parents of Esther Low Green? The date is appropriate because Esther was born 1754, 3, 17.

However, there seems to be a possibility that writing her name as Grace on the marriage certificate may have been an error and that actually Esther Low's mother's name may have been Ann. This interesting and seeming contradiction is traced as follows:

Vol. II, Historieal Collection of the Georgia D. A. R., Page 308, mentions a deed recorded in Folio 1: dated 8-17-1785 from Isaac Low, Sr., and his wife Ann to Isaac Low, Jr., conveying 250 acres of land originally granted to Isaac Low, Sr., in 1771. Vol. 114, p. 77 of the D. A. R. Lineage Book shows Isaac Low, Jr., married Elizabeth Walker (1768-1824).

5-29-1777 Isaac Low, Jr., deeded 100 acres on Uchee Creek to David Walker. In said Lineage Book on page 259 are listed the children of Joseph, Sr., and Mary Moore Mooney. They were John, Ann Low, Sarah Buffington, Prudence McMunn, Mary Brown and Joseph Mooney, Jr. They were grantors in a deed dated 9-20-1784 conveying 100 acres on Upton Creek off their father's (now deceased) survey on Bounty.

Joseph Mooney, Sr., died 1774 according to Hinshaw and Richard Moore was the father of Mary Moore Mooney and the grandfather of Ann Mooney Low. The other children of Richard Moore were James, John, Mordecai, Richard, Thomas, Jonas, Prudence Ryan, Abigail Thomas and Sarah Perkins.

Ann Mooney Low's brother, John Mooney, from his will recorded in Columbia Co., Ga., in Book B on pages 75-6 appears to have had a daughter Grace Low who would have been a niece of Isaac Low, Sr.

In Vol. II Historical Collection of Georgia D. A. R. on page 10 is listed the family of Isaac Low, Sr. His wife is there referred to as his "beloved wife." Minor children were: William and Ann, sons Isaac Jr. and George; daughters Esther Hart and Burey or Burer Hickenbottom. The last named had a daughter Grace Hickenbottom, who would have been a granddaughter of Isaac Low, Sr.

It would appear from the above that Isaac Low, Sr., had wife named Ann and a daughter named Ann. He had a niece named Grace Mooney and a granddaughter named Grace Hickenbottom.

There are several possibilities to explain why Esther Low Green was said to be the daughter of Isaac and Grace Low on her marriage certificate:

1. The scrivener of the marriage certificate may have made a mistake in listing Ann Low as Grace.

2. Ann Low may have been known as Grace (in the Biblical Hebrew Ann meant Grace).

3. (And this seems most likely) Isaac Low, Sr., may have been married twice. His first wife, mother of Esther Green, may have been named Grace. His second wife, Ann Mooney Low, may have been the mother of only William and Ann Low, Jr., listed as their minor children.

According to Hinshaw's Vol 1, p. 1044, Anne Mooney (Low?) was born 1-21-1747-8 O.S. According to her tombstone, Esther Low Hart Green was born 3-17-1754. This would quite conclusively indicate that Esther was a child of Isaac's first marriage to Grace ———, because Ann Mooney Low was only six or seven years older than she.

On 10-4-1809 the New Garden (N. C.) M.M. granted Ann Low and her children, William and Ann, a certificate to the West Branch (O.) M.M.

It is interesting to note that the only Lowes present at the wedding of Esther Low-Hart to Amos Green were her father Isaac, her brother Isaac, Jr., and her sister Ann Low, Jr. If Ann Low had been her real mother instead of her step-mother would she not have attended her wedding? Perhaps the scrivener was right in listing her mother as Grace Low on the marriage certificate.

To add to the confusion, Isaac Low, Sr., made a will 1-4-1790 (just about a month after he signed the wedding certificate of his daughter, Esther Low Hart, to Amos Green), but in the will he still referred to her as Esther Hart. Perhaps he was then sick and feeble and neither he nor the scrivner had become accustomed to her new name. In his will he made provision for the care of his two young children until they became 21. The others were old enough to be married.

Mrs. Minerva Lester Power of San Francisco has made a detailed study of this seeming contradiction in the names of Esther Green's mother and to her we are indebted for many of the facts relating to it, and to the following data which may be used in establishing D. A. R. membership for those descending from Isaac Low, Sr., who was a private in the Georgia Line troops during the Revolutionary War, thus making Esther Low-Hart Green a true daughter of the American Revolution.

Isaac Low was appointed inspector of Provisions purchased by the Commissioners for Richmond County, Ga., by the Executive Council in session in Savannah October 26, 1778. On January 12, 1782 he was appointed Justice of Richmond County by the house of assembly. On December 15, 1784 the Governor in Council in Savannah signed a grant to him of 287½ acres of bounty land in Richmond County.

He and his son Isaac, Jr., are both found in the certified list of Georgia troops. It is thought that he was born in Virginia about 1726 and came from North Carolina with a company of Quakers to St. Paul's Parish in 1768 which later became Richmond, Columbia, McDuffie and a part of Warren Counties. He was granted 250 acres.

In 1769 he described himself as a settler of Wrightsborough Township, St. Paul's Parish, having a wife and seven children. In 1770 he was granted lot No. 68 in Wrightsborough. On September 29, 1773 he was appointed by the Executive Council as one of the Commissioners of the road leading from Wrightborough to Augusta.

His children were:

Isaac Low Jr. b. 1746, m. Elizabeth Walker

George Low m. Elizabeth ———

Burey or Burer Low m. ——— Hickenbottom or Higginbotham

Esther Low b. about 3-7-1754, m. (1) Samuel Hart, (2) Amos Green

William Low

Ann Low (was it she who signed her name "Ann Low Jr." on the marriage certificate of Esther and Amos Green?)

Mrs. Power's record further states that Ann Mooney Low was born about 1728 and died after 1790 and was married about 1745. Isaac, Sr., died about 1790 in Richmond County, Ga.

Those wishing to perfect D.A.R. membership may refer to "Historical Collections of Georgia" Chapters (N.S.) D.A.R. Vol. 2, pp. 10, 246, 259 and 308, also to Vol. 10 of Chandler's "Revolutionary Records of Georgia" Vol. 2, p. 116 and Vol. 13, p. 76 and to Knight's "Georgia Roster of the Revolution" pp. 110 and 386.

The Revolutionary War record of Isaac Low, Sr., was verified by the Registrar General of the D.A.R. March 30, 1937.

Death of Amos Green, Sr.

The marriage of Esther and Amos Green terminated with his death only about eight years after their marriage. He was only 44 and she 45.

For the second time she was widowed. Now with two children by her first marriage and three by her second marriage, destined to spend the last half of her life as a widow.

His death is recorded in the Wrightsborough M.M. minutes 2-23-1797. She does not seem to have been one of those ladies who then considered it beyond the ability of women to engage in business, for she had herself appointed administratrix of her husband's estate.

In Book B, pp. 79 and 80 of the Journal of the Inferior Court of Wilkes and Columbia County, Georgia, appears the following:

"Pursuant to an order of the honorable, the Inferior Court of Columbia County, will be sold to the highest bidder, on the first Monday in Mareh 1800 one hundred fifty aeres of land lying and being in the said county of Columbia on the waters of Maddock's Creek, joining land of Cain (or Cam) Thomas, Samuel Holloman and others, being part of the real estate of Amos Greene, deeeased and sold for the benefit of the heirs and creditors — the sale to take place on the premises."

"Ester Greene, Admt.
29th Nov. 1799"

As previously noted in the letter from Dr. Jesse C. Green to Olivia E. Chapman, she was appointed May 1, 1797 as "Hester" Green and Amos must have had some property in Pennsylvania at his death for Hester or Esther gave her brother-in-law, Jesse Green, a power of attorney to settle Amos' estate March 3, 1801.

Stephen I. Rudd has a $10,000.00 bond given to her Feb. 16, 1799, together with several other old business papers of those days. The bond is as follows:

We, John, Samuel, Eli, Henry, Joseph and Soloman Diason, are held and firmly bound unto Hester Green in the just and full sum of $10,000.00 to be paid unto the said Hester Green, her certain attorney, her heirs, executors or assigns, to which payment full and truly to be made we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, etc., jointly and severally, firmly by these presents, sealed without seals and dated this 16th day of February 1799.

The condition of the above obligation is such that if the above bounden Diasons will the cause their Brother Stephen Diason to make this said Hester Green his right to a certain traet of land sold to the sd. Hester Green by John and Samuel Daisons then this obligation to be void otherwise to remain in full foree and virtue.

Soloman Diason
Samuel Daison
John Diason Eli Diason
Henry Diason Joseph Diason

Sealed and delivered
T. Rives
Isaac Hart

Another similar bond for $800.00 was given her May 6, 1799, by Henry, Joseph, Eli and Soloman Diason, its eondition was that there would be caused to be made unto that Hester Green the claims of Abraham and Herey Dison, late of Georgia, to certain tract of land lying in the state and county of Wilkes on Little River containing 260 acres.

Esther Moves to Ohio

She seemed to have remained in Georgia longer than most of the other Wrightsborough Quakers who left in such numbers for Ohio and other points on the new frontier that the town became abandoned and the Monthly Meeting dissolved. When she and her family left for Ohio she and her children, Jesse, Hannah and Amos, had to be granted a certificate by the New Garden M.M. as Wrightsborough was no longer functioning and they were transferred under date of 7-29-1809 to Miami (O.) M.M.

However a letter, which must have been written to Esther Low Hart Green by Rebecah Hart March 14, 1809, indicates that she had already gone to the "western country" (Ohio) and possibly sent back for her letter of transfer dated 7-20-1809.

The letter was probably written by a young child who was her niece by her first marriage. It is as follows:

North Carolina, Orange County
March 14, 1809.

Dear Aunt

Rebekah Hartt

(Nathan Gifford, son of William and Kezia Jones Gifford, married a Rebecca Hart, daughter of Isaac and Sarah Hart, who was born in 1801. They were married at Elk, O., in 1817. If it was the same Rebecca Hart who wrote the above letter she had her wish to go to the "western country" and was only eight years old when the letter was written. However Hinshaw Vol. 5, p. 66 seems to disprove it was the same Rebecca.)

Henry Meets Hannah Again in Ohio

Hannah Green, daughter of Amos and Esther Green, must have been about 17 when she moved with her mother to Ohio from Georgia. It had been six or seven years since she and Henry Jones had lived in Wrightsborough, Georgia. They probably knew each other there as children, until Henry's father moved to North Carolina when he was 13 and Hannah was only 11.

They must have had considerable news for each other concerning their mutual acquaintances. Eventually 1813, about four years after she arrived in Ohio, they were married by a Justice. Although she was a friend and should not marry outside the Church membership, she evidently loved him enough to endure the necessity of bringing in an offering condemning her outgoings in marriage with a man not in membership with Friends.

He was then 23 and she 21. They lived there (probably near West Elkton) for seventeen years before the family exodus to Michigan in 1830.

The Cass County History of 1882 says of Henry: "During his residence in Ohio he was engaged in farming and merchandising and in both vocations was successful."

Hannah Dismissed from the Church

After their purchase of the new lands in Michigan and before they finally left their Ohio home it seems that Hannah was too busy to regularly attend church service and perhaps too excited to remember her "thees and thous." The result was quite disastrous for her for according to the records of the Elkton Monthly Meeting of Women Friends: "4th day 9th month 1830. Women friends inform this meeting that they have delt with Hannah Jones for neglecting the attendance of our meetings and deviating from plainness of address until they are satisfied to disown her with which the meeting unites."

A "testification" was prepared against her produced and signed and referred to the women.

It is possible that Hannah was even then in Michigan (or en route) and may never have known that she was so "disowned," by the Friends in Ohio. About ninety days after the testification against her her eleventh child, Phineas, was born in Michigan, who may have been the cause of her "neglecting the attendance of meetings."

"The History of the Friends in America," page 193, says: "another cause of the diminution in numbers was the strict enforcement of the discipline and prompt disownment of members for what in this day seem comparatively slight offenses. To marry a non-member, or to make use of any other religious marriage ceremony than that of Friends was a disownable offense on the ground that it recognized what was called, in the rather severe language of the society in that day, a "hireling ministry." Many other things that would now be esteemed trivial, but which had had, at the beginning at least, a foundation in some principle that was deemed important, were made the cause for expulsion from the Society. That the denomination should have lived all through such restrictions, especially as it was not thought right to use any efforts to obtain new members, is a striking evidence of the power that was in the body."  The wonder is so many remained and not that there was a decline."

"Great changes have taken place since the tide has turned, and Friends became an aggressive growing body, instead of a diminishing one. The old peculiar cut of dress and the "plain" language of "thee" and "thou" have been discarded as having no religious value for the present age. The numerical names for months and days are still almost universally used by Friends in their official language and in their records, but the practice of using them in ordinary conversation is rapidly dying out.

There has been a considerable relaxation in the discipline.  The attitude of the meeting and its officers has long ceased to be one of judging with a view to cutting off the offender, and is now one of encouragement toward the weak and the restoration of those who are astray. As soon as this feeling became general the rapid decline in members ceased."

Early Days in Michigan

When Henry and Hannah and their ten children first arrived in Michigan he bought a lease on the school section (16) in Penn Township, Cass County, where they remained four years and where Phineas and their last child, Jesse G., were born December 1830 and December 18, 1832. Ultimately he located on the west side of the prairie. His father gave him 160 acres in the northeast part of the township, including the mill site at the outlet of Jones Lake on the Dowagiac River. With the aid of H. Langston he built the mill in 1830. For three years John Nixon, his son-in-law, had an interest in the mill. During the remainder of his life Henry continued to operate the mill, put in carding machinery, and farmed about 800 acres.

According to the Pictorial and Biographical Record (1893) he was "a man of more than ordinary intelligence" * * . "A fine man, physically large and well proportioned and very seldom ill."

His abilities were recognized by the electorate on various occasions. In 1831 he was elected the first highway commissioner of Penn Township and again in 1846 when the roads were relocated he was elected to this office. He was also its first school inspector.

According to the Cass County History of 1882: "his benevolence and hospitality was proverbial and he endeared himself to the entire community by his many acts of kindness and among the pioneers of the county it is but justice to say that no one held a larger portion of public esteem than he."

"He was recognized as a man of ability and unquestioned integrity, and was selected for many positions of trust and responsibility * * * ."

January 30, 1835, by Act of the State Legislature he was named with two others as Commissioners to lay out a road from Cassopolis to Galien River.

Later he was elected Supervisor of Penn Township and when the Legislature abolished the Board of Supervisors (comprised of one from each township), he was elected as one of three commissioners in a county wide election to replace the Board. This office he held until the legislature later reverted to the old system.

During his tenure as County Commissioner, August 7, 1839, the Commissioners entered into an agreement with Jacob Silver and others known as the Court House Company to erect the first County Court House in Cassopolis, the consideration being $6,000. and a portion of the public square.

"The Pictorial and Biographical Record," above referred to, states that Henry Jones was a warm admirer of the Democrat president, General Andrew "Stonewall" Jackson. One reason may have been because he and the President were both natives of the state of North Carolina and he may have approved the true type of democracy then said to have been typified by General Jackson, or possibly his military record.

In "Great Epochs in American History," page 4, it is written: "In Jackson's election the so-called aristocracy was overthrown and democracy pure and simple came into power. Of this new force in public life Jackson was their ideal. Strong of head, true of heart, perfectly honest, but thoroughly personal, partisan and aggressive, he enabled the people to realize in him a personification of their own most obvious characteristics. His election marked a revolution. That revolution was popular and its influence long endured."

The Federal census of 1860 for Penn Township, Cass County, Michigan, lists Henry Jones as a farmer with property valued at $8,000. and the following family:

| Name | Age | Sex | Birthplace |
|----------------|-----|-----|----------------|
| Henry Jones | 60 | m | North Carolina |
| Hannah Jones | 57 | f | Georgia |
| Rebecca Jones | 32 | f | Ohio |
| Phebe Jones | 25 | f | Ohio |
| Hannah Jones | 24 | f | Ohio |
| Henry Jones | 23 | m | Ohio |
| Abigail Jones | 21 | f | Ohio |
| Pliny H. Jones | 19 | m | Michigan |
| Jesse Jones | 17 | m | Michigan |

Esther, Lydia and Amos were then married with homes of their own. George W. had gone in the "Gold Rush" to California and Elizabeth was deceased.

The next year, March 9, 1851, Henry passed away at nearly sixty-one years of age. To Miss Sadie Lane of Eaton, Ohio, we are indebted for a newspaper account of his death which follows:

"DEATH OF HENRY JONES

"Henry Jones died at his residence on Young's Prairie on Sunday the 9th of March last. Henry Jones aged 60 years.

"The death of Henry Jones requires something more than the usual obituary notice. When a good man dies the whole circle of his acquaintance, an entire community, feel his loss scarcely less than his bereaved family. We should treasure up his virtues, record the many evidences of his goodness and point to them with pride as examples worthy of imitation.

"Mr. Jones was born in Guilford County, North Carolina, on the 28th day of May, 1790. At the age of 17 he left his native state and settled in Preble County, Ohio, where he remained until 1830. Early in that year he emigrated with his family to Young's Prairie in this county where he resided up to the time of his death. To know him was to respect and love him. He was ever kind to the poor. He gave without stint and his gifts were bestowed without ostentation or show. They proceeded from a heart naturally good, from one filled with active practical philanthropy. He never failed to respond warmly to the claims of charity or the cries of those in distress. In his family he was an exemplary husband and a kind indulgent father, and in his neighborhood an universal favorite. His numerous friends know full well the loss they, and the community, have suffered and deeply sympathize with his sorrowing family."

His wife, Hannah, survived until March 25, 1884, aged 92. They are both buried in Young's Prairie Cemetery in Penn Township, Cass County, Michigan.

Henry An Early Banker?

Henry held about 17 notes due to him at the time of his death as shown from the above inventory. The files of his estate show about 30 notes that he owed to others ranging from as small as $2.25 to $1500. From the size of his estate it would appear that he must have been considered one of the wealthiest men of the community. He ran the community mill. Certainly no need for him to borrow all these various sized sums that he owed to these many people. It would, therefore, appear that actually they intrusted their money to him as they would today intrust their money to a banker, and he in turn loaned it with his own money to other persons.

Perhaps it was this practice of borrowing and reloaning by his father, that eventually resulted in his son George founding the G. W. Jones Exchange Bank in Marcellus, Michigan, in 1877.

It is interesting to note that one of the claims filed in Cass County, Michigan, Probate Court against the estate of Henry Jones was that of his brother-in-law, John Lamm of Preble County, Ohio. The claim involved three notes; one given him by Henry in the amount of $496.45 dated Oct. 21, 1847, another for $11.40 was given John Lamm by Nathan Jones but left with Henry for collection. The other for $640. was given John Lamm by David Brady and left with Henry for collection. Lamm's claim was paid him in 1854 and he evidently sent Henry's brother, William, who lived in Ohio, up to Michigan for the money as he receipted for it to George W. Jones, the administrator, describing himself as agent for John Lamm.

This seems to further confirm the fact that Henry was sort of a private banker, loaning his brother-in-law's money for him in Michigan, and borrowing some himself to reloan.

He brought fruit trees with him when he first came to Mich. from O. He became one of the prominent farmers of Penn Township and at one time owned over 1000 acres of land. According to the county history, "He was an estimable man, and highly esteemed by all who knew him, for his moral worth and social qualities." 144. GEORGE⁶ JONES (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, George⁵) d. Cass Co., Mich., 9-25-1832, m. Elk (O.) M.M. 4-6-1820 Mary "Aunt Polly" Bogue (dt. Joseph and Mary Newby Bogue) b. N. C. 2-20-1797, d. Cass Co., Mich., 8-15-1870. A letter written by their daughter Sarah quotes her mother as saying that her father was born in N. C. in 1801, and that they were married 4-5-1820. However, the church records show his parents were living in Georgia in 1801. They moved to N. C. in 1803. In the Elk (O.) M.M. records at the time of their marriage in 1820 it describes her as being from Preble Co. (O.) and him as being from Butler Co. (O.).

She was a family heroine of the early pioneer days. Two years after they moved from Ohio to Michigan (in 1832) she became a widow with six children to support and educate amidst the privation of a very new country. She never remarried but devoted her life to the care of her children. She was affectionately known by all as "Aunt Polly."

The Cass County History says of her: "Left alone with a large family her superlative management and practicability stood in full stead for their lost father. She built the first frame house on the Prairie, superintended the farm and its marketing, and made time for kind and helpful offices to sick and unfortunate neighbors. She was widely known and universally respected and though long gone to her reward, her memory is still green in the hearts of her beneficiaries."

During the principal portion of her life she was a devoted member of the Society of Friends and later a member of the Church of Christ. According to her obituary: "She spent the autumn of her life preparing to gather the golden fruit of the better land. She lived a life of labor and love, ever true to her conviction of right. Life's labor just done, in the quiet of a beautiful summer eve, amidst tears of affection, she gently fell asleep in Christ — Blest sleep."

Like her sister-in-law, Mary Bogue Jones, she was left a widow in 1835 with five small children in a pioneer country. M. von Carnass by Rev. George Simm of the M. E. Church South in San Jose. Newspaper account of his death:

ANOTHER OF SANTA CLARA'S PIONEERS GONE

Nathan Jones' Death Yesterday

One of Earliest Settlers in This Valley

History of His Life

The number of these brave and hardy pioneers who braved the dangers of the plains to gain the golden soil of the western land was sadly lessened yesterday (3-22-1891) by the death of Nathan Jones, one of the first comers to this state, and earliest settlers of Santa Clara Valley. The announcement of his death caused a profound and heartfelt sorrow to the many friends who had felt the warmth of his genial nature, and his old acquaintances among the pioneers, who knew him as a true-hearted, loyal comrade and staunch associate.

Nathan Jones was born in Prevost (Preble) county, Ohio, May 15, 1810, of Quaker parentage, and spent his boyhood days on his father's farm about 30 miles from Cincinnati. In 1829 a large portion of the Jones family determined to get westward, and among these was the father of the deceased. The party travelled through what was then an almost trackless wilderness, and finally arrived at a place now known as Young's Prairie in Cass County, Michigan. Then the deceased with his father engaged in farming pursuits and acquired large lumber interests. The deceased also ran a saw mill and later was proprietor of a woolen mill. At the same time he had a farm at Elkhart, Ind., besides two in Michigan. Here he remained until 1850, when stories of wealth of the Occident tempted him, and selling out his possessions he took the long journey to California. He first settled with his family in Greenwood Valley (near Placerville) but the climate being unsuited to his healthfulness he remained but a few months. The fact of the wonderful fertility of this part of the state (Santa Clara Valley) and especially of this valley, came to his knowledge and it was here he determined to come. He settled on a farm about three miles south of Mayfield and engaged in lumbering and agricultural pursuits for about 16 years. His place was noted all over the valley and beyond its confines. Here the traveler was always given accommodations and never was a cent extracted therefor. Many a poor wayfarer was helped in a substantial manner and blessed the generous heart of the deceased.

He owned a gulch, near the ranch, which still bears his name, and the redwood it contained was marketed by Mr. Jones. To facilitate the transportation of the lumber a wooden tramway about a mile in length was built from the gulch. This was often jokingly referred to by old pioneers as the first railroad in the state. (In 1933 one thousand acres of cut over timber in Jones' Gulch was purchased by the Y.M.C.A. of San Francisco for a Boys' Camp at a cost of $15,000.)

After about 16 years residence at this place the deceased sold out and moved to San Diego, settling on what was supposed to be a piece of government land in Cohome Valley. After having spent considerable money in its improvement, the title was brought in question and the land was decided to be part of an old Spanish grant and Mr. Jones was dispossessed. He then took up a piece of Government land in the Julian mountains. About this time he was stricken with paralysis and never entirely recovered from the effects of the shock, it impairing his energy and enfeebling him to a great degree.

He came back to San Jose, but returned shortly to San Diego. Three years ago he went to Portland, but stayed but a short time, and returning to San Jose took up his residence with his son, Captain W. G. Jones, at 486 South First Street.

About two weeks ago he was attacked with la grippe and his old age and enfeebled health made it impossible for him to withstand its ravages. He lingered until 3:30 yesterday morning when death closed his long life of usefulness.

Surviving him are one son and two daughters — Captain W. G. Jones, who is an officer on the police force of this city, Mrs. K. Bonar, who resides at Portland, Oregon, and Mrs. Henry Hoover, the wife of Henry Hoover of this city.

Elijah and Martha Miller Mendenhall). He was mentioned on page 39 of the "Mendenhall Genealogy" (1940) by Marmaduke J. Stafford as follows:

"Marmaduke's father died when he was about 4 years old. (His mother afterward married Nathan Maddock.) Marmaduke lived with them a short time, then he lived with his uncle Marmaduke 4 miles N.W. of Camden, Ohio, until his marriage in 1830. Then he and his bride moved on the farm which his father had entered (Sec. 34, Gratis Twp., Preble Co., O.). He lived there until his death. He was married to Elizabeth Johnson at the Paint Creek Meeting house according to the custom of Friends. Theirs was the pioneer life, but little land was yet cleared. They had few of the comforts we have now. Opportunities for education were few. Reading, writing, spelling and arithmetic were the only subjects taught. Schools were supported by subscription. Grandfather wanted to study grammar. The teacher could not teach it but loaned him a book. Part of the farm was only a few rods from Elk Creek. On the edge of the farm was a large sulphur spring which furnished sufficient water power to run a trip hammer in a small sickle factory. Grain was cut either with a cradle or with a hook called a sickle but like a grass hook except the bevelled side was ground like the bevelled side of a sickle section of a modern reaper. Marmaduke was a successful farmer. He was very industrious and possessed an even temper. He was interested in the welfare of his community. He served as guardian of his nephew, Alexander Mendenhall. After his daughter Martha's death he made a home for his grandson, Marmaduke Stafford." "He filled many places of responsibility and usefulness both in and out of the Friends meeting. His wife, Elizabeth, had many good qualities, but was more of a retiring nature. Poor health kept her from doing much she would like to have done."

"The Pearsons, Their Ancestors and Descendants" (1941) says of Esther Bailey Stubbs: "Her children were the ablest among the Bailey families. * * * She was short, plump, very fair, with auburn hair and blue eyes. She was a very attractive woman, with a fund of humor, quick wit and gracious personality. Energetic and capable. She had great faith and perseverance in prayer. She remained in prayer until she received Divine assurance that her children would all be saved and meet her in heaven. At the time of the grasshopper plague in Kansas she knelt at the edge of the lovely corn field, which they so desperately needed, and prayed that it be spared, received the wanted assurance and went to the house and to bed. It was spared, the only green oasis in a desert of barrenness, laid waste by the hordes of devouring pests. She was smart and sensible. As a girl she attended Earlham College." m. 280. ESTHER⁷ JONES (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, George⁵, Henry⁶) d. 11-10-1894 Cass Co., Mich., m. 1832 Cass Co., Mich., John Nixon b. 11-15-1808 Randolph Co., N. C., d. 6-10-1882 Cass Co. (s. Dr. Phineas and Milicent Henley Nixon). When they were married lumber was so scarce that a door of the house had to be taken down to splice out the table where the many guests were seated. The account of his death as published in the Cassopolis (Mich.) National Democrat is as follows:

"A PIONEER GONE

In rapid succession the Pioneers of Cass County are being called away. One by one they fall, leaving names never to be forgotten, monuments that will never crumble, and with the sweet satisfaction that they leave families that will do honor to their fair names. Among those who have recently been called to the reward of the just, we now have to record the name of John Nixon, a name known far and wide, a name honored by all who speak it. No persons knew him but honored him for his simple virtues, strict honesty, and true goodness of heart. Old and young, rich and poor, all found a friend in Uncle John Nixon, as he was called by everyone. Many times he jocosely spoke of his "innumerable nieces and nephews." His disposition gave him that fatherly expression ever seen in his countenance which caused everyone to see in him the true and honest friend. Many years has he labored in this county and helped to make it what it is; he leaves a family of which he was proud.

During his later sickness he asked when the Pioneer Picnic would be held. Being asked what he would like to say to the Old Folks, his answer was, "Tell them that I have good children to present to them."

He had great interest in the association and would have so much enjoyed meeting his old friends once more.

The subject of this sketch was born in Randolph Co., North Carolina, Nov. 15, 1808. He was the son of Dr. Phineas Nixon and the tenth of a family of twelve children. His mother's maiden name was Milicent Henley. He was thus connected with the Henleys of central and eastern Indiana, a large and highly respected family whose ancestors came from Randolph Co., N. C. His parents were strict members of the Society of Friends and his father for many years was head of the meeting of Black Creek where the family attended services. He received a good education for young men of his time, and used it to good advantage after he came to Michigan. He followed the Tanner's trade until he emigrated west. He came to Richmond, Ind., in August 1830, and in company with his brother Gabriel, came to Michigan in November of the same year. He lived with Uncle John Townsend during the winter and in the spring went with a surveying party to survey Kalamazoo Co. and territory on the Grand River. He camped alone one night on the present site of Kalamazoo. In June he returned and lived with his brother Gabriel near the present residence of William Jones. He worked the remainder of the year '31 and the year '32 for different members of the Jones family and made his home principally with Henry Jones.

Mr. Nixon was married to Esther, oldest daughter of Henry and Hannah Jones, August 26, 1832. They made their home with Mrs. Nixon's father until the next summer when Mr. Nixon took a third interest in the Jones mill at the place now called Brooklyn. They lived at that place two years, where their oldest child was born. They then moved to a small house near the entrance to the present residence. Within the next two years Mr. Nixon purchased eighty acres of land in the west part of Young's Prairie where the family lived until the year 1864, when by an exchange of property with Jesse Jones, they obtained the old homestead of Henry Jones where Mr. Nixon ended his useful life in peace and comfort surrounded by a large family.

He was the father of eleven children, nine of whom survived him. Seven grandchildren greeted his old age but three only survived him, two of whom are in Colorado.

On the 31st of December last while riding in a carriage with Mr. George of central Indiana, he was stricken with paralysis on the left side. He regained consciousness but was quite sick for a few weeks. He improved slowly and was able to use his injured limbs to some extent, but was attacked with the severe cough that seemed to be epidemic throughout the country. It gradually wore him down and he was finally attacked by quick consumption which was the immediate cause of his death. For a number of weeks he was conscious that he could not get well. Although he did not wish to leave the world yet, he was resigned to the will of providence.

During the last two or three weeks of his illness his suffering was very great. Time and again he pleaded with God for mercy to spare him from so much pain. He prayed to be released from this earth and asked those around him to pray that he might have more strength to bear his sufferings. As he begged for deliverance he expressed a firm conviction that he would soon be in Heaven to meet his brothers, sisters and children, who had gone on before. In his delirium, he frequently spoke to and of his younger days. Many and many times did he ask to go home. He would say: "Come mother, let us go home; we can find such a good place to rest, and there is no rest here." It seemed hard for him to go and leave his dear companion, the one who had walked by his side for nearly a half century. At one time he said, "I am going away, and it is such a glorious thing to know that I leave my family in good circumstances, and oh, what a glorious thing it would be if I could take Mother with me." He begged his children to always live in peace and meet him on the better shore. When asked if he felt as if Jesus bore him up, his answer was "yes."

The day before his death he said that he wanted to see Jesus and his angels, that his days were past, and that he was tired of the trials of the earth. During the day his sight failed; late in the evening he asked who was by, his daughter said, "I am here father and here is mother." He grasped her hand and said, "Mother, I can't stay with you any longer. I am going away in the morning." At 2:15 A. M. on the 10th day of June, 1882, he peacefully breathed his last, at the good age of 73 years, 6 months and 25 days. After the most intense suffering in the evening during which he lost the power of articulation, he then sank into a quiet slumber from which he did not awaken to earth, but in which his soul was borne from the frail body to the cool shade for which he so often pleaded, where he could rest in peace.

His sufferings are over, but it is hard to part with dear Uncle John. His was a life full of years nobly spent, and the world is better for his having lived in it.

Mr. Nixon was formerly a member of the society of Friends, but at the time of the Hicksite separation in the year 1830, he renounced his connection with the society, saying that he was so averse to contentions that he could find no pleasure in such a connection. Since then he has owed allegiance to no church or creed, living upon the doctrine that a person should live for heaven on earth, and do all in his power for the good of his fellow man.

Had Mr. Nixon lived until the 26th of August he and his beloved companion would have arrived at the "golden mile-stone" of their married life. Ah, the golden monument that arose so brilliantly before him glittered in his sight. It was only such a little way and he would have had the glorious privilege of standing in its shadow and looking back over fifty years of life with his noble companion; fifty years of a life well spent. But no! he has fallen with his foot almost upon the base. As his sun was sinking to the western horizon, and his shadow fell beautifully back over the road he had travelled, he was doomed to fall with his eyes yet looking westward at the "golden milestone."

The funeral exercises were conducted by Rev. E. M. Stephenson, of Cassopolis, at 3 o'clock on June 11th. He paid a touching tribute to the deceased as a personal friend, a pioneer, and as a true and upright man. His sermon was especially appropriate and was highly complimented, by the large concourse of friends assembled at the residence to pay the last respect to an honored name. The funeral procession was one of the largest ever seen in the County, in which no lodge or Order officiated. There were over eighty teams on the premises, most of them following the remains to their last resting place in the Jones Cemetery on Young's Prairie.

Thus we bid farewell to our dear old friends, the pioneers of our County. Soon they will all have passed away, and will live in the pages of history, and the hearts of the following generations."

286. GEORGE WASHINGTON⁷ JONES (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, George⁵, Henry⁶). When only six years old his father and grandfather decided to move from Ohio to Michigan. As stated in the biography of his grandfather, the trip was made by wagon carriages and riding horses; with two four-horse teams, one two-horse team, four yoke of oxen and sundry livestock bringing up the rear. It must have been an occasion of no little moment to this six year old boy.

It was the fall of 1830 when the family arrived in Cass County, Michigan, at the township named after William Penn. As their land was principally prairie land they probably did not have as great problems with the clearing of trees from the land as did other early settlers. But, without question, the Indians must have been fairly numerous at that time. Most of the land surrounding the prairie was covered with a dense growth of trees. Nearby was beautiful Diamond Lake where fishing and swimming, no doubt, occupied much of the leisure time of the sons of the pioneers.

The schooling that he received came from teachers the parents hired to teach the children in certain homes at first. Eventually log schoolhouses were built and these were in time superceded by those made of wood and brick. Louisa Gedding is said to have taught the first school about 1830 in the house of Daniel McIntosh for $1.50 per week and board.

The first schoolhouses had a slab bench for the pupils to sit on, and a large fireplace at one end. The desks were made of slabs laid on wooden pins that were driven into the walls.

In the winter of 1830-31 William P. Gedding taught at the McIntosh home in Penn township for $10. per month and board. He was probably George W. Jones' first school teacher.

One of his early school books is now in the possession of his granddaughter, Donna Jones Schurtz, entitled "First Lines of English Grammar, being a Brief Abstract of the Author's large Work, designed for Young Learners" by Gold Brown. It was published in New York in 1826.

She also has a later book he must have acquired when a young man entitled "Dog and Gun, A Few Loose Chapters on Shooting, among which will be found Some Anecdotes and Incidents," by Johnson J. Hooper, also published in New York in 1856.

At first there were only Indian trails and no roads at all. Blazes on the trees frequently marked the way. The building and clearing of roads was an early necessity and George's father became active in that work as Road Commissioner of Penn township. The third road to be built was from Young's Prairie to Jones Mill.

Jones Mill near the northeast corner of La Grange Township on the west side of the prairie was his father's mill. The Jones family had owned a mill in Ohio and on arrival in Cass County put one in operation on a branch of the Dowagiac creek. It is no longer standing but not far from it in 1945 was a dam and mill owned by Berne Benedict. He says that the stones of the old foundation of the first mill can still be seen here and there at its location near the outlet to Jones Lake.

George W. must have helped his father in the mill, in addition to helping on the eight or nine hundred acres that he farmed.

He had arrived in Cass County just old enough to see and remember the country untouched by the woodsman's axe, and to live to see the forests conquered, the trails made into roads, the sparsely settled country constantly grow in population, and villages and cities spring up where only the solitude of the forest used to be.

Just one year after they arrived the man destined to be his future father-in-law, Judge Elias B. Sherman, and others laid out and platted the Village of Cassopolis at the northwest side of Diamond Lake, just a few miles south and west of the Jones land on Young's Prairie. Just eight years later when George was 15 his father as Supervisor of the county was letting the contract for the erection of the first county court house at Cassopolis.

The 1840s, when George W. was between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five, were for the most part years of economic depression in the United States. George was a member of a large family, and although his father was a large land owner, it is reasonable to believe that George W. then became impressed with the idea that the acquisition of wealth and its careful retention were important to an uninterrupted comfortable existence.

Pictures of him as a young man show him to have been handsome and striking. He was over six feet in height, dark hair, rather sharp appearing eyes, athletic build and fine features.

The Cass County History of 1882 says "Some men adapt themselves to circumstances and others push boldly forward and make their own, and of this latter class is George W. Jones. When he was 25 gold was discovered in California. The news electrified the country with its stories of wealth in vast quantities lying in the streams and mountains awaiting the miner's touch. Young and single, descendant of a long line of pioneers, impressed with the desirability of making his own fortune in the world, he set out with a company of men from that community to become a part of what was known as the 'Gold Rush'."

Many hundreds that started for California never reached there. Some turned back, some were killed by Indians and other succumbed to the rigors of the journey, the lack of food and water and its attendant illnesses. The picture of the sign "Pike's Peak or Bust" crossed out and written beneath "Busted" gave the humorous turn to situations that frequently proved gravely serious.

Most of those who crossed the plains to California travelled in wagons with rounded canvas tops and sides, known as covered wagons or prairie schooners, designed to keep out the sand, sun and rain. It usually took several months of most difficult travelling to reach California. There were no regular roads and few bridges. It is believed that George and his companions followed what was known as the "Oregon Trail."

His brother Amos and his uncle, Nathan Jones, went in a company of eleven men in two wagons. George may have been a part of this company.

From the "Bumble Bee," a monthly paper formerly published in Marcellus, is found an interview with Mrs. Carrie Tietzort Brown, a descendant of early Cass County pioneers, in which she states that her uncle, Eli Eck, was one of the party who accompanied George W. Jones to California and they became partners in the claim on which they prospected.

The price of fresh vegetables and fruits was so high that Eck refused to pay it and eventually contracted scurvy and died. He had left a wife and several little children in Cass County, and who did not know of his demise as means of communication were difficult in those days.

When George returned from California it was his sad duty to tell her of her husband's death. He told her that before he died he called him to his bedside and asked him to take to his wife and children his share of the gold that they had discovered and George gave the widow and her children about five thousand dollars in gold.

None of the Jones family remember that George W. ever brought any considerable amount of gold back from California for himself except enough to make a ring or two. Did he give his share as well as that of his deceased partner to the bereaved widow and children?

The immediate cause of his return to Cass County was word that reached him to the effect that his father was ill and unless "extraordinary efforts were put forth, his father's valuable estate of 900 acres would be lost."

Just why his father, Henry Jones, should get in debt in this manner is not now entirely clear. The Probate files show twenty or thirty notes proved as claims against his estate, the total not too great, but their amounts running from as small as $2.25 to $1500. Perhaps as a rich man's son he did not learn to realize the true value of money, and how hard it is to accumulate it. Perhaps it was because he had the expense of a large family and had just passed through the depression years of the 1840s.

He may have been considered a pioneer private banker for his estate was large, he had loaned money to many persons and had borrowed from a large number. Some of the notes he owed were as small as $2.25. Certainly, with his vast holdings there would have been no need for him to borrow such small amounts from so many persons, so it would seem that actually they were only intrusting their money to the rich man of the community, the miller, their friend, and he gave them notes for the money they left with him.

On the other hand, perhaps it was Henry's unusually generous nature that led him into debt. The Cass County History of 1882 says of Henry: "His benevolence and hospitality was proverbial and he endeared himself to the entire community by his many acts of kindness, and among the pioneers of the county, it is but fair to say that no one held a larger portion of public esteem than he." In his obituary it was recorded: "He was ever kind to the poor. He gave without stint and his gifts were bestowed from a heart naturally good, from one filled with active practical philanthropy. He never failed to respond warmly to the claims of charity or the cries of those in distress."

Such a charitable nature may have been the principal cause of his increasing indebtedness.

It was to his son, George W., in the gold fields that they looked for assistance. He returned from California by a different route than the one he followed on the way out. He took the boat from California to New Orleans, crossing the Isthmus of Panama on pack mules, and then taking the stage coach from New Orleans home. He had gold strapped to him in large leather money bags.

He arrived home just six weeks before his father died. He died March 9, 1851.

The Cass County History of 1906 says that capable financiers said that the estate would never be able to pay off its debts. In his petition to be appointed administrator of his father's estate he estimated the real estate at $12,000. and the personal property at $2,500. The same history further says that "nothing daunted, however, and with resolute spirit and determined energy he set to work, and with the assistance of two younger brothers, F. (Phineas) H. and J. (Jesse) G. Jones, after a term of eleven years (the final account was in 1859) by good financiering, economy and labor, he was able to divide $22,000. among the eleven heirs" after paying all the debts.

George proceeded to buy out the others heirs on at least a large portion of the land owned by his father and eventually erected on it what was described as "a fine residence" by the County History of 1906. It refers to the dwelling on the present Leach farm being south one-half of the northwest quarter of section twenty (20), on the east side of the Cassopolis-Decatur highway just south of the Quaker Acres farm owned by Donna Jones Schurtz and Carroll B. Jones, grandchildren of George W.

On that part of the Quaker Acres farm lying in the south quarter of section eighteen (18) west of the highway back from the road about a quarter of a mile used to stand the old barn and stone from the foundation of an old house that was one of the earliest Jones family dwellings. All traces are now gone, but the butternut doors, held together with round wooden pegs, are the present doors on the cottage of Carroll B. Jones at Cedar Lake, north of Marcellus.

It was in this house that Frank S. Jones, eldest son of George W. Jones, claimed that he was born in 1855, but his aunt, Celia Norton, told his younger brother, Carroll S. Jones, that Frank was born at Jones Mill which would have been a mile or two northwest from there, just off Young's Prairie in Section twelve (12), La Grange Township. It was not a serious question to his younger brother but it was to Frank and at one time he threatened to get out of the buggy in which they were riding if his brother persisted in saying he was born at Jones Mill.

Three days after Christmas in 1853 George married his first wife,

Emma Brewster Sherman. He was 29, soon to be 30; she was 18. She was a descendant of Elder William Brewster of Mayflower fame, and the daughter of Judge Elias Brewster Sherman of Cassopolis, the first probate judge of Cass County, who was one of the founders of the village of Cassopolis.

On the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the founding of that village in 1931, his great-grandson, Carroll B. Jones, was requested to speak at a commemorating celebration in that village in the presence of the State Governor and other dignitaries and his remarks were published thereafter in the Schoetzow History of Cass County and in the Marcellus News as follows:

"One hundred years ago on the banks of this Lake (Stone) stood the cabin of Abram Tietzort, surrounded by a dark, dense forest. It would not have been surprising to see an Indian, a deer or even a bear, enter the little clearing around his cabin, but one day a strange thing happened. Out of the woods came a lawyer. There was no open season on lawyers even then, and they were permitted to roam the woods at will.

"This lawyer was 28 years of age; his name was Elias Brewster Sherman, being named after his most illustrious ancestor, William Brewster, the chaplain of the Mayflower. He had just come from Ann Arbor, where he taught one of the first schools in that city.

"He came to this vicinity to settle government land and practice law. Among his first clients was one, Dr. Fowler, who desired to plat the village of Geneva and have the same named the county seat of Cass County. For his services young Sherman was to receive one lot in the new Village of Geneva. But Dr. Fowler failed to deed him the lot. It was a bitter disappointment for he had worked long and hard. But, as is quite frequently the case, that which seems an unbearable disappointment often turns out to be a blessing in disguise, and this disappointment proved to be an inspiration to Elias Brewster Sherman.

"He set out to have the act declared void which named Geneva the county seat, for the reason that the Commissioners who named it were self interested, having personally purchased land thereabout. He also cast about for a suitable location which he himself might buy, plat and have named the new county seat; and in his wanderings no spot seemed to suit his fancy better than the place where Cassopolis now stands.

"It was at this point that he came to the cabin of Abram Tietzort, and here learned that the three Jewell brothers also wished to purchase this same 80 acres. The purchase price was $100. He had $50, so he walked to Edwardsburg where he was able to interest his young attorney friend, Alexander H. Redfield, in the venture to the extent of $40. Again he set out on foot, this time for White Pigeon where the government Land Office was located. Time did not hang heavy on his hands, but the corpus mangus seems to have hung heavy on his feet, for he soon borrowed a horse from a man named Meacham and continued on the rainy way. That night he stayed in a deserted cabin along the trail leaving word with the katydids to call him early.

"The next morning as dawn was breaking he rode into the village of White Pigeon, negotiated a loan of $10., bought the 80 acres and started on his homeward journey. On the trail he met the three Jewell brothers en route to White Pigeon — history does not record what comment they made when they learned they were too late.

“Redfield and Sherman platted the village of Cassopolis, donated land for the county buildings and cemetery, and named three of the streets after the three commissioners who were to locate the new county seat; and one hundred years ago Cassopolis became the new county seat of Cass County.

“Elias Brewster Sherman lived to be the first Probate Judge, the first Prosecuting Attorney, the first Circuit Court Commissioner, and the first County Surveyor in Cass County.

“He was also the first man to be married in Cassopolis, an Episcopal Bishop having ridden half way across the state to perform the ceremony.

“I did not come here today to extol with many platitudes the praises of my great grandfather. I would merely state that he was first in many things, which fact may denote to you certain desirable qualities. But be it well remembered, and I cannot emphasize it too strongly, that if it had not been for your grandfathers and great grandfathers who came, with courage and bravery, to face the hardships of pioneer life, Cassopolis too, might have fallen into oblivion as did the village of Geneva, and the names of Redfield and Sherman would be unthought of today.

“If Elias Brewster Sherman were alive today, I am sure he would be proud of Cassopolis — proud that public spirited, charitable minded men and women live here, who are willing to put aside their customary duties without thought of personal gain, to sponsor this splendid centennial celebration.

“One hundred years are past, but one hundred years of even greater promise lie before you. Two weeks ago I breathed coal smoke and carbon monoxide gas in the city of Chicago, and thanked God for a town like Cassopolis. One week ago in the city of Akron, Ohio, I saw the world's largest Zeppelin, twice as large as the Graf Zeppelin, housed in a hangar covering $8\frac{1}{2}$ acres, large enough in which to play ten football games, a sight so impressive as to fill the most timorous with confidence in this mode of travel. Today with a turn of the hand you may hear lectures or music from many far distant cities. Soon Cassopolis will be on the shortest paved highway between Detroit and Chicago. And in a few years another great highway will extend from this village direct to Battle Creek to open for our great northeastern population a shorter route to Chicago and the west.

“All these: unpleasant cities, radios, great highways and air travel, are factors tending toward the decentralization of population and as this dissemination takes place Cassopolis will realize more truly the benefits that the future holds.

“In closing I congratulate Cassopolis on what it was, on what it is and on what it is to be.”

The great, great, great grandfather of Emma Brewster Sherman was Phillip Sherman, first secretary of the Colony of Rhode Island in 1639.

See page 15, "Sherman Genealogy." Her Grandfather Silver was Delegate to the Convention of Assent by which Michigan gained statehood in 1836.

The certificate of Elias Brewster Sherman's admission to the bar, dated November 2, 1828, issued by the Washtenau County Circuit Court of the Territory of Michigan, is in the possession of his great grandson, Carroll B. Jones, also a few of his old law books and docket entries.

He was admitted to practice before the territorial Supreme Court, December 16, 1838, and admitted to practice in Macomb County 7-7-1829. In 1833 he was said to be a resident of Calhoun County. See Vol. V, p. 36, Transactions of Supreme Court 1825-36.

George W. Jones and his bride Emma lived in one of the Jones farm houses either at Jones Mill at the outlet to Jones Lake in Sec. 12, La Grange Township, or west of the Cassopolis-Decatur highway on the south quarter of Section 18 in Penn Township. It was at one of these homes that their first child, Frank Silver Jones, was born August 23, 1855. Their second child, Carroll Sherman Jones, born November 18, 1857, was said to have been born where the present Quaker Acres farm house is located on the north half of the northwest quarter of section 20 in Penn Township. They definitely did at one time live in the fine, new house that he built on the south half of the northwest quarter of Section 20.

Those were busy years in which the Joneses applied themselves to saving the family acres, and to paying the debts of their good-hearted and generous father.

In 1861 George W. was elected the Treasurer of Penn Township. From the diary of Ellen Sherman Tietz of Cassopolis, the sister of Emma Brewster Jones, are found these entries:

"Saturday, January 12, 1861. Pa took all hands of us out to sister Emma's. Did not find her very well, but I tell you we made things fly around, and helped her all we could."

"Sunday, January 27, 1861. Sarah and Maek (Hull) went out to George Jones' today."

In April, 1861, Civil War broke out between the States. George Jones was 37, with two baby boys, a wife who was not well, and he was producing large quantities of food. Probably too old and too important as a food producer to be considered for military service, and he may have employed a substitute.

January 3, 1868 the Peninsular Railroad Extension Company was chartered for the extension of the railroad from Battle Creek to the Indiana state line. Later it was known as the Peninsular Railroad Company. Donations of right of way and cash subscriptions in Cass County amounted to about $100,000.

George W. believed that with the coming of the railroad there would be a sizable village either at the center of Marcellus Township or at its southwest corner, in Cass County. The county history of 1906 says: "With prophetic eye he seemed to see the line of the railroad and recognized that the present site of Marcellus would prove an eligible one for a village." The county history of 1882 says: "In 1868 George W. Jones purchased 211 acres of land on which Marcellus is now located for $13,000. which was then considered an extravagant price. Being impressed with the belief that from its geographical location in the center of the township, on the line of the railroad, and several miles distant from any village, it would be an available site for a village, he commenced at once to lay out a plat of one, and April 9, 1870, a plat was completed." About the same time he and Orson Rudd purchased 207 acres where the village of Wakelee now stands and in 1882 he owned three fourths of the original purchase. The deed was from Hiram Pulver to the 211 acres in Marcellus and was dated April, 1869.

George W. Jones and his family moved from Young's Prairie to their new home in Marcellus April 15, 1869, and it was so cold the first morning that their pump froze. The house they occupied was on the corner of Jones and Main Streets in the present village of Marcellus. It has since been moved back a block north on the north side of Reed Street and was owned by his daughter, Vera Jones Graham, in 1945.

No doubt, George W. received good counsel from his father-in-law, Judge Elias B. Sherman, with respect to the platting of villages, because he had already founded the village of Cassopolis.

In 1869 a few small business houses were erected in the new village of Marcellus. Among the first business men were: Thomas Burney, John Manning, Herman Chapman and Lewis Arnold.

Emma Sherman Jones for some time had not been well and eventually she went to "Our Home," one of the famous health resorts of the day, located at Rome, New York. Her father was born near there, although at the age of four his family moved to Cayuga County, New York.

The fashionable cure at Our Home consisted in outdoor exercise and cold water baths. It evidently was not what she needed. The doctor in charge encouraged her to stay, George W. wrote that he thought he was a quack, and Emma wrote that all she wanted in the world was to come home and see her two precious little boys before she died.

November 20, 1870, the family were seated at dinner and Emma was lying in the adjoining room. Her son Carroll excused himself from the table and went out to be near her. Suddenly she gave a cry and a gasp and practically died in the arms of her 13 year old son. She was only 34 years of age, and her death was a great shock to her boys and family, in spite of her long siege of illness.

According to the medical practitioners of the day, an abcess of the lung broke and suffocated her. She was buried in the first lot inside the front gate on the left in the cemetery that her father had given to the Village of Cassopolis.

In 1871 the first trains began to make regular trips through Marcellus and the town began to grow. As money came in from the sale of lots George did some trading in the grain markets. At one time his mind was made up to buy a membership on the Chicago Board of Trade, but friends dissuaded him.

From old vouchers it appears that in the fall of 1874, through Asa Dow, produce merchant, he proceeded to buy the offerings of clover and timothy seed on the Chicago market. In the spring of 1875 he sold these seeds through Dow at a profit from one dollar to one dollar and a half per bag. Bills of account show the transaction ran as high as $14,000.

Among the new residents in the booming village of Marcellus was Judge Nathan Osborn, formerly one of the first early Circuit Judges of St. Joseph County, the county first east of Cass County, Michigan.

He was father of Hon. James D. Osborn, one of the Circuit Judges of Elkhart, Indiana, and Hon. George Osborn, a Representative in the Indiana Legislature. His wife was Rebecca Adler Osborn.

His daughter, Lizzie Osborn, on February 12, 1874, was elected Secretary of an association for street crossings in the Village of Marcellus, and a mush and milk festival was held in Shaver's Hall with receipts as follows:

|-----------------|---------|
| Admittance fees | $8.50 |
| Pop corn | 3.00 |
| Candy etc. | 4.25 |
| Tables | 6.35 |
| Postoffice | 1.26 |
| Total | $23.36 |

On February 14, 1874, at a meeting at the residence of N. Osborn it was decided to have an old fashioned New England supper for street crossings February 26th. "The waiters of the tables are to be dressed in the costume of olden times." Carroll S. and Frank Jones were among those appointed to take charge of the tables.

February 26, 1874, "The citizens of Marcellus had an old fashioned New England Supper in Shaver's Hall for street crossings. A crowd gathered in the Hall at an early hour. After the waiters sung a piece and a few remarks and performances by the moderator (Nathan Osborn) supper was announced. The waiters were all in the costume suggested. Everything passed off in order and without any jars. We also had a candy stand and grab bag. Proceeds of the evening were $36.35. Donated by a friend $1. Total received $37.35."

The standing committee of the street crossing society met March 6, 1874, and resolved to loan the money in the treasury to Kenney, Carbine & Bridge until it was needed by the Society, and resolved to send a petition to the commissioners of highways of the town of Marcellus to have them grade a portion of the Main street.

That was the last entry in the Secretary's book. She was born September 9, 1853, and would have been 20 years of age when the Society was having their dinner and festival in Marcellus. Her father formerly lived in South Bend, Indiana, where she went to school.

George W. Jones admired this pretty young lady and eventually their romance culminated in their marriage March 15, 1876. He was 41 and she was 22. It was the same year that Doctor Carbine built the large brick three story, four store business block known as the Centennial Hall in Marcellus, and there were rumors that Marcellus might some day be as large as Chicago.

George W. had sent his two elder sons to Northern Indiana Business

Institute in Valparaiso, Indiana. When they returned there were two businesses needed in Marcellus. Many houses were being erected and lumber was needed so his son Frank was put in charge of a lumber yard.

The town also needed a bank. His father-in-law, Judge Sherman, had been one of the original stockholders in a bank formed in Cassopolis just a few years before, where Asa Kingsbury was the banker. After counseling with them, W. G. Beckwith and Judge A. J. Smith he decided to open the G. W. Jones Exchange Bank, a private bank, and in April 1877 it was first opened for business with his son, Carroll S. Jones, as its Cashier.

According to the county history of 1882 it is thus described: "About four years since, becoming impressed with the fact that his protege, the village of Marcellus, needed a bank, without any knowledge of the intricacies of the business, he immediately opened up one, with his son, C. S. Jones, as Cashier, and he has been successful beyond his most sanguine expectations. In fact, success seems to crown his every effort for, in addition to industry and perseverance he is possessed of fine business and executive ability."

In 1875 he was member of the Board of Education of School District No. 9 which comprised the village of Marcellus, and he was member of the building committee of that school in 1873 and in 1880 when a brick school building and its addition were built. In 1876 he was Treasurer of the Board of Trustees of the Methodist Church in Marcellus when they built a large brick church.

His second wife was active in the Baptist Church. The county history of 1906 says: "Mr. Jones was reared in the faith of the Society of Friends but did not become a member of any church, although he frequently attended religious services and contributed liberally to their support, being a firm believer in Jesus Christ and His teachings."

He frequently discussed with his second wife the various aspects of the Christian religion, and often would sit at home while she went to church. As soon as she returned he would ask her what the minister's text was, then while she was preparing dinner he would tell her how he would have interpreted the text. If his interpretation agreed with that of the minister he would say, "that minister must have been reading Swedenborg."

His Bible was very much worn. It was given to his namesake and grandson, George Wilbur Jones of Tucumcari, New Mexico.

His daughter says that he was a member of the Friends Church at Vandalia (or Penn) and was brought up in his youth as a member of that church and was taught to say "thee" and "thou" and to observe the teachings of that faith.

At the time of his death an effort was made to get a minister of the Swedenborg faith to deliver the funeral sermon, but none was available. As he liked the Rev. H. A. Essex, then the Baptist minister in Marcellus, he was requested to officiate.

Mr. Jones frequently teased his wife about being a "club woman," as she was one of the charter members of the L'Allegro Club, the first woman's club organized in Marcellus. She was also elected and served for some time as a member of the Board of Education in Marcellus.

His friends recalled that he enjoyed hearing a good funny story, but if someone would tell one that was "off color" he would say nothing and walk away.

Attorney Carl Benton of Lawton says that when he was a young boy living in Marcellus he became very ill and they despaired of his life. At that time George W. Jones came to their door and told his father that he knew little about medicine and would make a poor nurse but if money would help save the boy he would be glad to assist all he could and that they should feel free to call upon him.

"Politically Mr. Jones is a Democrat. He is a strong temperance man and takes a great deal of interest in that movement," says the "Pictorial and Biographical Record" of 1893.

October 22, 1881, his daughter, Vera Mae Jones, was born and before that, December 5, 1877, his son, Henry Bert Jones, was born.

In 1886 he moved his original Marcellus house back one block and built a large frame slate roof home in its place that is now owned by his granddaughter, Donna Jones Schurtz. The "Pictorial and Biographical Record" of 1893 described it as follows:

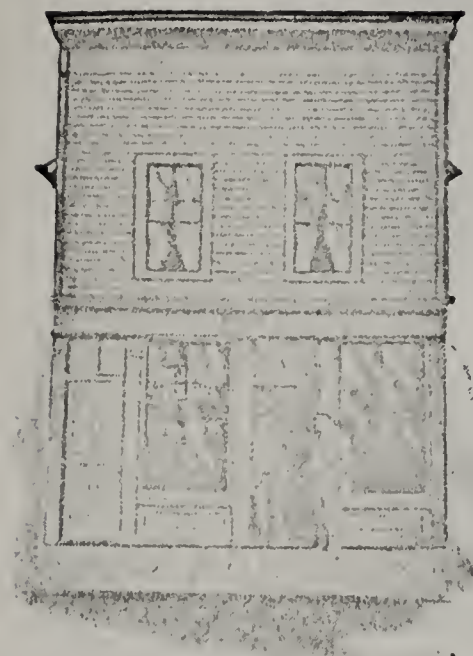

"He built the large, handsome residence where he now lives in 1886 at an expense of about $5,000., which has a hot air furnace and hot and cold water in every part of the house. To make it still more pleasant and cheerful there are three grates and it is furnished with taste and good judgment; no pleasanter house can be found in the county. In 1890 he built the large stone front bank building which he now owns. It is supplied with hot and cold water, is finished in hard wood and is one of the finest for the size of the town of any in the state."

The original bank building was a two story frame building which was moved to the northeast corner of Center and Dibble Streets, now owned by his grandchildren, Donna Jones Schurtz and Carroll B. Jones.

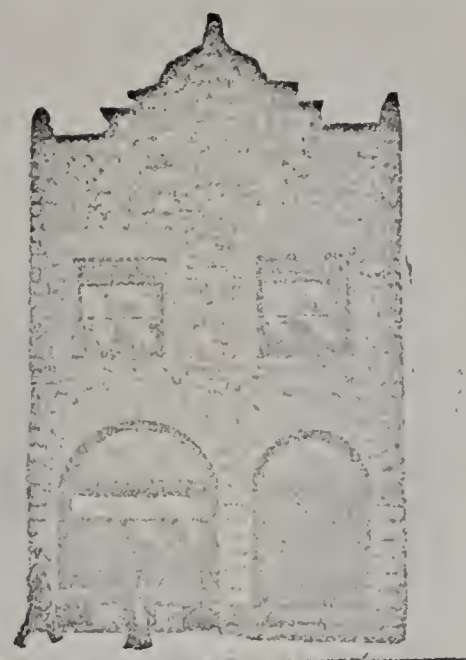

George W. Jones never took an active part in the details or book-keeping of his bank. His son, Carroll S. Jones, spent his life as either its cashier or president. His father often sat in an unusually large cherry chair, upholstered with black leather, in the lobby of the bank, where he would visit with his customers. He often went through the country buying livestock which he would ship to markets in the city. In the spring he would go through the country and contract to buy the farmers' lambs at a certain price in the fall. Until the Hudson Memorial Building was built in 1931 and his heirs gave the land for that purpose, two large red barns were located there near his house, where livestock was frequently fed and finished for market and farming operations on the Marcellus farm were carried on.

Although a private bank, it was his custom to make periodic statements to depositors of his bank so that they might be assured of the safe and conservative manner in which it was being conducted. One of the earliest now available showed total resources on April 30, 1884 of $86,561.35.

The statement of June 30, 1891, showed G. W. Jones, Sole Owner.

During the Panic of 1893 most of the deposits were paid back to the depositors so that about all that remained was the money and property of George W. Jones himself, but in 1895 the total assets were back again to $168,149.48.

During his later years he was out digging post holes one day when a friend came along and chided him saying that a man of his wealth should hire someone to do such work. He said it was not a matter of money, but that he had to have a certain amount of exercise each day and if he didn't get it he would surely die.

In 1896 he was struggling against Bright's disease and believing that the best medical help at that time was at the Sanitarium in Battle Creek he went there for help, but on April 29th of that year he passed away while there. He was returned to his home for burial in the Marcellus Township Cemetery, aged 72 years.

All who knew him spoke of him only with praise. The county history of 1906 said, "He died in 1896, honored and respected by all who knew him, not only by reason of the success he had achieved but also because of the straightforward business policy he had ever followed." The history of 1882 said: "In all his business undertakings he displayed remarkable foresight and sagacity. * * * He displayed marked business ability, executive force and correct judgment and whatever he undertook seemed destined to win success. The secret of his prosperity, however, is found in his unremitting diligence, careful study of any plan which he formulated and his determination in carrying it forward to completion."

Concerning his death the "Marcellus News" said:

"DEATH OF GEORGE W. JONES

Close of the Honorable and Successful Career of the Founder of Marcellus.

Funeral Saturday at 10 A.M.

Some six weeks ago, Mr. George W. Jones was stricken with lagrippe and heart-failure. A change of climate and all that medical skill could do were of no avail, for the hand of death was upon him; and surrounded by a loving wife, two of his sons, C. S. and H. Bert, and faithful nurses he passed peacefully away. His closing hours were made bright by a firm trust in an eternal inheritance on high, and he expressed himself as ready and anxious for the final summons. The end came at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon, April 29, 1896, at the sanitarium in Battle Creek.

Mr. Jones was a believer in Christianity, his preference being for the Swedenborg denomination; and after it was supposed he had passed away he revived and told the loved ones around him that he had seen the better land; that it was all bright and beautiful and he wanted to go.

George W. Jones was born in Preble County, Ohio, April 3, 1824, and with his parents, Henry and Hannah Jones, he moved to Young's Prairie in Penn Township in 1830, thus being one of the earliest pioneers to settle in this county. With the exception of two years, 1849-1851, spent in California, he has been a resident of Penn and Marcellus townships, and few men have ever done more toward turning a wilderness into homes for a prosperous people than has he.

At the death of his father, in 1851, he became administrator of the estate and by his executive ability, economy and hard work he saved the impending financial disaster. He afterward purchased a half interest in 207 acres of land, where Wakelee is now located, and at the time of his death owned the large part of this fine tract of land.

At the time the C. & G. T. Railroad was built he showed his keen foresight by recognizing the fact that a village must spring up in this vicinity and with that in view paid $13,000. for 211 acres of land, on which in 1868 he commenced to lay out a village.

The history and interests of Marcellus Village and Mr. G. W. Jones have since been identical. Its energy and thrift are largely due to his guiding spirit for it was not only his creation but has since been under his fostering care.

In 1878 he opened a bank here which under the joint management of himself and son, has proved successful beyond their most sanguine hopes and is one of the strongest financial institutions in this part of the state. He leaves an estate valued at nearly $100,000. so that his heirs, who will continue this business, are worth fully $120,000.

Mr. Jones was twice married, the first time to Miss Emma, daughter of the late E. B. Sherman of Cassopolis, by whom he had two sons, Frank S. and Carroll S. In 1876, six years after the death of his first wife, he married Miss Lizzie, daughter of Judge Osborn, who with their son and daughter, Henry B. and Miss Vera, survive him.

When it was seen that Mr. Jones was failing rapidly Wednesday it was thought best to bring him home, and his son Frank came back to open the house, but death came sooner than expected. Accompanied by Undertaker Walter, Mr. Frank Jones and Miss Vera went to Battle Creek Wednesday night and all returned with the remains Thursday morning.

The funeral party was met at the train by some 50 of our business men, who closed their stores and forming in line marched from the station to the home of the deceased.

As a further mark of respect the business houses will be closed Saturday morning during the funeral services, which are to be held at the house at 10 A. M., conducted by Rev. H. A. Essex. Interment will be made in the Bly Cemetery east of town.

Mr. Jones had passed his three score and ten and enjoyed to the fullest extent the fruits of his long and useful career, having all his faculties to the last. In his death the public recognizes a distinct loss, and joins in sympathy with the bereaved family."

His second wife survived him until January 13, 1933.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF GEORGE W. JONES

I, George W. Jones of Marcellus, Cass County, Michigan, being of sound mind and memory, and understanding, do make my last will and testament in manner and form following, to-wit:

First: I give devise and bequeath to my son Henry Bert Jones the sum of four thousand dollars to have and to hold unto my said son his heirs and assigns forever out of my personal property.

Second: I give, devise and bequeath to my daughter Vera Mae Jones, the sum of four thousand dollars, to have and to hold unto my said daughter her heirs and assigns forever out of my personal property.

Third: I further will and direct that my respected wife, Lizzie Jones, shall draw her interest as widow according to the Statutes of Michigan in the balance of my estate. In other words my said wife's interest in all my Estate shall be measured by the balance after deducting the aforesaid eight thousand dollars herein willed to her children Henry Bert and Vera Mae — provided always, and this will is made on this express condition that if my wife, Lizzie Jones, should refuse to abide by the conditions of this will, then in such case this will shall be declared null and void and of no effect, and my property shall descend the same as though this will had not been made.

Fourth: I nominate and appoint as Executor my son, C. S. Jones.

In Witness Whereof I, George W. Jones, to this my last will and testament have hereunto set my hand and seal this 23rd day of May A. D. 1885.

George W. Jones (L.S.)

Signed, sealed and declared by George W. Jones, as and for his last will and testament and in his presence and in the presence of each other subscribed our names hereunto as witnesses thereof.

Children by Emma, born near Cassopolis, Mich.:

748. i. FRANK SILVER b. 8-23-1855, d. 5-2-1929 at Marcellus, Mich. He always denied that he was b. at Jones Mill on the west side of the Young's Prairie and said he was b. at the Prairie home. His schooling duplicated that of his brother, Carroll. Their father sent them to Brown's Business College at Valparaiso, Ind., after their education in the Cassopolis schools. He engaged in the retail lumber business in the growing village of Marcellus and then homesteaded land in South Dakota for several years, later returning to Marcellus. In his younger years he occasionally helped in his father's bank and told how once he was short ten dollars and several days later found that a ten dollar gold piece fell and was caught in the cuff of his pants.

He was not well as a child and once his life was despaired of. He was always thin and somewhat frail. In his album of pictures he had a picture of a beautiful young lady with whom (it was rumored) he was in love. She either died or married someone else, and he never seemed to give much attention to other girls, although he occasionally would squire maiden ladies to social gatherings.

He was of a somewhat timid nature. He pronounced "a" at the end of a word as if it was "ic." For years he was President of the G. W. Jones Exchange Bank, but never took active responsibility in the daily management of the bank beyond getting the mail, and acting in an advisory capacity. He was well versed in agricultural matters and his advice was frequently sought. In his later years he would frequently fall asleep at the President's desk while the bustle of banking business was transpiring about him. He ordered many of his clothes from a mail order house and usually had celluloid collars. He was thrifty and saving, but every Christmas he would give generous gifts of money to many cousins, nephews and nieces.

He was strictly honest, kindly, and intelligent. All who knew him were his friends. He and his brother were closely associated all their lives and his brother, who was more active in business matters, assisted him in the accumulation of his fortune. He was an early stockholder in Swift & Company and in his father's bank and as both these institutions grew, he prospered with them. At the time of his death he was worth in the neighborhood of a third of a million dollars.

Although he never joined a church, he frequently attended and generously contributed to their expenses.

Henry and Hannah Green Jones), m. (2) Maria C. Parrish b. 3-29-1824 Clarkstown, N. Y., d. 5-7-1883 (dt. Benjamin and Sarah Parrish). According to Cass County, Michigan, history of 1882 William Jones of Calvin Township was known as "nigger Bill" because of his activity on behalf of escaped slaves. The so-called "Underground railroad" had a junction in Cass County, where he lived. One was called the "Quaker Line" and the other the "Illinois Line." He was a famous "nigger runner." He made frequent trips to the Ohio River and into Kentucky for the purpose of assisting and guiding slaves to freedom. In August 1847 a party of thirteen Kentuckians from Bourbon Co., Ky., came by way of Bristol, Ind., to Cass Co., under cover of darkness to attempt to recover their escaped slaves. They had been informed in detail as to where to go by a spy they had sent ahead who posed as a salesman of subscriptions to an abolitionist paper. They captured nine slaves at the various homes of Quakers in the neighborhood and by the time they had re-assembled with their slaves at O'Dell's Mill just south of Vandalia, a crowd of excited men had gathered about them. The alarm had spread and the throng rapidly increased in numbers.

According to the history "Nigger Bill" Jones was present and several other "resolute characters." The Kentuckians were given to understand that they could not proceed further and a battle seemed imminent, but the Quakers present counseled that only peaceful and lawful means be taken. So it was agreed that the Kentuckians would go to the county seat in Cassopolis and present their case to a Justice in an effort to prove their property, as the law required.

The history further records: "Nigger Bill" Jones particularly distinguished himself during the excited conference at O'Dell's Mill and upon the march to Cassopolis. It is said that he dextrously disarmed a man who drew a pistol and threatened to shoot him, and several other acts are reported of which he was the hero. Soon after the motley crowd started from O'Dell's Mill, Jones compelled one of the Kentuckians to dismount from his horse, in order that one of the negroes, taken at Osborn's, who was sick, might ride. Having thus unhorsed one of the enemy, Jones playfully slipped the shackle which had bound the negro's wrist upon his own. It closed with a snap, and could not be opened, the key being lost. Consequently the wearer trudged along the road manacled to one of the original pair of chained chattles."

A crowd of about 300 had assembled in Cassopolis. Friends of the slaves got out a writ of habeas corpus to free the slaves and the Kentuckians were charged with kidnapping, trespass and assault. The minor court then ordered the slaves released.

That was not the end of it, however, for in February 1848 the Kentuckians brought suit in Federal Court at Detroit against William Jones and seven others for the value of the slaves they lost. The jury on the case disagreed but the defendants were out about $3000. in expenses. The incident had a strong bearing on the passage of the fugitive slave law in 1850 which in turn brought slavery into prominence as a political issue.

The history further records that William Jones was "thrifty and progressive." He lived on the old homestead and was one of the largest and most successful farmers in the county, and his farm in 1882 consisted of 970 acres, 500 of which were under cultivation. "His life was devoted to agricultural pursuits and few men have applied themselves more assiduously than he and have been more successful in the accumulation of property and in the perfection of an honorable record." He was affiliated with the Democratic Party and the Society of Friends.

She resided with her step-son and nephew, John A. Jones, after the death of her husband. She was the only mother he knew as his own mother died when he was a baby. First they lived on a farm and then moved to the sheriff's quarters at Cassopolis when he was elected sheriff in 1880. He moved to Watertown, S. D., about 1882 where he was also elected sheriff. She lived in the sheriff's quarters there at that time and later they moved to a fine farm two miles north of town after engaging in the grocery business a few years. Atty. G. Ray Alexander says that she was tall and slender during her later years, but may have been stouter in middle life. She always kept busy with little duties about the house and made it her job to care for the chickens in good weather. She was a member of the Christian Church as were most of the Alexanders and the John A. Jones family. She was probably named Leah after her mother's sister, Leah Penland.

The following is a newspaper account of the death of George Green (1820-1916):

"GEORGE GREEN DIES AT AGE OF 96

One of Penn Township's Very Oldest Citizens Passes Away

He Knew Early History

Was in Cass When Geneva Aspired to be County Seat and Saw Opening Court

Vandalia, Michigan, March 22 (1916) — Born in Preble County, O., June 6, 1820, and a resident of Penn Township since 1830, George Green passed away Tuesday morning at the home of his son, Elam Green, lacking but a few weeks of being 96 years old.

Mr. Green was the son of Amos Green, whose birthplace was in Savannah, Georgia, and of Sarah Jones Green, born in North Carolina. Both were residents of Preble County, O., at the time of their marriage and in the year 1830 they migrated to Cass County, settling on Young's Prairie August 6th of that year.

Family Was Large One

George Green was the third child in a family of 14 children, only one of which is now living, Solomon Green of Kansas. The mother was a sister of Henry Jones, a pioneer, who with his family came here from Preble County at the same time. He was married to Miss Hinshaw, daughter of another pioneer family of Penn and of a large family of children born to this union three children survive, the son Elam, with whom he lived; Mrs. Reuben Reeve of Niles, and Mrs. Templeton of Chicago. There are 10 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren.

Knew Early History

He has seen the growth of Penn Township from its uncleared farms and log cabins to one of the finest farming districts in the county, and had seen other changes which had come not only to Penn Township but to the county. He knew the little town of Geneva, which once aspired to be the county seat; knew the present site of Vandalia when it was all woods, and was here long before there was any Cassopolis.

Graded on Grand Trunk

When the Peninsular Road, now the Grand Trunk, was built through Cass County he took the contract for grading a section of the road through Penn Township. He has outlived the men of his time and was the connecting link between the county's birth and the present.

When his family came here, Uzziel Putnam, the first white settler, had only been here five years and Penn Township included Van Buren County, the present Marcellus, Volinia and Newberg Townships, and the north half of Porter and Calvin Townships. At the first election his uncle, Henry Jones, was elected a school inspector of all this district. Mr. Green was then 11 years old.

Funeral services for Mr. Green will be held in the M. E. Church in Penn village, Thursday afternoon at one o'clock, Rev. Miss Hawley of the Christian Church in Vandalia, of which church he was a member, officiating, with burial at Young's Prairie Cemetery."

320. SARAH⁷ GREEN (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, George⁵, Sarah⁶) d. 12-5-1906 Nevada City, Calif., m. 7-4-1844 Mich., Zeno Philosopher Davis b. 6-22-1818 Economy, Ind., d. 6-17-18-- Nevada City, Calif. (son Elihu and Lovy (Barnard) Davis). He was a gunsmith and inventor. See "Popes Pioneers of Mass.," for data on James D. Davis, his ancestor.

Sarah Green Davis had blue-black hair when young, hazel eyes and fair complexion. She was tall and well proportioned. She and her husband, Zeno P. Davis, went from Michigan to California across the plains in a covered wagon at the time of the Gold Rush about 1849. In their party was Thomas Green, son of Jesse Green, an older brother of Amos Green, and two Hart brothers from Cincinnati, O., step-sons of Amos Green, children of Esther Low (Hart) Green by her first husband, Samuel Hart. One of the latter died before reaching Truckee, California. The trip had been a difficult one and Sarah Green Davis attributed their death to the fact that they were "worn out."

From the "Sacramento Bee" of April 18, 1942:

"A fire broke out in '56 which destroyed the Rolfe's first home. In fact, it destroyed practically every building in town (Nevada City). The Zeno Davis home across the street was saved by Mrs. Davis, who started hauling water in buckets from a creek in a canyon 200 yards below the house. Her efforts were not enough and a gang of prisoners, herded by guards to a nearby open spot when the jail started burning, pitched in as a volunteer fire company and so thoroughly drenched the dwelling, it was saved, and now stands as the only house of the vintage of '52 in Nevada City.

"The Davis place, incidentally, was the center of extreme excitement one Sunday in 1860 when marauding Piutes ambushed a punitive expedition of whites near Pyramid Lake and slaughtered 70 Americans."*

"Nevada miners were up in arms."* John Sales of Rough & Ready whose pack train plied regularly to Virginia City, was rushed to Sacramento for battle supplies. A quick tally indicated sixty rifles were available in the camp.

"Sales came back in record time with 125 pounds of powder, 100 pounds of lead, 60 pounds of rifle balls, 1200 cartridges and 18,000 percussion caps.

"All through the night lights were burning in the Davis home. Davis, a gunsmith, moulded innumerable bullets and wrapped thousands of paper cartridges for the forthcoming attack, for wild rumor had advanced the warring Piutes to the outskirts of Sierraville. Even when the rumor was disproved and excitement died away scores of Nevada City hotspurs joined the expedition that routed the Piutes in the Battle of Pyramid Lake."

John and Ruth (Penland) Alexander) b. 11-6-1819 Wayne Co., Ind., d. 12-9-1886 Watertown, Dakota Terr. Moved from Cass Co., Mich., to Red Wing, Minn., for health of son in 1865. Both buried Y.P.C., Mich. "She was a truly Christian and dearly beloved wife and mother."

The following was contributed by Attorney George Ray Alexander:

"Anna, the first child of George and Mary Bogue Jones, was born in Preble County, Ohio, on January 5th, 1821. At the age of about eight she came with her parents to Michigan in 1829. I know very little of their life in Ohio. What property her parents, George and Mary, had in Ohio I do not know but Mary's father, Joseph Bogue, in his will of 1791 bequeathed 'the land and plantation, whereon I now live' to his son Stephen. George's parents, the George and Lydia Hobson Joneses, had a farm and a flour mill and apparently were fairly well to do. After coming to Michigan in 1829 George, Sr., entered from the Government 1500 acres of land in Penn Township and George, Jr., 320 acres. I am told that upon her death Mary left a good farm to each of her five children. I understand also that Anna's mother, Mary, built the first frame house on Young's Prairie where I suppose Anna lived until the time of her marriage to Ephraim Alexander in 1842. I am not sure but I think it is probable that the farm on which they went to reside after their marriage belonged to Anna. Ephraim, however, owned a farm cornering it on the southeast. They first resided in the small original house. Whether they built this at the time they took up their residence there I do not know, but this is where they lived originally, and where their three sons were born. About the year 1860 they replaced this with a good sized brick building which still stands on the premises. The old farm home is still there also but it is used as a farm building.

"I do not know what her education was, but I am satisfied that she was a highly intelligent person and that Anna and Ephraim knew well what were sound values, both temporal and enduring. Anna and her parents had been members of the Friends Society or 'Quaker' Faith. Certain features of that faith are well worthy of emulation. The purity of their lives, their patience (never returning evil for evil), their zeal, their devotion, and their love for each other compel admiration. I am quite in sympathy also with the provision in the Will of Anna's Uncle William Bogue in which he forbids any ostentious show at his funeral or 'any departure from simplicity such as is practiced by a hireling ministry or priestcraft.' It is probable that leaving money out of consideration there would be few besides the Quakers to carry on. This is a pernicious feature in the practice of religion.

"Anna was a good housewife and homemaker. Evidences of her handiwork still remain in the family. We have bedspreads, made by her, entirely by hand, which are indeed works of art.

"Some time after the death of their eldest son, Madison, the family moved to Red Wing, Minn., where Anna lived until the time of her death there in 1873. She became a member of the Christian Church, perhaps about 1853, at the same time that her mother 'became convinced of the more perfect way.'

"For some time before her death she suffered with very severe headaches. What the cause was I do not know. She died with a stroke of apoplexy on the 29th day of May 1873 at the age of 52 years, 4 months and 24 days. My father, Melvin, was alone with her in the home at the time of her death. Her body was placed at rest beside her son Madison at the Young's Prairie Cemetery, where many others of her dear ones repose, including her husband who was subsequently buried beside her."

Children:

916. i. GEORGE MADISON b. 1-18-1843, d. 8-18-1864, Bur. Y. P. C. The following was contributed by Atty. George Ray Alexander: "He was a young man of good appearance and good mind. He was popular with the young people with whom he associated. My father and my Uncle Barton always spoke most highly of Madison and it is my impression that he was an excellent person; one from whom much might have been expected, but for his untimely death. I have been told that he was much devoted to a young lady of beauty and charm, and that this affection was mutual, but the realization of such hopes was not to be. Let us hope that in the great beyond it has been exceeded by something still more beautiful and enduring. Sometime before his death he confessed his faith in Christ as his Saviour and was baptized in a baptistry, especially constructed by his father, in the home for that purpose. This indicated the great importance they placed upon obedience to this primitive Christian ordinance. In his album were many of the early family photos, carefully inscribed in his handwriting indicating the names of each. My father was about 8 years old at the time of Madison's passing, and Uncle Barton about 16."

He walked 3 miles to a log schoolhouse with one fireplace, and sat on a slab bench. The desks were slabs of wood laid upon pins driven in the wall. There were few roads through the forest and the traveler often found his way by blazed trail. Only here and there was there a clearing. Schools, churches and houses were built of logs. Grain was cut with a scythe or sickle, bound by hand and threshed out with oxen or horses. Cooking was done over the fireplace and clothing woven by the ladies. He owned 300 acres of valuable land in Penn Twp., Cass Co., Mich., at his death. Formerly a Republican, he became a staunch Prohibitionist. He was a Quaker. "His life was honorable and upright, and he was never known to take advantage of the necessities of his fellowmen in any trade or transaction." He m. (1) 2-25-1847 Lydia Bonine, b. Elroy was for a time Postmaster at Vandalia also. He later became interested in the laundry business and I think he was operating a laundry at Michigan City, Ind., at the time of the death of his father at his home. About 1902 he and his wife had a farm near Spokane, Wash., where they lived for a number of years. My parents and I visited them there one season when the fruit was ripe and enjoyed our visit very much. Subsequently they moved to Tacoma, Wash., and later to Los Angeles where he engaged in the retail grocery business. He was about 5 ft. 8 in. in height and weighed about 180 pounds. He was very friendly, kind, generous, honorable, industrious and hospitable. About 1913 he and his wife, and his brother Rollie and his wife, visited me in Portland, Oregon, where I was practicing law and spent several days. We all went to Forest Grove, Oregon, where we had a nice visit with our cousin, Mary Ellen Jones Nicholson. For some time before Elroy passed away he was ailing with diabetes which gradually became more pronounced and finally resulted in blood poisoning and necessitated the amputation of a leg. He was survived by his wife, Addie, who is a very estimable person."

George J. Townsend says that during his youth in Penn Twp. there were many more Indians than white people. The winters then were more severe than now, and the Redmen came to his father's two room cabin for protection from the cold. As many as 12 at a time would spend the night before the Townsend fireplace. School and church were held there too. Teachers were paid by parents of children who attended. Clothing was made at home. Children worked like men and women. "Young folks nowadays know too much and work too little." He advocated prohibition and equal suffrage. "The world is richer but not as good as it was a century ago." Marriage then was a most solemn affair and divorces unheard of. Parental control was such that "puppy love" matches were thoroughly discouraged. Few married before 20. He had three rules to which he attributed his long life: "Eat all you want, work hard as you can, and be kind to the folks around." Farmer in 1854. To Dowagiac, Mich., 1865; Prop. Continental Hotel, then to Vandalia, Mich., in hotel business there. Established Bank there 1873. Bank was successful but destroyed by fire in 1885. He had the first coal oil lamp in the community, and the first, and for a long time the only spring wagon, that was frequently borrowed to carry the coffin at funerals. From the San Jose (Calif.) Daily Mercury of May 13, 1895:

"HONORED A COMRADE CITY HALL FLAG FLOATED AT HALF-MAST

Death of Officer Jones

Funeral to be Under Auspices of Masonic Fraternity This Afternoon

The big flag over the City Hall fluttered at half mast yesterday and there was an unusually quiet air about the Police Office. Officer Jones, the veteran police officer, was dead, and not a man on the force but felt that he had lost a personal friend.

W. G. Jones had been on the force continually since 1876. During his younger days he was one of the most energetic and reliable men in the department, but of late years he had been rapidly failing. During the past year he was unfit by reason of his feebleness to do patrol duty and Chief Kinward detailed him to act as bailiff of Justice Cass' court and general attendant about the Police office. For a few weeks past he had been noticed to be unusually drowsy, but in other respects he seemed to be in his usual state of health. Saturday he complained of being ill and went home for a few hours in the afternoon. Early in the evening he had occasion to step into the yard and a few minutes later his daughter, Mrs. G. A. Bona, found him in an unconscious state.

He was taken into the house and Dr. Brown sent for, but it was impossible to rouse him, and at 2:15 yesterday morning he expired. Death was attributed to apoplexy.

The deceased was born in Cass County, Michigan, July 16, 1830. In 1851 he and his wife, to whom he had been married the year before, came to California. Mr. Jones first engaged in farming near Mayfield, but afterwards he moved to Mountain View, where he engaged in the hotel business. In 1872 he came to San Jose, where he started in business as a news dealer. He continued in this business with moderate success until 1876, at which time he was elected to a position on the police force.

His wife died in this city Feb. 26, 1876. Surviving him are three daughters, Mrs. G. A. Bona, Mrs. F. J. Clark and Mrs. William H. Donovan, all residents of San Jose. The funeral is to take place from the residence of William H. Donovan, 233 North Fifth Street, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It will be under the direction of San Jose Lodge No. 10, F. and A. M., of which Mr. Jones had been a member for about 30 years. Enterprize Lodge of Workmen and the Local Legion of Honor, both of which he was a member for about 14 years, will also be represented. The police force will turn out in a body."

It consisted of ranches, stores and houses in San Jose. The Bank employed a man just to look after his trust. The trust fund for his daughter is said to have exceeded $300,000.

"Nathan was chiefly a farmer but had special aptitude for machinery. He operated the first threshing outfit operated by steam engine near W. Elkton, Ohio. His brother was connected at one time in this venture. His cousin, Elijah Stubbs, worked with him many years but Nathan almost always attended the engine. Engines were pulled with oxen but the separator with horses. So Nathan kept an ox team longer than anyone else in the community. I cannot give the exact year but when Morgan made his spectacular raid into Indiana and Ohio causing much excitement, the engine was bought of Gingling Brothers of Seven Mile, Ohio, and probably made in Hamilton, Ohio. I have heard my grandfather, Marmaduke Mendenhall, tell the following story: 'When they brought the engine home there was steam in it and they occasionally blew the whistle. The people were not accustomed to the sound. When they came over the Inman hills about four miles south of West Elkton some who heard it were much excited, thinking it was produced by the "rebels" on their march to West Elkton.'"

"Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
 Like a swift-fleeting meteor, a fast flying cloud,
 A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
 Man passeth from life to his rest in the grave.
 For we are the same our fathers have been;
 We see the same sights our fathers have seen,
 We drink the same stream, and view the same sun,
 And run the same course our fathers have run.
 The thoughts we are thinking our fathers would think;
 From the death we are shrinking our fathers would shrink;
 To the life we are clinging they also would cling;
 But it speeds for us all, like a bird on the wing.
 They died, aye! they died: and we things that are now,
 Who walk on the turf that lies over their brow,
 Who make in their dwelling a transient abode,
 Meet the things that they met on their pilgrimage road.
 Yeal hope and despondency, pleasure and pain,
 We mingle together in sunshine and rain;
 And the smiles and the tears, the song and the dirge,
 Still follow each other, like surge upon surge."

JAMES EDWIN STUBBS (1856-1936)

From Fowler Tribune, Fowler, Col.

"* * He died as he has lived, * * in a calm, peaceful, contented manner. * * He had lived a beautiful, courageous life, and he was ready for the journey to the other world. The Methodist Church Auditorium was inadequate to accommodate the large concourse of friends who were present. Interment was at Mulvane, Kan.

"He was a railroad contractor with his brother, Gov. Walter R. Stubbs. In 1904 he purchased his brother's interest. His main office was in Chicago. In 1912 he sold his business and moved to a ranch in Colorado. In 1921 the Pueblo flood ruined his ranch valued at $225,000. He met his loss like a Christian gentleman. He was at one time chairman of the board of County Commissioners. He was a keen business man and prospered.

"A birthright Quaker, Mr. Stubbs lived the life he professed. Ever kind, considerate and tolerant, he commanded the highest respect of all who knew him. Mr. Stubbs was loved by the people of this community, who recognized in him a high degree of character. His was the heritage of a fine Christian father and mother, and his character was the noblest. You never heard him speak unkindly of another. Always ready to do something for someone in need or in distress his life was an open book which all might read with profit. He was the personification of gentleness, of kindness and of integrity."

635. WALTER ROSCOE⁸ STUBBS (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, Elizabeth⁵, Joseph⁶, John⁷) d. 3-25-1929, m. 9-21-1887 Stella Hostetler b. 7-8-1868 Bedford, Ind. (dt. Jonathan and Martha (Fish) Hostetler). She lived 1247 Seventh St., Kansas City, Kan. His biography published at his death follows:

From the "Topeka Capital" of Topeka, Kansas:

"Former Governor W. R. Stubbs died in Topeka yesterday, after an illness, in his 71st year. He was one of the eight living ex-Governors of Kansas, four of whom have been able to impress themselves upon the history of the State by serving two terms. Governor Stubbs was one of the four who were re-elected, and while it is now nearly 20 years since his administration it is still fresh in the memory of Kansas as an outstanding period, and Governor Stubbs as one of the eminent Governors and one of the great men of the state.

"Walter Roscoe Stubbs was a natural leader of men, of an impressive personal appearance, with a fine head, and a broad and splendid brow, with a magnetic power over men's minds, gifted with an uncommon faculty of inspiring confidence, affection and loyalty, and correspondingly of arousing intense antagonisms. The history of the state during some 10 years when he was in public life evolved around his personality and his political program. Beyond any other public man in history he forged quickly to the forefront, once he entered public life of the state, and without previous preparation or training. He had devoted his life to his large railroad construction business with no apparent interest in political affairs until in his 46th year his fellow townsmen of Lawrence, desiring a strong man to represent them, and particularly the University in the legislature, petitioned him to run for member of the House. To the surprise of his business associates he consented, was elected to the House in 1904 and 1906 and in his first session attracted notice as a factor to be reckoned with in politics.

"It was characteristic of Governor Stubbs that he gave his entire mind and all the force of a powerful personality with enthusiasm to any interest that appealed to him. Politics was a new game. He was as innocent of its methods as a new-born child. It was all a revelation to him and he was astonished at what he found in endeavoring to serve Lawrence in the legislature. He discovered that a member of the legislature, as he described the political system of that period, was a mere cog in a machine that demanded strict conformity and discipline. It was not in his nature to be a cog in any machine, or anything else, than a dominating factor. He served one term in the legislature and got his bearings. When the session adjourned he remained in Topeka, to the neglect of his business, rented a room in a hotel and initiated in Kansas the use of the long distance telephone as a political agency. He made inquiries as to who were the influential men of every county in the state, called them on the telephone and organized a following. In the next session Stubbs men were in a large majority and he was elected Speaker of the House and proceeded to organize his own machine, one of the most effective Kansas has seen. When the session closed he was the logical candidate for Governor, was easily nominated and elected. In four years he had not only learned the political game, but improved on it.

"In his legislative service and two terms as Governor, Governor Stubbs reorganized to a considerable extent the political machinery of the state, largely on the La Follette model in Wisconsin. Through his leadership the primary succeeded the delegate convention. In a thorough-going job of reconstruction the State Board of Charities was reorganized, the former State Board of Railroad Commissioners with wide powers, a legislative Reference Bureau was created, the State Board of Health was built up into an important agency of the State, and Governor Stubbs initiated a plan to consolidate the government of the state educational institutions in a single board, employing at his own expense, Dr. Pritchard, the president then as now of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, to come to Topeka and outline a plan of such organization. However, the plan came to nothing under the Stubbs Administration but did materialize later and was finally adopted under Governor Paulen's administration.

"Governor Stubbs was one of the nine Governors who united in an appeal in 1912 to Theodore Roosevelt to become a candidate for President and on this rock his own public career as well as the Republican Party was broken. His second term was in its last year and he became a candidate for the Senate, defeating Senator Curtis for the nomination but being himself defeated in the election.

"The factional animosities of the progressive period in which Governor Stubbs was the outstanding figure in Kansas for nearly a decade are largely forgotten, and in fact it was tribute to his qualities that later as an unsuccessful candidate for Governor he had the support of a great part of the element that had opposed him most strenuously during the period of his power. These animosities are now forgotten, and there will be an almost universal sense that Kansas has lost in his death one of its great men and great public servants. Many who antagonized him gave him credit for no more than personal ambition and the desire to replace one political machine with another, but he had larger ideas, and it was his major purpose to give Kansas the machinery for efficient representative government. The machinery he created, in fact, was largely designed to do so. So far as it has failed it is not due to the organization of the State, but to failure to fill the place created with the best personnel to obtain maximum results. This, in fact, is the most important problem today in Kansas, the problem of the personnel in the operation of the state government

"In his personal, private and family life Governor Stubbs was a model of the good citizen, an admirable husband, father and friend. There are many to grieve at his passing."

From Topeka State Journal:

"Walter Roscoe Stubbs was born on a farm near Richmond, Wayne County, Indiana, November 7, 1868 and came to Kansas with his parents who settled at Hesper, Douglas County, in 1869. Here the future governor attended the common schools and later studied at Kansas university. As a youth he engaged in farm work, clerking and driving a team. The last named occupation seemed to hold special attraction and shortly before attaining his majority he obtained a team of mules and contracted to grade a mile or two of railway right of way. Gradually he extended operations until he became one of the prominent railroad grading contractors in the west. One of his largest jobs was that of building the right of way for the Rock Island from St. Louis to Kansas City, the contract amounting to more than $3,000,000. He continued in the contracting business for many years with headquarters in Chicago, Kansas City, Los Angeles, and other important centers, as the occasion demanded, employing at times several thousand men.

"Agriculture also held a strong attraction for Mr. Stubbs. He engaged extensively in cattle raising and agriculture, also in banking. In the slump in livestock prices during 1920-21 he lost a large portion of his personal fortune. He was a 32nd degree Mason, a public spirited citizen, and always took a keen interest in civic affairs and in the development of his home state."

His genealogy also appears in "Pearson Ancestors and Descendants"

Carroll Sherman Jones, the second son of George W. Jones and Emma Sherman Jones, was born on Young's Prairie in Penn Township, Cass County, Michigan, on the 18th of November, 1857. It was when Kit Carson was a public hero with his exploits of bravery in the west, so one parent wanted to name him after this popular western idol and the other wished to name him Carroll. The name Carroll was finally given him but it proved a somewhat empty victory for the prevailing parent for all his life he was known to his many friends as "Kit."

His boyhood was spent on his father's farm near Cassopolis. He often remarked as he passed by the farm where he was born that right near a certain fence he lost a large marble that he never found, and whenever he saw the spot he felt like getting out and making just one more search.

South of his home a little over a mile was beautiful Diamond Lake where he and other boys went skating and swimming. Even in the later years of his life when he had grown quite portly he still excelled in and enjoyed these sports. When a high dive was erected at Diamond Lake he showed up the younger swimmers by doing a perfect somersault from the high dive when he was well past fifty.

One of the stories he often told to his son when he was small, involved a group of young boys that he accompanied on a swimming party in Diamond Lake. It was early in the spring before their mother's permission could be obtained. When the forbidden swim was over and all the little boys were dressed, there still remained one little undershirt that no one claimed. But when they got home one of the mothers discovered that her little boy was short an undershirt and their too early swim was, unfortunately, discovered.

He also told how, as a little boy, he considered canned peaches as a superior treat. They were not as plentiful and as easily obtained then as they are today. In fact they were quite expensive. But he worked hard and saved his money so that eventually he had enough to buy himself a can of peaches at the store in Cassopolis.

His first school was the district rural school probably at Geneva, although the farm where he lived is now in the Allegany district. He eventually attended school in the village of Cassopolis in the school on North Broadway.

Under the biography of his father is recorded the fact that his mother was in ill health that seemed to defy the medical assistance of that day. When only 12 years of age her untimely death particularly shocked him and seemed to stay with him all the rest of his life. She was not believed to be critically ill. The family was eating at the dinner table and she was resting on a divan in the adjoining room. Kit left the others and went in to be with her. Suddenly she expired, practically in the arms of her little boy.

He cherished her memory and had a deep regard for her. Her picture which appears here indicates that she was quite beautiful, with somewhat classical features, and of a tender loving nature. The simplicity of her dress and the style of the hair denote how genuine and modest she must have been. Nothing about her was tinged with artificiality.

Just before her death the family had moved from their farm home near Cassopolis to the new farm his father had purchased on the proposed site for a new village destined to be named Marcellus. It was about fourteen miles from their former home. The coming of the railroad suggested to his father that eventually a village would probably emerge from this particular vicinity, and his foresight proved entirely correct.

As his father came to a wilderness and lived to see it grow into farms and villages, so he came to the farm his father purchased and watched it grow from vacant acres into a bustling little village of about one thousand persons, with all modern municipal conveniences.

After the death of his mother he went back to Cassopolis to live with his grandmother Sherman. She wrote his father and said that he should come down soon because she was worried about Kit, that he didn't seem to get over his mother's death — he didn't play out like the other boys, and would sit without speaking a word unless spoken to.

He was probably both shocked and homesick for he wrote his father saying, "I wish you would fetch my fiddle up here. And let Tim (his dog) come too."

At fourteen he became the youngest student at the Baptist College in Kalamazoo, now known as Kalamazoo College. But his stay there was not long as his father decided he should have a business education and sent him, with his older brother, Frank, to H. B. Brown's Business College at Valparaiso, Indiana, then known as the Northern Indiana Business Institute, from which he was graduated on the 6th day of July, 1876. One of the students there at that same time was Charles Ritter of Cassopolis, who later was the executive officer of the First National Bank of Cassopolis during almost all the years that he managed the bank at Marcellus.

Upon his graduation from business college he returned to Marcellus and although only 19 years of age he assumed the office of Cashier in his father's Exchange Bank which was opened for business in the spring of 1877, and for 44 years thereafter he faithfully served in that same capacity in that same bank until death eventually ended his capable administration.

When driving from Marcellus to Decatur one day, about half way down the hill running northwesterly into Decatur, he pointed out the house of the man who he said was the first person to transact business with the G. W. Jones Exchange Bank. On the first day they were open he came in and purchased a draft. He always remembered it.

Although he had a slight tendency toward obesity when a young man his picture shows that he was handsome with fine features. As a young man he played ball when no gloves were used to protect the hands, and broken fingers were not unusual. He played until one day he threw his knee out of joint running from third to home, and that ended his baseball playing.

His social life in the new village included being in charge of the tables at an Old Fashioned New England Supper at Shaver's Hall in 1874, given for the benefit of better street crossings. He took part in a temperance play, in fact, the leading role, as shown by the Clara Parish letter. A county wide dance at the beautiful new Forest Hall at Diamond Lake, for which special invitations were issued, lists him as one of the sponsors.

His father remarried in 1876 Lizzie Osborn, daughter of Judge Nathan Osborn, and although she was only four years older than he, he always accorded her the utmost respect and kindness, such as a son would for his own mother.

Clara Carbine, daughter of Dr. Carbine who built the big business block in Marcellus in 1876, known as Centennial Hall, was frequently his guest when young people were at social gatherings.

Later he undertook to woo the charming daughter of the Township Supervisor. Her name was Bessie E. Caul. She lived on a farm about four miles southeast of Marcellus and the roads in those days were somewhat hilly and sandy. He had a bicycle as one means of transportation and a resident along the way said that he used to puff and get pretty red in the face when making those frequent trips to the Caul homestead.

She had attended rural school in Marcellus township and the Marcellus village schools which then went to about the tenth grade. The remainder of her education was obtained at the Normal College in Ypsilanti, Michigan, where she attended two years, and obtained a teacher's certificate.

Before completion of her teacher's course she taught in what was known as the Norton District. The attendance was large and some of her older pupils were nearly as old as she. The accompanying picture taken from a group picture with the pupils she taught will give a good idea of why the banker's son was pedaling his bicycle over the sand and hills to see a young lady who was 14 years younger than he. She combined those desirable attributes of intelligence and beauty.

They were married at her home on the 21st day of August, 1891.

On their honeymoon they went to Mackinac Island, and during their early married years attended the first World's Fair that was held in Chicago in 1893.

One of her students in that little country school eventually became Bishop of the Methodist Church in San Francisco.

For many years she taught the beginning class in the Methodist Sunday School at Marcellus, and has held other offices in both the Church and Sunday School. She was an early member and past President of the L'Allegro Club and Past President of the Marcellus Township Library Board. When funds were not available to hire a librarian during World War II she personally acted as librarian without pay to keep the library open.

When they were first married they lived in an apartment over the Bank. It was a new stone front building built to replace the old wooden structure in 1890. It was here that their first child, Donna Verna, was born January 16, 1893.

In 1898 he began the erection of his new stone house, just east of his father's house on West Main Street in Marcellus. The plans were drawn by a Detroit architect and it took two years to complete construction. Stone cutters camped on the premises all that time. Details of the stone that went into this beautiful edifice are supplied by the following newspaper article written by Nelson A. Swartz in 1912:

POKAMAN AND HIS DEEDS

An Interesting History of Marcellus Indian Chief

By Nelson A. Swartz

Pokaman, a chief of a band of Pottawotamie Indians, once had a village or encampment on Section 26, Marcellus Township, in the thirties of the last century, on the edge of what is now known as Poke's swamp. The encampment was probably located on the farm now owned by Carl Buckhold. Near the village was a large boulder which has long since been called Poke's rock. It is said that the Indians held their pow wows around this rock.

Lansing Fonda, an early pioneer from New York state, came with his family and located on an 80 acre farm in the northwestern part of Fabius Township, St. Joseph County, Michigan, which he had purchased from the government. David Beadle now owns the south half of that farm. Mr. Fonda built his log cabin on or near where Mr. Beadle's house now stands.

One afternoon, while the country was still sparsely settled, Mrs. Fonda went in search of the cows but was unable to find them. Night overtook her and she was compelled to spend a night in the forest. She put in the whole night by the side of Poke's Rock, which was about three and one-half miles from her home. It was a warm summer day and it is said that the rock kept her comfortably warm.

In the year 1900 Mr. Buckhold gave this big rock to Carroll S. Jones, better known as "Kit" Jones, for his new stone house which he erected in the village of Marcellus the same year. The rock was 45 feet in circumference, and 14 feet high, of which seven feet projected above the ground and weighed 120,000 pounds. It made 30 loads of 4,000 pounds each. It was the largest rock in the township. Mr. Jones named his stone house "Poke's Cottage," and it is one of the finest residences in the village.

The outlet of Cranberry Lake, a small stream which flows into Rocky River is known as Poke's Run. Pokaman's village was on or near this stream, hence its name."

The Lansing Fonda mentioned in the above article was the great, great, grandfather of Mrs. Carroll B. Jones.

"Kit" said that his new stone dwelling took all his ready money at that time and that he intended to have a tile roof on it but had to use slate. It is hard to see how tile would have been as beautiful as the pastel green and red slate that was used.

November 26, 1903, on Thanksgiving Day, in the midst of a blizzard, his son, Carroll Brewster Jones, was born in the new stone house.

The Marcellus News reporting the event says: "A ten pound son and heir arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Jones yesterday morning. "Kit" closed the bank and took a holiday with more than usual reasons for observing a day of Thanksgiving. He says he values the son at $100,000—$10,000 a pound."

Pets of various kinds were attached to the household from time to time. He had his brother, H. Bert, send him a little white and gray burro from New Mexico for his daughter, Donna. Later came red ponies, "Rex" and "Bird." A four seater pony cart with two candle burning side lights, rear passengers riding backwards, and painted red and black with light tan corduroy cushions was long a family conveyance. "Grey Highly" was the horse that propelled the family surrey, with the fringe on top, and many of the trips were on Sunday afternoons to the Caul homestead.

A dog "Kite" was long a faithful friend, and stories are told of how he fell asleep on the bank burglar alarm one night. Later came "Twinkle," a little short-haired dog that came as a Christmas present, and eventually had to be shot because he barked and snapped at other children, a result that was extremely sad to Carroll, Jr.

In 1907 a competing bank was organized in Marcellus. Competition was keen.

Typical of his advertising campaigns was a large yellow pencil given as gifts to patrons on which appeared the words, "Better sleep on 3% than lay awake on higher rates." He usually had some present like a pocketbook, a pencil or a small Christmas stocking full of pinyon nuts to give to the patrons of his bank. He took in as small stockholders some of the business men of the village as an aid in his efforts to gain and retain business. Prominent among them were George W. Kroll, Charles C. Long, Edward S. Conklin and Charles H. Hudson.

His association with bankers in other cities and villages was always a great pleasure to him. He was present at St. Joseph, Michigan, August 11, 1887, when the Michigan Bankers' Association was first organized. Later in 1917-18 he became President of the Southwestern Michigan

Bankers' Club, an honor and a duty that gave him much pleasure. The final meeting under his presidency was held at Shore Acres Hotel, Diamond Lake, near Cassopolis.

Previous to that he had attempted to obtain the unanimous agreement of the bankers so they would all pay only 3% on deposits, and was successful in getting all but a few to agree upon that rate. At one time he appeared before a Committee of the State Legislature, when legislation on that subject was being considered.

In spite of the fact that his competitors paid more interest on savings than he did, he continuously maintained the larger of the two banks. This must have been attributable, in no little measure to his unusual personality. He loved people and was courteous, kindly and friendly. He often brought home to dinner unexpected guests of all races and stations of life. He was a true Democrat in more ways than one.

He was an able and unusual collector of slow notes. Many times he would drive to make a call on a slow debtor, seldom in a severe manner, usually pleasant and friendly. Many a note was eventually paid by reason of his kindly persistence.

When he was a young man he was active in politics, becoming at one time a member of the Cass County Democrat Committee. He was a Democrat by family tradition and inheritance as were his father and grandfather before him. He often told with pride how he practiced the nomination speech in the back room of Irving Sherman's jewelry store in Cassopolis that he made for a certain man who was nominated and later elected as County Treasurer. As he grew older his political activities ceased. He may have been a candidate for office at some time in his younger years but if so, it is not now known.

In 1912 the first stone front bank building was just doubled in size and a huge nine ton safe placed in one of the two new vaults. It not only increased the capacity of the bank but was an effective advertisement. An indication that it was not ready to succumb to competition. On the occasion of its opening, large bronze pocket pieces were distributed on which appeared a picture of the bank and of the safe with these words, "Put your money in a good bank, in a good safe, in a good town."

Several years later, he and his sister erected a large brick apartment and department store just west of the bank building, because the business of the village was east of the bank. This beautiful mercantile building was later sold to the Masonic Lodge, who have their lodge rooms on the second floor and rent the lower floor to the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company.

During World War I he was chairman of the Minute Men of Marcellus, men who gave short talks at all public meetings soliciting the purchase of War Bonds. At the time of the Fourth Liberty Loan Drive, Marcellus was the first community "over the top" on their quota. This was due to the fact that the G. W. Jones Exchange Bank immediately subscribed the full amount. Various citations for Extraordinary Financial Assistance were given the bank during that war.

He was a pillar in the Methodist Church. He and his entire family attended a succession of religious services extending throughout the day on almost every Sunday. He was an usher and you might say a "greeter" for he was on hand to give a warm and friendly welcome to all newcomers to the church. He taught a class of young people in the Sunday School, often consisting principally of young ladies. He would study carefully for each lesson out of a publication known as "Pell's Notes."

He believed the Biblical saying that "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine" and mixed a lively sense of humor with his religion. One of the most devout and conscientious members of the church was an elderly lady named Fenstermacher, and at a testimony meeting one evening he arose and said that before he joined the church he used to work at small odd jobs he wanted done, on Sunday, and it seemed that whenever he would go or return from these outside exercises he would meet Mrs. Fenstermacher, and she gave him such reproachful glances that he decided he better join the church, and stop working on Sunday.

At one time he and his wife took the Methodist preacher and his wife to Washington, D. C., on a trip and paid all their expenses.

The disadvantages of automobile travel became a frequent topic of conversation when the horse began to give way to the motor car. Although it was first thought that it went so fast you could not see the crops, and would frighten the horses with unhappy results, in time he and his brother, Frank, purchased together a new "Overland" car. Frank traded in a team of horses on the deal. Occasionally they returned from short trips with horses pulling the car. Often guests were taken for a ride to prove that certain sandy hills could be made "on high." Eventually the Overland was traded in on a Cadillac. The transaction included sending a man once a month from Kalamazoo to Marcellus to service the car. In the winter the car was put up on boxes and the tires taken in the house until spring arrived.

The lakes that dotted the surrounding neighborhood were a source of great pleasure to him. His distant cousin, Irwill Brody, postmaster at Lawton, said that his impression of the Joneses in general was that they made and spent lots of money and did lots of fishing. He said that the only time he ever met his cousin, Kit Jones, was when they both happened to be fishing through the ice on the same lake at the same time.

Three lakes were his favorites. From the estate of his grandfather, Judge Elias B. Sherman, he and his brother, Frank, received a beautiful wooded parcel of land on the shore of Diamond Lake near Cassopolis. Here they platted one of the first lake subdivisions in the state called Park Shore. There they built one of the first cottages in the plat overlooking beautiful Diamond Lake. Prior to about 1912 the family used to stay each summer in this cottage, although there were some years when they made only occasional use of it. While they were at the lake, he would take an early morning train from Cassopolis to Marcellus, work all day in the bank, and then catch the evening train back to Cassopolis and walk through the woods to the cottage at the lake. He often told how one morning, without much time to spare to make the train, he had just nicely started up through the woods when he heard the voice of his little son behind him saying, "Oods, papa, oods." And then he had to take his tag along back to the cottage. The Diamond Lake cottage was sold about 1918.

For many years he had a boat and boathouse on Skyhawk Lake three miles south of Marcellus, and east of the Caul homestead about two miles. During the fishing season there were not many nights that he did not hiteh up the pony and cart and drive out to Skyhawk Lake with his little son to do some fishing. Oeeasionally the whole family would go and fish right off the bank of the lake, because it was so deep near the shore, and then the ladies and little boy would sometimes cateh their lines in the branehes of the trees with attending complications.

But Skyhawk Lake was not suited for swimming beecause of its abrupt depth and Kit was a great swimmer. Both he and his brother Frank could swim under water so far and so long that onlookers often beecame alarmed for their safety. On the east shore of Cedar Lake about five miles north of Mareellus was a most beautiful sandy beach on the Earnest Gardner farm. Here during several summers the family spent two weeks with the Roy Burlington family, living in tents, and fishing and swimming from early morning until night. The butter and milk were kept cool in a nearby spring from which the drinking water was also obtained.

He told Mr. Gardner that if he ever wanted to sell the farm or the beach to let him know as he would like to buy it. Long after they both were dead, in 1944, Mr. Gardner's daughter, remembering his interest in the property, sold it to his son.

Whenever he brought a suit he was never known to lose. He said that he was sorry he had never been admitted to the praetiee of law. In those days there were not the limitations that now exist on a man's right to praetiee law, so that he had a considerable business drawing deeds and other similar instruments, and much of his time was taken by patrons who sought his good adviee. He was never timid about entering into a lawsuit and considered it a good advertisement to let folks know that you were sticking up for your just rights.

He was always proud to have aequaintances speak of his father's fine qualities or to tell him that he resembled his father. Having lost his mother at such a tender age seemed to give him added regard for his father who became somewhat like both a father and mother to him.

He was also proud of the bank which bore his father's name. Actually he had been the active manager of it during its first 44 years up until the time of his death. He saw it start from nothing and grow into a bank having resources of over $750,000. He wanted it to be known as "The Bank of Good Service" and often told with pride how a letter addressed only to "The Bank of Good Service" was in due time delivered to him.

He was strictly honest and often exhibited this fine trait in dealing with his patrons. He definitely did not want a cent he was not fully entitled to. He often said that "The right way was the best way" and that he would "rather be safe than sorry."

During his later years he was frequently urged to take vacations, but he said he was having more fun tending to business every day than he would going far away on a vacation. "Every day," he said, "is a vacation to me."

Twice in his later years he had become ill with severe pains in his chest. It was then called "inflammatory rheumatism." This, undoubtedly, weakened his heart. When he went to visit his son, a freshman at the University of Michigan, in the fall of 1920, he complained of shortness of breath and a strange feeling after the exertion of walking about the campus.

Later that fall he had to give up active work in the bank, and the executive management fell upon the competent shoulders of his daughter, Donna, who graduated from the University of Michigan in 1916. Throughout the winter and spring of 1920-21 he was confined to his bed. His feet were swollen and he did not dare to lie down but slept sitting up. Dr. E. C. Dunning gave him constant attention and many specialists were called in for advice and consultation. It was said that his heart was greatly enlarged.

On Sunday, June 5, 1921, he was sitting in a chair and suddenly lapsed into a coma from which he never awakened.

His funeral was held in his home and was largely attended by a mourning community for which he had done so much. The service was conducted by Rev. F. E. Chamberlain, the Methodist pastor, and Judge U. S. Eby of Cassopolis spoke briefly. He was laid to rest in the Marcellus Township Cemetery just east of Marcellus.

A resolution of the Marcellus Citizens Association stated that he was one of their honored members and a respected citizen, "a man of sterling character, faithfully performing his duties as he saw and understood them, conscientiously living up to his obligations and assuming his responsibilities in religious, social and business life with unswerving fortitude."

(2) 1-10-1940 at Marcellus, Mich., Joseph T. Graham (s. Albert and Ellen Tietzort Graham). They eventually moved to Myrtle Creek and then to Yoncalla in Oregon. She became ill of heart trouble in the fall of 1946 and went to Los Angeles where her son lived. She died there 2-9-1947. Services were held at the Little Church of the Flower in Glendale, Cal., with interment in beautiful Forestlawn Cemetery.

She was of a very sociable and artistic nature. She travelled widely and had been in Europe and Mexico several times. She contributed an article on old French wall paper to the "Collector" and other magazines. She was a member of the Friday Morning Club of Los Angeles and of the Ever Ready Club of Marcellus. A large circle of friends and relatives mourned her passing.

751. HENRY BERT⁸ JONES (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, George⁵, Henry⁶, George⁷) d. 3-19-1941 New Orleans, La. Bur. Tucumcari, N.M., m. 5-24-1906 Grace Phillips b. 3-16-1888 (dt. John Anderson and Frances Davenport Phillips). An account of his life from the "Tucumcari American." of August 1945 follows:

"H. B. JONES WAS PIONEER COMMUNITY BUILDER HERE

This is a tribute to a man, who, four years after his death, is still as much a part of the State of New Mexico, the County of Quay, and the City of Tucumcari, as the memory of a great and beloved citizen can make him. That man is the late Henry Bert Jones, whose passing in 1941 left this community with the feeling that a faithful friend and a true leader had gone.

Born December 5, 1877 in Marcellus, Cass County, Michigan, of Quaker stock, H. B. Jones attended the public schools of Marcellus, the Ypsilanti Business College, and the State Normal at Ypsilanti, Michigan.

He entered the banking field at the age of 18, upon the death of his father, George W. Jones, in 1896. At 19 he was Cashier of the G. W. Jones Exchange Bank in Marcellus, Michigan, a position which he held until 1901.

The desire to build a career through his own initiative motivated Jones' trek to the west and through the boyhood friendship of Sig and Julius Moise, formerly of Marcellus, he became interested in New Mexico, where the Moise brothers had located.

Then only 24 years of age, Jones organized the Guadalupe County Bank in Santa Rosa, New Mexico, and opened it for business December 9, 1901. The following year he purchased the interest of Jefferson Reynolds in the then recently organized but yet unopened First National Bank of Santa Rosa, through which he liquidated the Guadalupe County Bank, becoming President of the institution in April of 1910.

The same year Jones acquired the interest of W. F. Buchanan in the First National Bank of Tucumcari, and became its first President, a position which he held until his death. He had previously organized the Torrance County Bank at Willard and controlled the Roy Trust and Savings Bank, as well as the Stockman's Bank of Corona. He later acquired the First National Bank of Carrizozo and bought the bank at San Jon.

He carried the seven banks successfully through the post-war depression of 1920-22, the years that took a terrific toll of New Mexico's banking institutions. H. B. Jones' banking reputation was based upon the fact that no depositor ever lost money in one of the "Jones" banks and his borrowers always considered his treatment of them absolutely fair.

Selling his banking interests in the Willard and Carrizozo banks later, he liquidated the banks at San Jon, Corona, and Roy. In 1936 Jones became a director of the First National Bank of Santa Fe, having purchased the stock of the late Levi Hughes. One of his earliest New Mexico friends, Judge E. R. Wright, is Chairman of the Board of this bank.

H. B. Jones continued as President of the First National Bank at Santa Rosa, and the First National Bank of Tucumcari until his death in 1941. The Santa Rosa institution has the fourth oldest bank charter in the state of New Mexico.

Miss Grace Phillips became the bride of H. B. Jones in 1906. The widow maintains her residence in Tucumcari. To their marriage was born one son, George Wilbur Jones, who succeeded his father as President of the First National Bank.

"H. B.," as he was popularly known throughout New Mexico, never held a political office, nor did he covet one, but he did take a keen interest in politics, just as he did everything that concerned his beloved New Mexico.

During his life, Jones held numerous offices in various civic and banking organizations. He was a member of the original commission to draft the first banking laws of the state of New Mexico. He was President of the New Mexico Bankers Association in 1916-17, and Vice-President of the American Bankers Association. During World War I he was a member of the War Finance Corporation of the Dallas district, and in more recent years he was a member of the Board of the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation, first at Wichita, Kansas, and later at Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Mr. Jones was the first President of the Tucumcari Kiwanis Club, and an early President and for many years a director of the Tucumcari Chamber of Commerce.

President of the Arch Hurley Conservancy District from the time of its inception in 1938 until shortly before his death, his interest in the irrigation project dates back to 1922, when, with Atty. James L. Briscoe and the late R. J. Frecland he was a Commissioner of the Tri-State Pact of the Canadian River. A member of the Canadian Valley Development Association, which sponsored the construction of the Conchas Dam, he also represented New Mexico in the National Reclamation Association.

H. B. Jones gave unselfishly of his time and energy, and was the financial stability of the Arch Hurley Conservancy District. It is because of his far reaching vision that canal water will flow through 45,000 acres of land that he loved, in the near future. For his efforts in behalf of the Conservancy District, "H. B." asked no recognition.

Chief among his hobbies was that of travel. At the age of 20 he had visited Europe, bicycling through most of England and Scotland, also covering France and Germany.

In later years when health compelled him to forsake the handling of routine banking matters, Jones travelled extensively. When he spoke of his travels he literally took his listeners through the far away beauty spots of the world with him, so vivid and interesting were his descriptions. During his span of life he made numerous trips abroad, visiting all the countries of Baltic Europe, India, Burma, Siam, Indo-China, Malaysia, the Netherland Indies, the Philippine Islands, Japan and Hawaii. He toured the entire continent of South America, as well as Alaska, Canada and Guatamala.

But of them all, he loved the soil of his own New Mexico best, for wasn't it here in his home land of Quay County that Henry Bert Jones sought happiness and prosperity for himself and for those whom he had never known as strangers? Because of his faith in this desert land the horn of plenty gives forth grain instead of cacti."

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones,
 R. F. D. No. 3, Dowagiac, Michigan.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Jones:

I realize the inadequacy of my words in writing you this letter, for it is impossible to express completely the respect and good will the officers and men of this squadron held in their hearts for your son, Jesse N. Jones, Cpl. A.S.N. 36453388, who gave his life in the service of his country. Jesse was to all of us a trusted friend. He was generous and good hearted to a marked degree, and exhibited those qualities of kindness and thoughtfulness which endeared him to all his comrades. As his Commanding Officer, I knew him to be an excellent soldier, a young man of high ideals and deep religious sensibilities, ever willing to do his part in carrying on our job.

Your son lost his life in an airplane crash at Asanoli, India, on 31 May 1945. The day following he was buried with full military honors in the American Cemetery at Ondal, India. Funeral services were held by Chaplain James T. Williams in the presence of Jesse's many friends. Chaplain Williams conducted the interment service at the grave side.

Your son gave unstintingly of his mind and heart in the important work of preserving freedom. He gave his life while dedicated to the task of preserving the principles upon which our country was founded. We, his friends and fellow soldiers, know that his sacrifice was not in vain.

The loss of your son and our friend is deeply felt by us. Please accept our sincere sympathies in your moment of bereavement.

Sincerely,

PAUL A. SIMMONS,
Captain, Air Corps, Commanding.

John and Marie (Allen) East). He was Sheriff of Cass Co., Mich., in 1882. Soon after he moved to Watertown, Dakota Territory. Only a few years before it had been the home of the Indian and the buffalo. He was a farmer there and the weather was inclined to extremes. He also engaged in retail grocery business. His farm was about two miles north of the town. He was elected County Sheriff at Watertown also. He was a great admirer of nice driving horses and had many of them. His barn burned in 1899 with considerable loss of livestock. He returned to Michigan in 1901.

He and his family were regular attendants at the Christian Church. He taught the boys' class in Sunday School, and was an excellent Santa every Christmas. When he heard that his cousin, Byron E. Brody, had died leaving a widow and four small children, he offered to raise or adopt one or two of them to assist. But the widow did not wish to separate them, but long remembered his kind offer. He was about 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighed about 185 pounds. His hair was dark, almost black, and his skin was a little dark also. His eyes were dark blue. He was a fine appearing man, always good natured and friendly. He was handy in his work at the farm and could do almost any kind of work. He could lay up a brick or stone wall. He engaged in the retail grocery business in Dowagiac, Mich., on his return from South Dakota, until about 1910 when his health began to fail from internal cancer. He died in Dowagiac 12-12-1912. His obituary said: "his integrity, patience, courage, cheerfulness and kindness were appreciated by a large circle of acquaintances." He was bur. in Dowagiac, his wife in Tacoma, Wash.

"Marcellus, January 20th, 1878

Dear Friend Carrie: This morning I will try to answer your more than welcome letter which was received some time ago. I am well as usual and getting fat every day. But I am afraid you will be waisted away so that I shall not know you, if you take it to heart about Andrew. But listen just one moment to a friend, don't waste your time and breath with him when there are so many better to be had for the waiting for. But I can easily imagine how he has gone back on you, but that is all right.

You say you hope I am enjoying myself. Well, indeed, I am. Never enjoyed myself better in my life. Have some place to go every night. The Temperance Club gives a concert next week and I take a part. They have put the "Bridal Wine Cup" into a stage play and I am the bride, while Kit Jones the Banker, is groom. Just imagine a week from Wednesday evening what a dreadful time I shall have.

Tuesday evening our school gives an entertainment in the hall to raise funds to buy the school a large Physiographical chart. How I do wish all my scholars could be here to see the play because I think it will be splendid. But of all things, I do wish I could be in Texas just one week and visit all my friends, for, to tell the truth, I am getting anxious to see some of them. I am going to school only two weeks more and then I am going visiting out to Cassopolis.

Oh, Carrie, I must tell you about a fellow that came here from Indiana. He is here visiting some of his relatives. I got acquainted with him and went with him to the last Club dance which was Friday night, and made Will Arnold fearful mad at me for going with him. He is just splendid and all the girls were struck with his appearance.

I now must close for I have three more letters to write. Do tell me all the news of everybody in Texas. Give my love to all the family and tell your uncle not to forget that I want that school next summer. Write soon to your friend, ever,

Clara Parrish"

(Carrie later married Andrew Campbell.)

His time between trips for Ball-Band was spent helping with the successful operation of this store. He knows the shoe business, therefore, from 'both sides of the fence.' If it is true that 'a man is known by the company he keeps' it is equally true that 'a company is known by the men it keeps' and Ball-Band is proud of the fact that for 20 years and more these 29 salesmen have been Ball-Band men." 917. JOHN BARTON⁸ ALEXANDER (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, George⁵, George⁶, Anna⁷). Attended school in and near Cassopolis, Mich. Farm home was northeast of Cassopolis. His brother, George Madison, died of T.B. and as it was believed he showed symptoms the doctor advised he be sent south and in the fall following Lee's surrender in the spring he went to Nashville, Tenn. After six months he showed no improvement so returned to Michigan, then took course at St. Cloud, Minn.. Business College. He then located at Red Wing, where he and his father conducted a feed store and later general merchandise. Sold out and moved to Watertown, Dakota Terr., 1879. He, his father and younger brother built the first grain elevator in Watertown, operated by horse-power. His father also owned 480 acres near town and 160 acres at Ashton.

He m. Anna Melissa Odell 1872 (dt. John and Sophronia (Knowlton) Odell) b. 9-26-1847, d. 12-22-1922. About 1885 he and his brother and one Denny engaged in furniture business. 918. MELVIN DELOS⁸ ALEXANDER (Francis¹, Henry², George³, Henry⁴, George⁵, George⁶, Anna⁷). As a youth resided on home farm near Penn, Mich. Old house was replaced with two story brick about 1860. After death of his brother in 1864 they moved to Red Wing, Minn., where he attended public schools, graduated Collegiate Institute there 1873 as valedictorian, later attended Oskaloosa (Ia.) College. He and his father brought remains of his mother back to Michigan for burial in Y. P. Cem. 1873. They invited Mary Odell to accompany them back to Red Wing to visit her sister, wife of Melvin's brother Barton. Melvin probably knew Mary as a boy because their families were both members of Christian Church at Vandalia, Mich. After her visit they corresponded and 6-22-1876 were married at the home of his uncle, George D. Jones, in Dowagiac, Mich. They took a honeymoon trip to Ohio and farmed the old home farm near Penn, Mich., until 1879. It is now (1945) owned by French Alexander. Moved to Watertown, Dakota Territory, in 1879 and with his father and brother engaged in grain business, having erected the first elevator there. He later went into the furniture business with his brother and another man, then became a wheat buyer for the Pacific Elevator Co. and later managed the furniture business alone. Sold his farms and built a large two story brick store in 1898. He continued the business until his death 9-18-1904. His wife was b. 4-26-1849 Vandalia, Mich., d. 10-16-1937 Milwaukee, Wis. Both bur. Watertown, S. D.

The Alexanders and the John A. Jones family were instrumental in establishing and building the Christian Church in Watertown. John was sheriff a term or two and Melvin was president of the school board for many years. He taught the adult class in Sunday School. Like his father and mother and their forebears, he was of a decidedly religious nature and gave liberally of his time and money to the church. He was fairly successful as a business man, industrious, careful, and punctual; of strictest integrity and held in the highest respect by the entire community.

He was six feet two inches tall and weighed as much as 285 pounds at one time. He was in good proportion and carried his weight well. He was always well dressed and neat in appearance; a handsome man. They had a large garden, food from the farms, a barn with driving horses, and chickens. On winter Sundays they would pop corn and eat cool Michigan apples from the cellar around the glowing hard coal heater.

About 1900 his health began to fail. He spent a winter in Old Mexico and returned weighing 100 pounds less. With his wife he spent a winter in Southern California but this did not seem to help him. He was only 51 at his death. He believed in the future reward of the righteous, and in a land where there is no more parting.

The following is a letter he wrote to his cousin, George Madison Alexander, from Dowagiac, July 2, 1863:

"Dear Cousin:

While coming from school this evening thoughts of my absent cousin came into my mind and I thought how negligent I have been for not writing you sooner. So when I arrived at home I immediately piled upstairs and placed myself in a conspicuous situation and commenced writing as fast as I could think. Well as I look out over the country I see fields of wheat which is most ripe and tells us that harvest is most here. We have just had a refreshing rain, it rained almost a half a day, which I think has done a great deal of good. I was very glad to hear from you, and as you say I think I would like to be with you, wandering along the banks of the river, and climbing the bluffs seeing something new every few rods, then I would not have to pore over dry lessons in the old brick schoolhouse of Dowagiac. But there is a new era in the history of the Dowagiac Graded School, our old Prof., J. A. Banfield has received a commission as Captain in a regiment of sharpshooters and he is now recruiting here in this town, two of the scholars have enlisted, Frank Colby and Isaac Dunning, they are to be orderlys.

I suppose you would like to know how our new Prof. looks. His name is Whitney. He is of medium size, with black hair, large blue eyes and his form slightly bent. I think he is a very good Prof.

Well, I suppose you would like to know how the folks are getting along. They are all well as far as I know. Miss Hebron has quit school and is now on the Prairie. The 4th of July is almost here and I suppose you will have a good time, I am going to try to. The folks on the Prairie are going to have a picnic.

You spoke of the 6th Mich. and the fight. Mr. Mellvain and Mr. J. McIntosh were wounded but not fatally. I have not heard from Sam since you were here. I fear he did not receive the letter or has gone where many brave soldiers go. Well, I must close this poor epistle, my dear cousin, think of me as you wander along the banks of the river and over the bluffs, and write me often. From your cousin.

Eli Jones"

His residence was 139 W. Van Buren St., in Battle Creek. He was only 41 at his death caused by cancer of the stomach. He was a Mason and director of Travellers Protective Association. Resolutions by the latter and by the Legion of Honor described him as: "the soul of honor, a firm friend, a noble man," "ever faithful, wise and true; one of nature's noble men, whose admirable qualities have won the love and respect of all."

In 1889 they returned to San Jose where he worked for the San Jose Mercury Herald. Both bur. Oak Hill Mem. Park. From San Jose Mercury Herald, May 7, 1931:

MRS. DONOVAN'S RITES TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriett Donovan, a resident of this city for more than half a century, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the funeral home of Curry and Grippenstraw, 48 N. Third Street. Friends are invited. Interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Donovan was the widow of William H. Donovan, who was employed in the mechanical department of the Mercury Herald for 40 years before his death a little more than a year ago. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. May Clark of Berkeley, and by a son, William G. Donovan, formerly connected with the Mercury Herald engraving department and now foreman of the engraving department of the Fresno Republican.

Daughter of Pioneers

Mrs. Donovan had been in poor health and was living with her son in Fresno for the past two years. She died there Tuesday. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Jones, came across the Emigrant Trail in 1850 and settled in Placerville where they mined gold a few years before coming to Santa Clara valley. The daughter was born in Mayfield in 1857.

Large Property Owners

The Mayfield properties of the family were extensive. Besides large grain fields there were groves of redwood trees on the place. Much of this timber went to San Francisco for the building up of the waterfront there. When the railroad came into the valley Jones built several hotels along the right-of-way and sold them.

The family came to San Jose later and Jones joined the city's police force, being one of its earliest members. He was outstandingly popular. When he died he was honored with what is said to have been the largest funeral held here in those times.

From San Jose Mercury Herald, October 10, 1929:

FELLOW WORKERS TO PAY DONOVAN FINAL TRIBUTE. FUNERAL OF VETERAN MERCURY PRINTER WILL BE HELD THIS AFTERNOON

There's a vacant chair in the Mercury Herald proof room, and "30" on one hook. William H. Donovan, 74, for 39 years an employee in the composing room of this newspaper, is dead.

A host of friends and fellow workers will pay respect to "Bill's" memory at services to be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the funeral home of Curry and Gripenstraw.

The eulogy will be spoken at the parlors today by J. O. Hayes, one of the owners of the Mercury Herald under whom Donovan worked ever since E. A. and J. O. Hayes became interested in the newspaper field. Chester Herold will sing. At Oak Hill Cemetery where interment will take place, the last rites will be conducted by San Jose Typographical Union No. 231 of which Donovan was a charter member.

Worked Until Last

Although in poor health for the past year Donovan continued to work, drawn back to his desk in the proof room by the lure of the business he had followed for more than 59 years. His trouble was finally diagnosed as mastoid. A week ago he decided to undergo an operation and was taken to Fresno for that purpose by his son, William G. Donovan.

Knowing full well that the end was near, Donovan went to the hospital. He died while the anesthetic was being administered. Born in San Francisco in 1855, Donovan came to San Jose with his parents while a small boy. The family home was in an orchard in the districts now bounded by St. James, Julian, Fourth and Fifth Streets. He attended public school in a building which occupied the center of what is now St. James park.

Began on Patriot

In 1870 Donovan began to learn the printing trade and went to work on the Daily Patriot, published in San Jose at that time by F. B. Murdock. Through various changes this paper became the San Jose Herald, and was finally absorbed by the San Jose Mercury, the combination becoming the Mercury Herald.

Editorial:

30 FOR "BILL" DONOVAN

Fortunate is the newspaperman who counts among his friends a compositor of the old school — a man who learned his trade before the advent of the linotype and other labor saving devices of modern journalism. These men are usually well read, and, during their long years of service have absorbed a vast fund of valuable information, a fine philosophy of life, and are generally distinguished by loyalty and a readiness to help the other fellow along. Such a man was our esteemed friend, "Bill" Donovan, who "eashed in his string" in the Mercury Herald composing room Tuesday, where he worked 40 years. The editorial staff gratefully acknowledges it owes him a debt of gratitude. In the rush of getting out a big newspaper many errors elude the blue-pencil of the local room, and, but for our friend's watchfulness, would have gone to press. Today, when the last words are said over the body that has served so long and so well, many a young newspaperman, and some who are not so young, will recall Bill's friendly encouragement during those years when a kindly interest meant so much.

Elkton, Ohio, was a station on the underground railway transporting negro slaves to Canada. In her early teens a Friends Academy flourished there with William Kenworthy as headmaster. The students had to attend the weekly "Friends Meeting" on Thursday or "Fifth Day" as they called it. After the Academy closed the public schools occupied the building. It burned down several years ago. She enjoyed particularly the Literary Society in the old Academy. The membership was large and divided into classes A and B. At first they had literary subjects and music and later took turns presenting amateur plays and entertainments. They sometimes sent to Cincinnati for costumes when they could not contrive them. One of the best received entertainments was the dramatization of the poem "The Two Lovers" by Will Carleton. The Talbert Carriage Works in West Elkton provided employment to a great many workmen but the building burned about the time the automobile came into use and it was continued only as a carriage repair shop. "So live that when thy summons comes to join
 To the pale realms of shade, where each shall take
 His chamber in the silent halls of death,
 Thou go not, like the quarry slave at night,
 Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed
 By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
 Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
 About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."
 —WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

"BRODY'S RECORD IS 46 YEARS ON MAIN STREET"

Forty-six years on Main Street is the record of Irwill Brody of Lawton. He has also just completed 21 years as postmaster of this village. He first took office under President Wilson, serving eight years, and again became postmaster 13 years ago under President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Many changes have come about since he first became postmaster, says Brody. The business of the office has more than doubled. In the earlier days many Civil War veterans were still living and they came regularly to the office every three months to get their pension vouchers, some of which did not exceed $8 per month. Mr. Brody has been active in other lines of business and civic affairs. He is a registered pharmacist, having secured his education at the Ferris Institute at Big Rapids. For 15 years he was employed in Lawton drug stores and also engaged for 10 years in the fuel and feed business with his brother Bert. Brody's business success and education have been largely due to his own efforts, his father having died when Irwill was a small boy. As a lad he worked in vineyards and did other work to make a living and secure an education. He has been village president, clerk, member of the council and school board. For the past few years his wife has been one of the assistants at the post office. Brody's principal recreations are fishing and deer hunting."

He was featured in the April 1947 issue of "Capper's Farmer" in an article entitled "Easy Way To Make Pork," which described his progressive hog raising methods. The article is illustrated with pictures of the hog houses, corn storage, and other equipment on his beautiful farm on Young's Prairie near Cassopolis, Mich. His recipe for easy pork making is one-litter sows, June pigs, field farrowing, pasture raising, hogged off crops, automatic watering, feeding floor storage, and free-choice rations. This avoids a pack of lumbering old sows. Gilts require less attention and grow into pork as they head for their first and only litter. As soon as pigs are weaned the dams are put on 30 day finish feed. In 1946 he got 560 pigs from 81 gilts. Res: R. F. D., Cassopolis, Mich.

It states that his early life was spent on farms where he and his five brothers learned early the unending toil of those who wrest a livelihood from the land. He is said to have never forgotten the paradox of the depression of 1893 when farmers raised more than they could sell and the city workers went hungry because they had no money to buy the farmer's produce. He worked his way through Lake Forest Academy, drove a mail coach in New Mexico, graduated from Harvard in 1905 where he worked on the Harvard Crimson edited by his classmate, Franklin D. Roosevelt. He enlisted in the U. S. Army the day war was declared in 1917 and served as an officer in the field artillery. He served with distinction in the battle of St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He was past president of the Sunnyside Gardens Community Association and representative on the Democratic County Committee. "His integrity was known to everyone." His "loyalty * * * his warmth and selflessness, remain an inspiration to all who knew him."
